Knox, when the "Ready Helpers" class of Trinity Sunday School gave a steamer shower to Miss Mabel Mills, on the eve of her departure for England. About twenty-five members were present. Following the opening of the gifts, Miss Mills appropriately thanked the class for their kind thoughtfulness, after which light refreshments were served. As the class dispersed they once more voted Mrs. Knox a charming hostess.

THAT TIRED FEELING.

Is It a Physical Fact or a Notion?

"Are you tired, or do you just think you are?" asks Josephine A. Jackson, M.D., in the Woman's Magazine. "Is being tired an actual physical fact, or is it sometimes merely a notion? When you feel tired and your machine slows down, are you really out of petrol, or has something clogged up the flow?

"Here is the answer — Men the world over possess amounts of resource which only very exceptional individuals push to their extremes of use." This was the final word of William James, one of the keenest minds of his generation. The common notion about fatigue is less than fifty per cent. true, and its false ingredients clog up the faculties for zeal and enthusiasm to a degree that reduces the final output of human endeavor far below its best possibilities.

"The old Romans had a saying: 'He is able because he thinks he is able.' No sensible person believes that a mere notion could create physical power, but the Romans knew that self-confidence assures free flow to the energy that is already there. Dudley Sargent, found himself in a warrior, a great poet, a great priest, and a great lover. He found himself invulnerable, and unassailable by weariness because of his fixed belief that he was the indwelling instrument of the Most High. By that belief, the channels were kept open for the free outpouring of the really great powers within which he had been endowed.

"Successful leaders of men have always recognized the degree to which true physical fatigue is increased by discouragement and a lack of resolve. They have known how to clear away this clogging sense of fatigue by the dynamic driving-power of a new enthusiasm. 'Give them a gun,' said a great admiral in the war, when his stokers were fainting in the hold. The sound of combat brought them to their feet with a bound.

"'Bring of the fruit of the land,' said Moses to Joshua's foraging party, when Israel grew faint with hope deferred, even in sight of the Promised Land. The bearers returned with one branch of the grapes of Eschol between two upon a staff and reaching to the ground. The sight was enough to dispel all weariness."

Sea Secrets.

Humans may have their matrimonial tangles, but they are nothing to the matrimonial problems of the native oyster. In "Animals of the Sea," Mr. F. Martin Duncan, F.Z.S., tells us that each individual changes its sex at different periods, but the authorities do not yet agree as to the sex with which the oyster starts its life. Young oysters enjoy but 48 hours' freedom as moving creatures; then they settle down for life. Among the oyster's enemies is the star-fish. An invasion of "five-fingers" will sometimes destroy a whole bed of oysters in a single night. Some most interesting points gleaned from this book include: The female lobster has been known to produce 160,000 eggs at a time. Limpets go on traveling expeditions at night, but by a wonderful homing instinct return to exactly the same spot on their "home" rock. Whelks have from 220 to 250 teeth each, the winkle possesses a set of 3,500, but the dental outfit of the "Umbrella Shell" is 750,000 teeth. The sea urchin has four different kinds of spines, each with a specialized function: weapons, poison-bearers, "chewers," and cleaners. A giant clam will weigh 500 pounds. A 54-lb. ling was found to possess 28,361,000 eggs. In this connection it may be mentioned that the population of England and Wales is only 37,885,242.

PROGRESS IN JAPAN.

Forces of Reaction Are Gradually Losing Their Power.

The "late unpleasantness," if, indeed, even that euphemism fitly may be applied to it, between the Kato Ministry and Japan's Privy Council is as enlightening a happening as could have come again to illustrate how stubborn a thing is Oriental conservatism. Intrenched privilege does not yield overgraciously or readily anywhere the world around, but if there is a place where stiffness is stiffest and yesterdayness most insistent upon carrying on into to-day it is in those Asiatic islands, where people (and this is the paradox of it) pride themselves upon being completely modernized. What actually happened was only this: the Privy Council passed a resolution condemning as too lenient the Chinese policy of the Government. Forty-eight hours later it was announced that an entire understanding existed between the two bodies, and that hereafter the Cabinet would consult with the Council before entering on international agreements.

So, once again, the old thought has challenged the new in Dai Nippon and, seemingly, has gained at least a respite from that most dreaded of all conditions: the being placidly ignored. For, once upon a time, the Privy Council (Dai-jo-kwan) was second in authority only to the Board of Religion (Jingi-kwan); it stood admittedly superior to all the other nine Governmental Departments. Now, though that began something like 1,500 years ago, the tradition is for that very reason all the more sharp, rather than less. Just the other day, as they measure time in that all but immemorial land—when the Constitution of '89 was drawn, that is—the Council became a solely consultive body, whose advice might be called for at the pleasure of the emperor, but not thus and thus is long-held authority easily swept away.

The twenty-six councilors (as was quite to have been expected) are veteran publicists; most of them have played important roles in earlier administrations. They are the older men, conservative in thought and often enough militarily-minded. When, then, the younger men, of progressive thought and convinced that the militaristic policy no longer is what once it might claim to be—when this element made up the Cabinet it was a question only of time and chance till those opposing ideas should clash. Kato and his supporters have adopted toward China just such a broadly fair attitude as cannot but result in enduring gain both to the mainland republic and the insular monarchy, but that is not a policy approved by the stand-patters. Hence the protest.

Carry the matter one step further. Having set on record their protest, the councilors yielded to the Ministers. The Postal Agreement, which has been the ostensible cause of the little drama, was promptly closed, and so one more step was taken in Japan's withdrawal from that field of extraterritorial privilege in China which she had come gradually to occupy. If the concession to consult with the Council before entering into agreements in the future has really been made (only unofficially has it been so declared), one more, after all, has been granted than a deliberative voice in Governmental action to an element once militarily powerful and now considerably, and beyond just doubt still representative of no small portion of the state, long powerful and now being ignored, and the protest carried. By no means does it follow that they have re-entrenched themselves in any position whence their influence may be used in a reactionary way.

It is interesting to see the forces of yesterday struggling to delay the dawning of to-morrow. It is encouraging to see the sun of progress rise exactly on time. Mrs. Doasyouwouldbedonebyis a steadily, albeit slowly, coming into her ultimate own. Imperial Privy Councils to the contrary notwithstanding.

Local Nicknames.

Most big cities and towns have certain localities which have had nicknames bestowed upon them—names that are anything but official. Not infrequently these have their origin among the tradespeople or their assistants who "serve" a residential district mostly by subtly suggest dissatisfaction with the dwellers in the areas to which they are supplied. There is, for example, a "Sloper's Island" in several London suburbs. Balham possesses one, so does Raynes Park. The origin is not far to seek. "Rabbit Warrens" are quite numerous, while a certain poor quarter of Edmonton is known as "Convicts' Island." Hoxton has a "Thieves' Kitchen," and a "Coiner's Corner." In the East End is a "Fenian Barracks," the residents being a poor crease of Irish, while in the West End is an area named "The Potteries"; why, nobody seems to know. Woolwich has its "Pustralia," "Little Italy," a stone's throw off Holborn, is aptly named, its population being mostly Italian organ-grinders and ice-cream vendors; but "Little Russia," in Norbiton, although boasting many aliens, contains very few Russians.—English Exchange.

Where Women Rule.

In Tibet the women are under no legal disabilities whatever. If there is no son, the eldest daughter inherits the paternal estate, and she then has the privilege of marrying one man at a time and of retaining him as husband as long as she pleases. To get rid of him no formality is necessary. Though he cannot leave her except for gross misconduct, she can put him out of doors on small provocation or none at all.

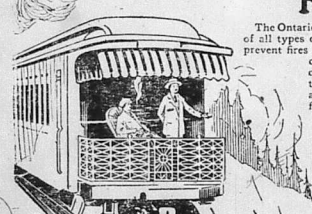
The Duty of Fire Prevention

Carelessness with cigarette butts, cigar ends, matches, pipe ashes, camp fires, fly smudges, railway locomotives, slash-burning operations—human carelessness of some kind accounts for over 95% of the forest fires in Ontario.

It is impossible to say how many fires along railway lines are not due to engine sparks, but to the thoughtless smoker tossing away his cigarette or cigar butt. However, there is no doubt a fair number of forest fires originate in this way, and such are preventable. Each individual should realize his personal responsibility to be careful with fire in any form in northern Ontario.

Save Ontario's Forests



The Ontario fire ranger is at the mercy of all types of carelessness, and cannot prevent fires starting, as a rule. He can only attempt to limit the consequences. He is entitled to your help and co-operation by being careful with fire.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

She—Some things go without saying.

He—Yes, my dear, but your tongue isn't one of them.

Why suffer from corns when they can be painlessly rooted out by using Holloway's Corn Remover.

Mother (leaving Egyptian room in museum)—What did you think of it, dear?

Dorothy—Well, it was all right, but I don't see why there were so many mummies and no daddies.

"Why do you jump at the sound of a motor car?"

"Well, some time ago my chauffeur eloped with my wife, and every time I hear a horn I think he is bringing her back."

Nearly all children are subject to worms, and many are born with them. Spare them suffering by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, an excellent remedy.

Al was out working in the garden and his golf sticks were on the front porch, when a neighbor stopped by.

"Is the wife home, Al?"

"Do you think I'd be doing this if she wasn't?"

Two Irish women were discussing a railroad accident. One asked the other if any were killed in the terrible crash. She replied, "Shure, twenty-sivin Ottalians and wan Irishman," whereupon Mrs. Dooley, with a long sigh, came back with, "O, the poor feller".

A Power of its Own.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has a subtle power of its own. All who have used it know this and keep it by them as the most valuable liniment available. Its uses are innumerable and for many years it has been prized as the leading liniment for man and beast.

A teacher was conducting a lesson in history.

"Tommy Jones", she said, "what was there about George Washington which distinguished him from all other famous Americans?"

"He didn't lie", was the prompt answer.

Asthma Victims. The man or woman subject to asthma is indeed a victim. What can be more terrifying than to suddenly be seized with paroxysms of choking which seem to fairly threaten the existence of life itself. From such a condition Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has brought many to completely restored health and happiness. It is known and prized in every section of this broad land.

The ocean liner had just come within hailing distance of the Emerald Isle. An Irish traveller, getting his first glimpse of "The Old Country" after a long absence abroad, threw his hat up in the air and yelled enthusiastically, "Hooray for old Ireland!"

A colored minister in Louisville announced to his faithful flock the following: "Brethren and sistern, dis mornin' I'se gwine to preach a powerful sermon. I'se gwine to bind de unboundable; I'se gwine to define de undefinable; I'se gwine to unscrew the unscrutable, and I'se gwine to lead you all through de impassable paths to infernal happiness".

When a mother detects from the writhings and fretting of a child that worms are troubling it, she can procure a reliable remedy in Miller's Worm Powders which will expel all worms from the system. They may cause vomiting, but this need cause no anxiety, because it is but a manifestation of their thorough work. No worms can long exist where these Powders are used.

Patrick had selected a sunny spot beside the cabin door and was enjoying his Sunday morning shave, when a neighbor passed by.

"Sure, and what are ye doing, Pat? Shaving outside?"

"And isn't it outside I should be shaving? Do ye think I'm fur lined?

Ikey (eagerly)—Fadder, I vos in de woods an' I saw a nest full of young birts an' dey did nothing but sing "Cheep! Cheep!"

Cohenstein—Mine cracious, Ikey! get all dem birts you can. I'll hang dem in der front of der store and let dem holler 'bout der goots.

Internally and Externally It Is Good.—The crowning property of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is that it can be used internally for many complaints as well as externally. For sore throat, croup, whooping cough, pains in the chest, colic and many kindred ailments it has qualities that are unsurpassed. A bottle of it costs little and there is no loss in always having it at hand.

Novice—I suppose, caddy, that you have been around the links with worse players than I."

Not a word.

Novice—I say, caddy! I suppose you have been around the links with worse players."

Not a word.

Novice—What's the matter, are you deaf?

Caddy—No, sir, I was just trying to remember.

A vicar re-visiting the scene of his former labors, preached in the old church — not for the first time — from one of his favorite texts: "Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings?" The following day he called on an old farmer. "I see a great many changes in the parish, Mr. Fenman," he remarked, "since I was here last." "Ay, sir," said the farmer, "'tis true enough that is. But I see the price o' sparrows ain't altered much!"

"Henry, why didn't you come to school yesterday?"

"I couldn't, Miss Spink. I had to go to the dentist with a toothache."

"Well, that's too bad. Does it still ache?"

"I don't know, mam."

"You don't know! Henry, you are trying to deceive me. How is it that you don't know whether your tooth aches or not?"

"The dentist kept it, Miss Spink."

CROAT STATESMAN'S PROBLEMS.

Jugo-Slavia Is Not So United as Patriots Could Wish.

Dr. Anton Trosich Pavisich is one of the big men now trying to make a nation out of the South Slavs. From this distance it would look to be as easy a task as making a nation out of the English, Dutch and Germans. The Serbs, Croats and Slovenes are all Slavs. Yes, and so are the English, Dutch and Germans of Teutonic origin. And how the English and Germans love one another.

During the late war, more precisely and hopelessly described as the first world war, the Croats and Slovenes fought for Austria and the Serbs against Austria. The fortunes of war gave the Croats and Slovenes the choice of becoming Italians or trying to set up a tiny country of their own or of proclaiming their love for the Serbs. So there was set up the kingdom of Jugo-Slavia with Crown Prince Alexander of Serbia as King and Belgrade as capital.

The races have some things in common. They are the south-westerly vanguard of that Slavic race movement which surged across Central Europe a thousand years ago, just as the Czechs are the north-westerly vanguard of that irruption. But during the intervening and unhappy millennium they have become sadly estranged and divided. Their religions, languages, customs, even their alphabets have become different.

To-day the Croats are complaining bitterly that the Serbs are trying to force an alien religion, education and rule on them. Dr. Pavisich, author and statesman, and now Minister to the United States from the Triparite Kingdom, is a Croatian and one of the few leaders of his people who are not in opposition to the new régime. Under the circumstances he is probably safer in Washington than at home.

YOUNG DAUGHTER MADE WELL

Mother Tells How Her Daughter Suffered and Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Vancouver, B.C.—"My daughter is a young girl who has been having severe pains and weak and dizzy feelings for some time and had lost her appetite. Through an older daughter who had heard of a woman who was taking it for the same trouble, we were told of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My daughter has been taking it for several months and is quite all right now. It has done all it was represented to do and we have told a number of friends about it. I am never without a bottle of it in the house, for I myself take it for that weak, tired, worn-out feeling which sometimes comes to us all. I find it is building me up and I strongly recommend it to women who are suffering as I and my daughter have."—Mrs. J. McDONALD, 2347 20th Ave. East, Vancouver, B. C.

From the age of twelve a girl needs all the care a thoughtful mother can give. Many a woman has suffered years of pain and misery—the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance of the mother who should have guided her during this time.

If she complains of headaches, pains in the back and lower limbs, or if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter, make life easier for her.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted for such conditions. C

Best I Have Ever Taken

So Says Mr. John Brooks, in Describing the Relief He Found in Dreco, the Famous Herbal Remedy.

Mr. John Brooks, a well-known citizen of 82 Chestnut Street, Toronto, makes an interesting statement in which he praises Dreco highly. Let him tell how this wonderful medicine helped him.

"I have taken many things for catarrh in my head, nose and throat, without relief. I believe it was this condition that caused my stomach to get in bad shape. The food I ate would not agree with me and would sour in my stomach, and I also had pains in my back and dizzy spells.

"Dreco relieved these pains and dizzy spells, and I can walk along the street now without fear of them overtaking me. I sleep fine and have a good appetite, and no longer have that sluggish, tired feeling. Dreco has proved to be a wonderful medicine for me, the best I have ever taken.

Praise of this nature coming from responsible people tells its own story of the value of Dreco as a corrective for all digestive complaints. It is prepared expressly to regulate the stomach, liver and bowels and offers quick relief from many distressing symptoms.

Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs. It is compounded solely from herbs, roots, bark and leaves of known medicinal value.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Napanee by Wallace & Co., and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

School Board Requisitions.

The requisitions of the Board of Education for the present year were presented to the Town Council at their regular meeting on Tuesday evening. The Board requires $9,-618.55 for the Collegiate Institute and $15,170.00 for the Public Schools. These amounts are lower than a year ago, being $100.00 less for the Public Schools and $1,100.00 less for the Collegiate. The reason for these lower amounts is accounted for by the fact that the Board did not use all of their requisition last year.

The pastor could be story of the life of Joshua, and his mighty call at the close of his eventful life. The pastor then related the history of the early church, and called for our united decisions in this hour of great need.

At the evening service 700 people filled the church and Sunday School room to listen to the closing address of Rev. A. H. Foster as pastor of Trinity Church, Napanee. The members of the Orange Order attended in a body, and Grace Church withdrew their service to meet with the friends of Trinity Church in this farewell service.

The pastor's closing sermon was one long to be remembered. His text was from Matt. 28: 19-20. The theme taken from this text was: (1) What is the gospel message? (2) How should this message be carried forward in the world?

At the close of this service Rev. Mr. Foster stood at the door of the church and clasped hands with many friends, who expressed their regret at the short pastorate allowed by conference.

On Monday evening the Sunday School room was filled to again say farewell to Rev. and Mrs. Foster. At 8 o'clock ex-Mayor Graham took the chair and the meeting was called to order. After singing a hymn, prayer was offered by the pastor. An interesting feature of the evening was the baptismal service, when four children were baptized, Emma Eurena Nugent, Earl Wartman Nugent, Marjory Cavell Metcalfe, and Muriel Helen Garrison.

Rev. and Mrs. Foster were then called to the platform and presented with a purse containing $322.00, and the following address was read:

Address and Presentation.

The following address was presented to Mrs. M. W. Leigh, by her Sunday School Class before her leaving for her new home. About forty had a pleasant evening together.

Enterprise, Ont.,
July 4th, 1923.

Dear Mrs. Leigh,—We, the members of the Women's Adult Bible Class, and friends, have met here this evening to express to you, as teacher of our class, our regret that you will soon be leaving us. We feel that we cannot let you go without in some way, giving evidence of our appreciation of your services as teacher of our class, and a hard and willing worker in our Church and Sunday School.

Your teaching has been a revelation and inspiration, we believe, to each member of our class, and has given evidence of much thought and time on the part in the preparation of each lesson. The interest in the lessons has been maintained and the attendance increased during your term as teacher. Your example as a willing worker in all branches of the church's work will leave its impress upon the members after your departure, and has helped materially to bring about results for good.

We shall miss your energy and ability. We trust and pray that wherever your and your beloved partner's lot may be cast, you may both have God's richest blessing together with many years of prosperity and happiness in His service.

We ask you to accept this gift as a token of our esteem and as a remembrance of the appreciation and love of the members of the Women's Adult Bible Class of the Enterprise Methodist Sunday School.

Signed on behalf of the Class.

NEWBURGH.

Mrs. (Rev.) Gandier passed away on Friday evening last, after a lingering illness. There are none of whom it can be more truthfully said that she was a mother in Israel than Mrs. Gandier. Her influence was not only manifested in her own family, but extended to all with whom she came in contact. Amid the hampered surroundings incident to the life of pioneer missionaries and in the pastorate, Mrs. Gandier and her husband, raised a family of ten children, all of whom, under the guidance of christian and judicious parents, have raised the name of Gandier to a place of honor and eminence in the church, in the medical profession and in every activity in which they have been engaged, and none of whom got beyond receiving counsel and advice from mother whose memory they will cherish until they too will be called to lay down their burdens. This feeling is reflected by everyone who had the privilege of knowing Mrs. Gandier. There were six sons and four daughters in the Gandier family. Two of the sons are dead, Dr. Gus, late of Sherbrooke, Que., and Rev. Dr. MacGillivary Gandier, for some years an efficient secretary of the Anti-Saloon League of the United States. All the others, besides those who waited on her, have made recent visits to the bedside of their mother.

On Sunday evening a fire took place which burned the barn and all the outbuildings of Patrick Finn, a farmer living inside the corporation. The fire started in the garage, from some unknown cause, and spread to the other buildings in an incredinable short time, making a clean sweep of them and their contents, which included all the farm machinery, motor car, harness, a number of hens and pigs, and all the various necessary accumulations around a farm. There is some insurance, but only enough to cover a fraction of the loss. Much sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Finn, who are industrious, quiet and thrifty people.

Twin boys were born to Mr. and Mrs. Allen Pero last week. Newburgh has contributed a number of eminent men to the population of the Dominion, and it is gratifying to know that we are still contributing good stock to the future citizenship of the country. The boys are thriving well.

Our Village Council should pass a by-law regulating the rate of speed within the corporation and see that it is observed; otherwise we will, one day, have a serious accident at the corner at the foot of the south hill.

Mrs. Adams has gone to Ottawa to attend the funeral of her uncle, Mr. George Leslie.

Dr. Walwin has moved to Bruce County, where he unindeed to locate.

Mrs. James Edie, of Ottawa, is visiting Miss Ella Yoemans.

John Lanfear is spending his holidays with his parents, Geo. Anson and Mrs. Aylesworth.

Dr. O. H. Lanfear's body was brought here for interment on Friday last.

Miss Margaret Cameron, professional nurse, has gone to New York to spend her holidays with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Cain, of Toronto, and their son, Hubert, are visiting Mrs. Cain's mother, Mrs. Conway, for a few days.

Marian Sutton is home from South Hampton, N.Y., to nurse her mother, Mrs. Wm. Sutton, who is quite sick.

Mrs. McCullough and son, of Deseronto, paid a visit to our village on Tuesday, visiting the grave of her brother, Dr. Lanphier, who was buried on Saturday last. They also visited the Methodist Church and were delighted with the late renovations.

Miss Ada F. Nickle has returned home for the summer vacation from Ottawa, where she has been teaching for the last year.

Miss M. Mitchell and Miss Willa Nickle are attending the Summer School at Queen's.

The garden party at Camden East on Friday last was well attended, and all report a good time.

The Wesley garden party held on Tuesday on Mr. W. Baker's lawn, was a decided success.

Mr. Shannon was cutting the grass on his lawn with a scythe, when Mrs. Shannon came up behind him and the scythe came in contact with her leg, making a deep cut, necessitating three stitches.

Miss M. I. Nickle, who has been teaching in Guelph, came home suffering from the effects of an attack of flu contracted early in April and has since been under the Dr.'s care. Reports say she is slowly convalescing.

Miss Switzer, who has been ill, has gone to the General Hospital, Kingston, for treatment.

THE PINKERTONS.

The Man Who Founded Famous Firm of Detectives.

Just over seventy years ago a cooper living in Illinois needed some staves for his barrels, and went into the woods to cut them.

While thus employed he heard voices proceeding from a cavern in the vicinity. He stole to the entrance, which was cunningly concealed by brushwood, and discovered a group of counterfeiters busy at work.

He withdrew without being noticed by any of the gang, journeyed to Chicago, forty miles distant, and told the chief of police there of what he had seen, and offered to guide a posse of his men to the spot.

His offer was accepted, and the malefactors were arrested. For this service the cooper, Allan Pinkerton by name, received one thousand dollars.

This experience opened the young man's eyes to the fact that humble criminals might possibly be made to pay better than coopering. He started in quite a small way, but he had a natural genius for detective work, and before long his name became a terror to evildoers throughout the United States and beyond.

As time went on he took into partnership his two stalwart sons, Robert Allan Pinkerton, since dead, and William Allan Pinkerton, the present head of the firm.

Between them these three men have been responsible for the arrest of most of the more notorious crooks who have made America their headquarters during the past fifty or sixty years.

It was the Pinkertons, for instance, who ran to earth the notorious Walter Sheridan, the originator of the great Bank of England frauds. Series, for which the Bidwells were convicted and punished.

Sheridan combined the dual role of forger and bank robber, and his astuteness and skill in evading arrest were such that the ordinary police were quite unable to cope with him.

Eventually, after some score or more American bankers had sustained between them losses totalling more than $4,000,000, they retained the services of the famous detective agency. Allan Pinkerton took up the chase himself, assisted by his young est son, William, and within a very few weeks they captured their man, after a desperate fight at Sandusky, Ohio.

Another famous bank robber whom the Pinkertons laid by the heels was Max Shinburn, whose criminal exploits were on a par with those of Sheridan's. After they had succeeded in capturing him, however, the Federal authorities insisted on his being handed over to them.

The result was a ludicrous fiasco. In order, as they thought, to make sure of the safe custody of their prisoner, the police handcuffed him to an officer, and both were locked up for the night in a room in the hotel where he had been arrested.

During the early hours of the morning, however, Shinburn contrived to pick the lock of the handcuff by means of the stem of his scarf-pin, and, shaking himself free, slipped quietly away. He was soon recaptured, but escaped to Europe, and died some few years back in Belgium.

An Englishman, standing nearby, displeased at the others sudden burst, glowered. "Bah, horrah for Hus—" "That's right", flashed back the Irishman, "every man for his own country."

The Ontario Cabinet

Premier and Minister of Education —Hon. G. H. Ferguson, K.C., B.A., LL.D., Grenville.

Attorney-General :— Hon. W. F. Nickle, K.C., B.A., Kingston.

Public Works and Highways—Hon. George S. Henry, B.A., LL.D., East York.

Provincial Treasurer—Col. W. H. Price, K.C., LL.B., Parkdale.

Mines—Chas. McCrea, K.C., Sudbury.

Public Health and Labor — Dr. Forbes Godfrey, M.B., L.R.C.P. and S., West York.

Agriculture—John S. Martin, B.A., South Norfolk.

Provincial Secretary—Lincoln Goldie, South Wellington.

Lands and Forests — James W. Lyons, Sault Ste. Marie.

Without Portfolio—Hon. Sir Adam Beck, K.B., LL.D., London; Hon. Thomas Crawford, Seat "A", North-West Toronto; Dr. Leeming Carr, M.B., East Hamilton; J. R. Cooke, North Hastings.

Speaker—Capt. Joseph E. Thompson, Seat "B", North-East Toronto.

The official announcement of the personnel of the new Ontario Cabinet who will work with Hon. G. Howard Ferguson has been made, following the completion late on Saturday of the draft, which was taken to Government House and received the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor. According to arrangements which have been made with the Drury Government, Hon. Mr. Ferguson and his Cabinet will take over their duties next Monday.

In his Government Hon. Mr. Ferguson has secured a splendid combination of experience and youth, and so far as the actual allotment of departments is concerned it may be termed a Ministry of young men. The Premier himself has just attained his 53rd birthday; Mr. Nickle is in his fifty-fourth year; Mr. Henry is in his fifty-second year; Col. W. H. Price is forty-five; Mr. McCrea forty-six; Dr. Forbes Godfrey fifty-six, and Sir Adam Beck is still reckoned a young man in energy at sixty-six. John H. Martin has already made a continental reputation for himself as an agriculturist, and Mr. Goldie comes from one of the oldest and best-known families in Western Ontario.

Geographically, the Cabinet is well chosen. The Eastern portion of the Province, in addition to the Premier, will have as representatives the Attorney-General, and a member on the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, namely, J. R. Cooke. The Central District, including Toronto and the York Ridings, has the Minister of Public Works, Provincial Treasurer and the Minister of Health and Labor in addition to the Hon. Thomas Crawford, the Dean of the House, who is Minister without Portfolio. As before, Northern Ontario will be represented by the two portfolios in which they are most interested, namely, of Lands and Forests and of Mines. The South Western section will find representation in the Ministry through the portfolios of Agriculture, Provincial Secretary, and the member for East Hamilton, as well as Sir Adam Beck.

Well-balanced Cabinet.

From a vocational standpoint, the Cabinet is well balanced. There are three farmers and one cattle merchant. The new Minister of Agriculture himself works a 200-acre farm in Norfolk County and has many other related activities.

It should also be gratifying to the public to know that the legal work of the Cabinet will not devolve upon one member, as in addition to the Premier, there are three experienced lawyers. This alone should save the Province considerable money. The business interests will likewise have good representation in Sir Adam Beck, Lincoln Goldie and James Lyons. In matters of health and social betterment, it should be gratifying to note that these departments will be presided over by a physician of such outstanding ability as Dr. Forbes Godfrey. Dr. Godfrey has long been in the vanguard of progress, along lines that bring about an improvement in health and social conditions. He has Dr. Leeming Carr, of Hamilton, as his colleague, and these two present a splendid combination. Dr. Carr places Hamilton in the same position now as it enjoyed in the Whitney administration. Dr. Carr is also very close to the needs of the people in a great industrial centre like Hamilton, with its large labor following.

Capt. Joseph E. Thompson, member for North-East Toronto becomes officially, as well in fact, the first gentleman of Ontario. For the past four years he has been Conservative whip and chairman of the Conservative Association of Ontario. It is understood that he could have had an active portfolio in the new Cabinet, but his business would not permit him the time. Captain Thompson and his charming wife will no doubt have many social innovations to introduce at Queen's Park.

Premier Capable Educationist.

It is not likely that there will be any formal announcement of policy by the new Government until the Ministers are installed in office. It will no doubt, however, be a matter of considerable satisfaction to the public generally that the Premier himself will administer the Department of Education. He acted in this capacity for two years during the absence of Hon. Dr. Pyne, former Minister, in England. At that time Mr. Ferguson got a complete grasp of educational affairs and found the work of the Department so much to his liking that he was loath to relinquish it when Dr. Pyne returned. Mr. Ferguson can be relied upon to institute the many reforms in education that four years of inaction have demonstrated are necessary, and to give a much-needed stability to the educational system of the Province. Mr. Ferguson has also expressed himself as desirous of bringing about a condition of home life all over Ontario that will lead to contentment and good feeling among all classes of the people.

Goldie Well Qualified.

In addition to recognizing the claims of the central portion of Western Ontario for a representative in the Cabinet by the appointment of Mr. Lincoln Goldie as Provincial Secretary, Hon. Mr. Ferguson has picked an eminently qualified business man who will, beyond doubt, lend great stability to the administration of that portion of provincial affairs which come under his jurisdiction. One of the faults of the late Government was its inability to place on the Cabinet any outstanding man of business ability; but now, with the selection of Mr. Goldie, of Guelph, whose success in his private enterprises has qualified him to handle public affairs that gap has been filled in the new Administration. Mr. Goldie, who is a son of the late James Goldie of Guelph, was associated with his father in the management and building up of the Goldie Milling Company of that centre, which was one of the important business organizations of Guelph. He was also selected by the Dominion Government for the Wheat Board, so that his all-round experience has fitted him to be a strong member of a strong Government.

Toronto Man Speaks Highly of Dreco

Mr. Harry Hipkiss Finds Relief in Dreco When Other Medicines Fail. Now Has Splendid Appetite.

Mr. Hipkiss, of 2050 Dundas St. West, Toronto, had suffered for a long time from a run-down digestive system. It simply would not function properly until toned and regulated by the corrective properties of Dreco, the famous herbical remedy.

"My stomach caused me sorts of trouble," says Mr. Hipkiss. "My food wouldn't digest and everything seemed to sour. My liver was sluggish and I would get biliousness and have dizzy spells. My joints ached with pain from rheumatism. My bowels never acted regular, and I didn't sleep well at night. My appetite was very poor, but now I can eat almost anything without suffering afterwards. I am certainly glad I heard of Dreco, for it has done away with my troubles. It seemed to hit the spot when everything else failed."

Dreco tones up the organs can be charred of causing suffering such as Mr. Hipkiss describes. Poor digestion causes a weakening of the other organs and speedily takes a toll on the general health. Dreco is made from roots, herbs, bark and leaves, which tone up these vital organs. It keeps them strong and healthy and acting as Nature intended.

Dreco is especially valuable at this season of the year to tone up a system run-down by the rigors of winter. It contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Napanee by Wallace & Co., and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

Storm in Saskatchewan

Terrific Storm of Cyclonic Nature Hits Rosetown and District.—Death and Destruction Follows in Wake.

A storm of terrific violence struck Rosetown and district around 11 o'clock Saturday night. Heavy lightning and threatening clouds were seen in the north-west and spread southward and when it reached the town seemed to be travelling eastward. A large crowd from farms and towns far and near had gathered in town, some to do their week end shopping and attend to business and others for amusement. Most of these left in their cars a little time before the storm broke with hurricane force. Many were caught on the roads, having to desert their cars and seek shelter in farm houses. Tops of cars were blown to ribbons.

It was an awful night, lightning flash followed lightning flash in quick succession and rain fell more or less profusely, torrentially at times, and the wind came in terrific blasts that threatened anything standing in its path. Shingles, boards and metal were flying here and there and it was extremely dangerous to be out. Roofs were blown off, signs blown down, buildings and parts of buildings were blown down, lifted and carried with the wind and burst or dashed to pieces.

None of our citizens, however, were injured, but in the country where the wind had more sweep, a number were severely injured and one young lad was killed. Phone, telegraph and electric light poles and wires came down, the phone line northward to the creek; in coming down, strewed the poles across that main artery of travel, making it impassable.

With lines of communication cut off, it has been impossible to get first hand information freely, but visitors to town have been bringing in news of the awful destruction, the north-western district apparently having suffered the most severely.

The only fatality thus far reported is that of Victor Cassidy, a boy of about fourteen, working for J. M. O'Shaughnessy, south of Rosetown. The bunkhouse in which he was staying was picked up by the wind, carried over a granary and across the prairie about fifty yards. His body was found the next morning about a quarter of a mile away. His neck had been broken. It is thought that he had gotten out of the shack and started to run, was picked up and carried by the wind and thrown on his back.

Nile Woods and his wife, north-west of town, narrowly escaped death when their house was picked up by the wind and carried across the ground for about a mile and a half. Mrs. Woods escaped with a bad shaking up, while Mr. Woods was severely injured.

Freeman Hunter, who was in a granary on L. A. Parney's farm, received a bad shaking up and was brought to the hospital on Monday.

Aryeh Brown was also picked up in his bunkhouse and carried about five hundred yards. The bunkhouse was then hurled over a stack and fell to pieces on the other side. Brown, little hurt, got out on hands and knees making for the house when a rolling barrel struck him on the head. He was brought to the hospital on Sunday afternoon suffering from cuts on his head and face.

R. Carrick, of the Kingsland district, who had been sleeping in a bunkhouse, was badly hurt. The bunkhouse was lifted over a fence and some trees and carried a few hundred yards and smashed. He was unconscious for some time and exposed. On coming to he made his way to his barn, but apparently in his condition did not realize for quite a while just where he was.

Many Narrow Escapes.

Nine patients of the hospital, together with three staff members, were in great danger when the place was struck by lightning and the big chimney was knocked over; the roof was lifted off, while bricks were taken off the upper walls. Repairing was being done on Sunday morning.

Mrs. L. A. Parney, Dorothy Robinson and two children narrowly escaped death when their house was picked up by the wind and tumbled along the ground for about forty yards, when it collapsed. The occupants were badly shaken up.

Mary Watson, who was driving home with Mr. and Mrs. Oberle, received severe cuts on the head and knee when about fifty bricks fell from the chimney of J. Beaton's house, where they had gone for shelter from the storm.

Two men working on Frank Grigg's farm were undressing for bed in a sleeping shack when it was lifted and carried by the wind, burst and precipated the men head first in the mud.

Two of Jas. Coulter's sons were sleeping in a bunkhouse. It was shaking violently. They made for the house and just as they left it the bunkhouse was carried away. His daughter, Margaret, received a gash in the leg from falling glass when a window of the house blew in. Several stitches were required to close the wound.

Business Concerns Damaged.

The Rosetown Machine & Auto Co., Ltd., had a section taken off the building. The wreckage was carried for about a hundred yards when it crashed into a telephone pole and then on the roof of the Grain Growers' elevator, where it did much damage to the roof and fixtures. The Rosetown Hotel roof was also blown off and a big section of it fell on Frank Kennedy's livery barn, causing a complete wreck of the new second storey. Pandemonium reigned in the upper storey of the hotel and there was a frantic rush downstairs for safety. Rain poured in and comforters and other bedding were used to keep the water from getting down to the second floor. In this the efforts were successful, but the heavy rain on Sunday afternoon got through to a considerable extent. The whole top storey will have to be re-plastered and decorated and quite a portion of the second storey as well. A gang of carpenters were at work on the roof on Sunday.

The front of the blacksmith shop owned by Scobie Bros., was blown in.

Three elevators are minus their driveways.

Many small buildings were blown down, including Wm. Gilroy's bus shed and private garages owned by B. L. Colwell and Yuill & Smith.

Plate Glass Windows Broken.

The large plate glass window of the Union Bank was blown in, also one in Graham Bros.' hardware store. The Paris Cafe sign blew down and smashed the four windows.

Storm Hits Hardest North and West.

From reports received throughout the district the worst of the storm was north and west. In this district many barns and houses were blown down, while grainaries and other outbuildings completely demolished are too numerous to mention.

C. A. Arthur lost his large new barn, while barns belonging to E. Jones, Edmund Allard, D. P. Kerr, A. Shannon, A. Helm, Robt. Cowan, H. R. Powell, Hare Bros., Russell Torry, A. G. Hayyard, F. Goddard, Geo. Harris, W. H. Niccols, Mrs. Davis, R. Foster, L. L. Parney, Geo. Martin, N. McVie, L. L. Parney, Geo. Brown, J. Machan, W. W. Walker, Z. Jerome, Camberley and Bexfield School barns, the houses and barns of F. Paquette, Z. L. Woods, L. Parney, and Wm. Holmes and probably a number of others were entirely demolished. Few barns left standing but what had their roofs blown off or other damage. In some cases stock was killed or crippled.

There are but a few farmers who did not lose one or more granaries and other small buildings.

Windmills everywhere and pumps and piping were drawn from many wells.

Many separators were thrown over on their sides and farm machinery tangled up here and there.

Hail fell in various districts and in the north western district came heavily and cut the crops to the ground in a wide area, leaving the fields with the appearance of summerfallow.

Miles of telephone lines art out of order and it will be several weeks before repairing is completed.

The Rosetown electric light wires were also taken down in the blast, causing most of the town to be in darkness.

Much damage was done to two of the buildings at the fair grounds, one of them being dashed into the other.

Damages in town would not exceed $20,000, but in the country it will run into many thousands.

Regulations Respecting the Grading and Marking of Eggs.

The "Regulations Respecting the Grading and Marking of Eggs" effective July 7th, are a further evidence of the unique position Canada has taken in poultry work. The new regulations extend the standardization of eggs to those intended for domestic consumption. No other country has as yet attempted to take such a step.

The original regulations covered export, import and inter-provincial shipments, but it is now provided that every case or container of eggs shipped or delivered either on consignment or bought for re-sale will have to be marked on both ends with the name and the class of egg contained therein. Provision is made that any producer or other person dealing in eggs may delegate his right to candle and grade to the first wholesaler or packer to whom the eggs are shipped or delivered, in which case cases or containers must be marked with the words "Ungraded Eggs for Shipment Only". This regulation will not apply to shipments or deliveries direct from producer to consumer. An allowance is made of six and one-half (6½) per cent. below grade stated apart from breakage. In the event of any complaint as to grade this must be made to the vendor within twenty-four hours of the receipt of the eggs after which time the liability as to the eggs being below grade will rest upon the person on whom the eggs are found.

Consumers will be particularly interested in the regulations which read as follow :—"Every case or container of eggs that is exposed, displayed or offered for sale by any person selling or delivering eggs direct to consumers in a public place or manner shall be marked, labelled, tagged or accompanied in conspicuous letters with the name of the class and grade of eggs contained therein". "No person shall ship eggs or cause eggs to be shipped or delivered or displayed for sale in cases or containers which are marked or labelled or tagged with the name of any class or grade specified in these regulations unless the quality and weight of the eggs contained therein is equal to or better than such class and grade", and "No person shall buy for sale or re-sale or expose, offer for sale, or sell eggs which are unfit for human food". In other words eggs must be candled and graded according to the Canadian Standards before being offered for sale.

A regulation which is of special import to producers is that which provides for those receiving eggs on consignment or buying eggs for re-sale making returns for these eggs on the basis of the Canadian Standard grades. This particular regulation does not apply where producers market their eggs in less than fifteen dozen lots in any one day.

The egg regulations which are made under the provisions of the Live Stock and Live Stock Products Act now form what is perhaps the most complete and comprehensive legislation covering any particular food product. Eggs moving for export, inter-provincial shipment, imports, and eggs for domestic consumption are now covered by these regulations. The standards for eggs upon which all this work is based cover both the weight of the egg and the interior quality. The application of these standards to export shipments has given Canadian eggs an enviable reputation on the British Market and the extension of the regulations to eggs moving into domestic consumption in Canada will be welcomed by all handlers of eggs from producer to consumer.

SEED DRILL AND PLOW

How to Properly Care for These Useful Implements.

Watch the Bearings and Attend to Oiling—Cover the Plow's Bright Parts With Thick Oil or Grease—How to Tell the Rusiels of Grain in a Bin.—"Holding Up" Mill.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The seed drill shows the result of neglect in a way so impressively as to deter the owner or operator from abusing this machine to the same extent as he may practice with the plow or harrow. A warped seed box, or rusty and clogged grain runs, leave tell tale evidence over the field that even makes the neglectful man repent. With many moving parts, the drill requires frequent careful oiling. Dust and double disc drills have many more moving parts than the shoe or hoe type of drill, and with the disc bearings subjected to dust and sand considerable trouble will develop if there is any neglect to keep the bearings properly adjusted and oiled. When once the bearings become worn, it is impossible for the disc to function properly and renewal of the parts that have become worn is the only remedy, if the drill is to give best service. All bearings should receive attention and be kept smooth and free from grit. This is best done by a frequent application of light mineral oil. The grain drill bearings are not the easiest to get at; a long flexible stem oil can is generally the most useful type of oiler.

Keep the Oil Can Constantly at Hand.

An oil can should always be with the seed drill. The large wheels turning slowly may not need oiling more than once each half day, but the discs may turn 15,000 times in a day under considerable pressure, hence the need of frequent oiling. The seed box mechanism turning slowly can generally be well served by oiling twice a day. The grain drill should not be exposed to the weather when not in use. A canvas cover sufficiently large to fully protect the grain box should go with this machine for use over night or idle periods if it is not desired to move the drill back to its proper storage in the implement shed until the close of the seeding season. The matter of keeping bolts tight and everything in adjustment is just as important with this machine as with any other. If the drill gets proper care, it will last the lifetime of the operator, and the original cost of paint will carry it through.

When the plow is not in use, its bright surfaces should be protected by a layer of thick mineral oil or grease. Heavy machine oil or good axle grease rubbed over the mould board, share, coulter and jointer points will save a plow from the ravages of rust. The rusting of one winter period may injure a plow more than a long season's service in the field. Rusty plows lose a lot of time in the spring through delay caused by hasts to clear and scrape a mould board that will not scour. All bearings and bolts should be kept tight, the points of share, coulter and skimmer sharp and of proper shape. The plow wheel and axle should be kept well lubricated and packed in such a way as will prevent sand reaching the wearing surface of wheel hub or axle. The small wheel of a plow will turn 40,000 times in a day plowing two acres. If the wheel is to last and do good service, the axle should get a little heavy oil every hour. As soon as bolder should be attached to every plow so that the oil can simply will always be at hand and screeching prevented by its timely use.

Watch the Plow Point.

If the plow point becomes worn the inclination of the mouldboard is changed; the plow then does not do the work it should. The work becomes heavier on both the horses and the plowman, and poorer work is done. The point of the share wears nearly as quickly as does the point. With the dulling of the heel the plow will wing over to the land and require more exertion on the part of both man and team. Keep the plowshare sharp and in proper form. A coat of paint applied to the handles, team and all other parts that do not come in direct contact with the oil will do much to keep up appearances and prevent weathering.

MISTAKEN SIGNS.

That reminds us of the landsman who shipped before the mast on a big schooner (of the sailing variety), being placed on watch the first night at sea.

"Somethin' to starboard," he sang out, after a couple of hours in the bow, as the red, green and white lights of a steamer approached.

"How far?" came back from the bridge.

"A couple of blocks."

"What is it?"

"Ain't sure," was the reply, "but think it's a drug store."

Their trim lines and their tastefully arranged trimmings bespeak a very popular vogue for hats of this type this season.

For right down hard wear, such as you will give a hat on a motor trip or a train trip, you will find that these hats stand up.

Following the styles of earlier 1923 days, brims continue to droop, crowns are high, while shapes run from medium to small. Beautiful silk linings add greatly to the well-groomed appearance of these hats.

Grey, Beige, Kit-Fox, Sand and Tans are leading shades.

Our Styles in Cotton Night Gowns Are Made Expressly for Women of Good Taste who know Value

Style, Workmanship and Quality are Essential Factors in Making Cotton Gowns

The three must go hand in hand, as "style" alone will not command your approval, exacting "workmanship" will see that feminine hand-touch called style is not invitingly "set" by means of material, which is always desirable, must be supported by the other two. Notice how beautifully our gowns combine all three essentials. At present we are showing a wide range for your immediate inspection. Prices from 89c. up.

MOULDY SWEET CLOVER

May Cause Disease or Death to Live Stock.

Symptoms of the Trouble—Cattle May Bleed to Death—Preventing the Mould—Good Sweet Clover Harmless.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Reports of serious sickness occurring amongst the cattle being fed upon sweet clover have been received at the Veterinary College. The disease which is now frequently spoken of as "sweet clover disease," or "sweet clover poisoning," made its first appearance, as far as is known during the winter of 1921-22.

The Symptoms of the Disease.

The presence of large and small swellings in different parts of the body is usually the first thing which attracts attention. These swellings are generally located along the back, over the shoulder joints or between the thighs. They vary much in shape and size and may form quite slowly or with marked rapidity. They are rarely painful, and when opened are found to contain either blood or a watery yellow fluid. The affected animal does not appear to be very sick and either stands or lies in the accustomed way. Food may be taken in small quantities, but the appetite is not good. The outer part of the eye is very pale, so also is the lining membrance of the nose. The swellings which are so characteristic of the disease are due to an escape of blood from the vessels. The small arteries and veins have become weakened by the disease so that rupture is made easy.

In another form of the disease the blood loses its power of clotting so that animals may bleed to death after giving birth to their calves. In one instance a farmer had branded his cattle by clipping a strip of skin from the border of each ear. All of the animals would have bled to death had not the hemorrhage been stopped by ligatures.

Damaged Sweet Clover Dangerous.

In all the cases investigated the sick animals had been fed sweet clover hay or ensilage which had been damaged by excessive heating or moulding. Sometimes the change produced in the hay has been so slight that the farmer has either not seen it or has thought it to be of no consequence. It is frequently difficult to make the owner believe that such slightly damaged food is responsible for the serious disease of his animals.

The Prevention of Mould.

Whether the mould which is so generally found in the damaged feed is the ultimate cause of the disease is not a matter of great importance. Its presence is a danger signal which must be heeded. It can be said with certainty that if the hay shows no mould in the mow, and the ensilage no mould in the silo, that either can be fed with safety. How then can the mould be prevented? For the most satisfactory methods of cultivating and harvesting the reader is referred to Bulletin 296 of the Ontario Agricultural College. Apart from the moulding which may occur in the field due to damp weather, or in the mow due to insufficient curing, there is another way which must be considered. It is the development of mould due to the moist air rising through the ceiling of the cattle stable below and settling out on the hay in the mow. This, I feel sure, has been the cause of mouldy hay in several cases. It must be prevented by either a tight ceiling or putting a straw bottom in the mow. Common salt seems to be of real value in checking the growth of moulds in the hay now. From fifty to one hundred pounds is required for each ton, and this must be sprinkled uniformly through the hay while it is being spread in the mow.

Good Sweet Clover Harmless.

Many experiments have been conducted in the feeding of samples of good and bad sweet clover to calves and rabbits. The animals receiving the damaged food almost always became ill and died. In no case has there been any sickness in the animals fed upon good sweet clover hay or ensilage. In one experiment two calves were fed an exclusive diet of good sweet clover ensilage over a period of six weeks and both remained well. Rabbits have been fed on samples of bad sweet clover hay which were taken from the same hay now. Those which received the good hay lived while those which received the bad died.

In Conclusion.

The use of sweet clover for hay is risky, because if moulds and other organisms grow in the hay it may become a highly poisonous food.

The ten cent instrument, so frequently peddled at the country fairs, which is supposed to serve half a dozen purposes from opening tin cans to drawing a three inch screw, rarely does more than two things well, and that is all that should be expected for the money. Sweet clover has proved to be an excellent soil-builder, a good ensilage crop, and to make valuable pasture. Why endanger the reputation of a useful plant by requiring it to accomplish that which it was apparently not intended.—Frank W. Scofield, D.V. Sc., Ont. Veterinary College, Guelph.

The Horse Remains.

It is true that the horse will never again occupy the same position in the world's economies as he did in the past. Motive power has changed rapidly in the past century and it is well that it has, for transportation improvement has been the greatest known stimulant to civilization. It has annihilated distance, and brought peoples together and in doing this it is bringing about a greater human understanding.

The modern method of selling

by Long Distance

The history of material progress is based on substituting automatic machinery for human labor, wherever possible.

So merchants in the world have ready to their hands such an extraordinary aid to selling sales service as afforded by the Long Distance lines that unite Canada and the United States.

"Men differ," said Charles Martin, the great scientist, "less in their intelligence than in their determination to use the powers they have."

Are you denying the fullest advantage from Long Distance service? We can unfold to you a report on how Long Distance is being used successfully in almost any business to increase sales.

Mrs. McMahon Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition after the birth of my baby boy. I had terrible pains and backache, and was tired and weak, not fit to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I received your little book and read it, and gave up taking the medicine I had and began taking the Vegetable Compound. I feel much better now and am not ashamed to tell what has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do." — Mrs. R. McMAHON, 153 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sick, ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women." G

A clock is the only worker that keeps on working after it has struck.

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator will drive worms from the system without injury to the child, because its action, while fully effective, is mild.

He (with great dignity)—Then this is absolutely final?

Co-ed—Absolutely. Shall I return your letters?

He—Yes, please. I think they're good enough to use again.

Sores Flee Before It.—There are many who have been afflicted with sores and have overcome them away with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. All similarly troubled would lose no time in applying this splendid remedy, as there is nothing like it to be had. It is cheap, but its power is in no way expressed by its low price.

"Let me see," said the minister, who was filling out the marriage certificate, and had forgotten the date, "this is the fifth, is it not?"

"No, sir," said the bride, with some indignation, "this is only my third."

The Oil of the People.—Many oils have come and gone, but Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil continues to maintain its position and increase its sphere of usefulness each year. Its sterling qualities have brought it to the front and kept it there, and it can truly be called the oil of the people. Thousands have benefited by it and would use no other preparation.

"Yes," said the defendant in a criminal case, "my lawyer certainly made a strong plea for me. He even wept."

"What was his bill?" asked the other man.

"Well, as nearly as I can figure it out, he charged about $100 a tear."

Internal parasites in the shape of worms in the stomach and bowels of children sap their vitality and retard physical development. They keep the child in a constant state of unrest and, if not attended to, endanger life. The child can be spared much suffering and the mother much anxiety by using a reliable worm remedy, such as Mother's Worm Powders, which are sure death to worms.

A clergyman united in matrimony two of his parishioners, a stalwart woman and a small, weak man, not without inward misgivings as to the future happiness of the ill-assorted pair.

Nearly a year later the woman arrived at the parsonage in a state of fury. "You married us about ten months ago," she announced. "Well, my husband's escaped. What are you going to do about it?"

Asthma No Longer Dreaded. The dread of renewed attacks from asthma has no hold upon those who have learned to rely upon Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. So safe do they feel that complete reliance is placed on this true specific with the certainty that it will always do all that its makers claim. If you have not yet learned how safe you are with this preparation at hand get it to-day and know for yourself.

I have an elderly uncle who is known to be most penurious and also is not fond of children. So when he comes to call I warn my young son, Tommy, to be careful of his behavior.

The last time he came Tom behaved himself beautifully and I was most proud of him. Just as uncle left he handed Tommy fifty cents.

The child took the coin and stood looking at his uncle, saying nothing.

"Why, Tom," I said, "What do you say to your uncle?"

"Goodness," Tom answered, "I'm too surprised to say anything."

Bushels of Grain in Bins.

To compute the number of bushels in bins multiply the length by width and depth, and divide the number obtained by 1¼. This gives the number of bushels.

If figuring on car corn, divide by 2½ instead of 1¼ as for small grain or shelled corn.

A common farm wagon box, 10 feet long and 2 feet wide, will hold about 2 bushels of grain for every inch in depth, that is, a box 14 inches deep will hold approximately 56 bushels.

When Cow "Holds Up" Milk.

The suppression of secretion of milk is the reflex result of irritation of the nervous system. Shock, chill, fright, pain, rough milking, sensitive teats, weaning of a calf, etc., are some of the causes. If possible have the cow milked by a woman. Try the effects of placing a young calf at her head before starting to milk. Massage the udder gently for a few minutes before milking. If the teats are tender apply some melted lard each evening. An old-fashioned treatment is to lay a sack of grain on the cow's loins at milking time. This is expected to detract her attention so that she will "hold up her milk." We cannot vouch for the efficiency of this plan as we have not tried it in practice. It is stubborn cases it is best to let a calf nurse.

When cutting in the woodlot, think twenty years ahead.

ROUP AND CHICKEN POX

These Contagious Diseases of Poultry May Be Cured.

Prompt Treatment Will Save the Birds—Can be Cured in Ten to Twenty Days.—Communicable to Men or Other Animals.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

In the last few years the treatment of disease among poultry has received much study and many of the older ideas have been revised. Birds respond well to proper medicinal and hygienic treatment; in fact in many cases they show remarkable powers of reserve and resistance, thus comparing very favorably with other domesticated animals. The idea that it is useless to try and treat a sick fowl is erroneous.

Last winter the Ontario Veterinary College carried out a number of experiments regarding the treatment and cure of roup. These tests established the fact that in many cases the disease could be controlled and the birds returned to usefulness in from 10 to 20 days.

Roup a Contagious Disease.

Roup is a contagious disease that attacks the mouth, nasal passages, and eyes of fowl. The causative agent or germ has not yet been certainly demonstrated. The disease spreads rapidly through the flock, being favored by damp, cold, dark quarters, and for this reason roup is most prevalent during the winter months. The lesions in the mouth take the form of masses of yellow cheesy material which has a characteristic offensive odor. The nasal chambers and sinuses become plugged with exudates so that the bird is forced to breathe through the mouth, hence the bill remains open and breathing is often difficult. The eyes become inflamed and filled with a liquid discharge which later becomes thick and cheesy and completely fills the eye cavity. Often the cheek side of the head is swollen and when both eyes are involved the bird is blind.

Treatment of the Disease.

The sick birds must be removed from the flock and placed in dry, light and moderately warm quarters. It is useless to try and carry out any treatment unless this is done. Give opening medicine such as Epsom salts dissolved in the drinking water, about a quarter of a pound for every twenty-five birds; give for one day and repeat in a week. Catch each bird and proceed as follows: Remove all cheesy material from mouth and throat using a small pair of forceps or tweezers, scrape the core plainly well. Don't be afraid of a little blood; but be sure and get down to healthy tissue. Dress mouth with a three per cent. solution of iodine; swab out well. If bird swallows a little of the solution it will do no harm. The nasal lesions should be treated by injecting a warm solution of boracic acid, about one teaspoonful to a teacup of water. Use a small syringe to force solution up nostrils. Use eye should we treated with the formole solution. Wash out the eyes well and open up the lids if they are closed tight. Sometimes the whole eye cavity is filled with a thick cheesy material; remove this by pressure and the aid of the forceps. In severe eye cases a few drops of iodine solution may be used without ill effects. These eye lesions are often difficult to treat.

The above treatment is somewhat drastic and will take a little time, say three minutes for each bird, but if followed out faithfully and given a trial in suitable quarters it will be found to clear up most cases of roup, in two or three treatments which should be given every other day. It has been found that the average case of roup will clear up in about ten days and that from thereafter the birds will commence laying again. Birds that have recovered from roup do not take the disease again.

Chicken Pox May Develop.

Another condition which may appear along with roup, or as an independent disease, is the so called chicken pox, in which scabs and sores form on the wattles, combs and eyelids. The lesions are often about the size of a five cent piece and commence as small light raised areas that exude a thin discharge and soon become converted into crust like scabs. This condition is quite contagious and requires prompt treatment to control. Catch the bird, and with a small rather dull knife scrape off the lesions until healthy tissue is reached. Don't be afraid of blood. Scrape well, then dress with iodine solution rubbed in well over entire head and wattles. Three or four treatments every other day will clean up most cases. Give birds opening medicine and remove from flock during treatment. Birds that recover from chicken pox are immune from further attacks. It is most essential to remove any ailing birds from the flock and it should be remembered that the discharges from the lesions carry infection so that all soiled litter and dead birds should be burnt.

These Diseases Spread by Contact.

Roup and chicken pox spread from bird to bird by actual contact. Often the first case is introduced into a flock by the purchase of birds from infected premises or by handling of birds by a person who has recently been in contact with affected birds, or on the shoes or clothing. The best way to prevent roup is to prescribe clean quarters in poultry runs and houses; to watch the flock carefully and at once remove and treat sick birds. It is advisable that the person who treats the sick fowls should recognize that he is dealing with a very contagious disease and should change outer clothing, clean boots and wash hands thoroughly before and after visiting the flock, especially young chicks. Neither roup or chicken pox are communicable to man or any other animal.

Austrian Has Strange Power

His name is Rafael Scherman; he is called "the Man with the X-ray Eyes," and he is said to be the most remarkable phenomenon of the day. He is Sherlock Holmes in real life, except that he possesses powers that Holmes never approached. We do not know how simple, how inevitable indeed did Sherlock Holmes' feats in reasoning become once he had explained the separate steps. "Elementary, my dear Watson," he used to say. But Scherman does not know how he does it. He regards his power of mind reading as a Divine gift, and says that a heavy penalty will be laid upon him in the future if he does not use it wisely. He is now a sort of private consulting detective in Vienna. When the rich come to him for advice he charges a fee, but the poor are equally welcome to his services. In a nutshell this man's uncanny gift consists of his ability to look at a person's handwriting and tell what the thoughts are passing in the writer's mind, and to describe his appearance and relate his past history. It seems incredible, but that it is so is attested by well-known Austrian and Hungarian publicists and scientists.

Charles Benedek, sounded for by the New York World as a Hungarian journalist and magazine writer of the first rank, tells about Scherman in words that will perhaps get seem unbelievable to persons who have read Conan Doyle's intimate little chats about the fairies. His latest triumph was the discovery of the thief of forty million kroners from a Vienna bank. It appears that a man named Goldenwasser opened an account with the bank for this sum of money and later on withdrew it. By accident it was discovered that the cashier's duplicate receipt for the money was missing. A thorough search was made. The money had been drawn out of the bank, but that it had ever been paid in was uncertain. An examination of the ledger showed an acknowledgement of the amount in the most regular form. It was initialled by one of the women clerks, a trusted employe. When she was questioned she denied that the initials were hers, though they bore a strong superficial resemblance to them. However, the police were on the point of placing her under arrest when Scherman arrived.

He is described as a small, bearded man, of apparently Jewish origin. He was shown the letter in which the alleged Goldenwasser had instructed the bank to transfer his deposit to another bank, and also the initials in the ledger. Then he seemed to concentrate himself mentally to a pitch that was unpleasant to behold. His face twitched and became convulsed, perspiration rolled from his brow. His closed his eyes and trembled. Then he said that the woman had nothing to do with the crime. The criminal was a man, whom he proceeded to describe. He also described the man's confederate, and said that at that moment the parents of the criminal were wringing their hands in distress, because they knew what their son had done and that he was leaving the country that night. They talked of suicide, and in order to save them there must be quick action. He said that the criminal was at the moment in the bank and demanded that all the clerks be summoned.

The clerks were oblized to pass before him one by one, and each had to write down his name and the words "I had nothing to do with the forty millions." Suddenly Scherman sprange to his feet and pointing to a clerk who had just risked himself "Louis Neumann" cried, "You are the forger. Your name is not Louis Neumann, it is Ludwig Neumann. You have a passport in your pocket in the name of Louis Nauheim, and you want to go to France." The young man collapsed, and when he came to admitted that Scherman had been right in every particular. In all the cases which Schermann has solved confessions were necessary. He does not hustle like an ordinary, detective gathering clues that may be presented in the form of evidence at trials. He knows exactly what has happened. He can visualize a crime in every detail, but if the criminal has covered up his tracks Scherman's testimony would not be sufficient to convict him in a court. He must have confessions, and it is by astounding the criminal with his uncanny knowledge that he be able to extort confessions in most cases.

One of his most remarkable cases was that of Frau Buchmann, who was accused of having poisoned her husband. Scherman asked to look at the writing. Immediately he announced that the woman was guilty. The public prosecutor who had asked the question was embarrassed, and had to explain that the letter was written three years ago, before the woman had become Frau Buchmann. Scherman insisted that at the time the woman had written the letter she had murdered her husband. Investigation proved that he was right, that she had poisoned two husbands. He was able to tell from the writing whether the woman would confess. Even if paper upon which there is no writing is presented to him after having been handled by another, he is able to tell the mood of the person who sat at the time, what he had been doing and what he was going to do next. At least that's what they say.

Painting a Liner.

It is estimated that entirely to paint the top side of a big transatlantic liner from water-line to rail calls for enough paint to cover more than an acre of surface.

Mrs. McMahon Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition after the birth of my baby boy. I had terrible pains and backache, and I was tired and worn out, so it to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I read your little book and read it, and gave up taking the medicine I had and began taking the Vegetable Compound. I feel much better now and am not ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do." Mrs. W. R. McMAHON, 153 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sick, ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

In the last few years the treatment of disease among poultry on record much study and many of the older ideas have been revised. Birds respond well to proper medicinal and hygienic treatment; in fact in many cases they show remarkable powers of reserve and resistance, thus comparing very favorably with other domesticated animals. The idea that it is useless to try and treat a sick fowl is erroneous.

Last winter the Ontario Veterinary College carried out a number of experiments regarding the treatment and cure of roup. These tests established the fact that in many cases the disease could be controlled and the birds returned to usefulness in from 10 to 20 days.

Roup a Contagious Disease.

Roup is a contagious disease that attacks the mouth, nasal passages and eyes of fowl. The causative agent or germ has not yet been satisfactorily demonstrated. The disease spreads rapidly through the flock, being favored by damp, cold, unsanitary quarters, and for this reason roup is most prevalent during the winter months. The lesions in the mouth take the form of masses of yellow cheesy material which has a characteristic offensive odor. The head chambers and nostrils become plugged with exudates so that one bird is forced to breathe through the mouth, hence the bill remains open and breathing is often difficult. The eyes become inflamed and filled with a liquid discharge which later becomes thick and cheesy and completely fills the eye cavity. Often the whole side of the head is swollen and when both eyes are involved the bird is blind.

Treatment of the Disease.

The sick birds must be removed from the flock and placed in dry, light and moderately warm quarters. It is useless to try and carry out any treatment unless this is done. Give tempting medicines such as bitters and scratch feed in the drinking water, about a quarter of a pound to every twenty-five birds; give for one day and repeat in a week. Catch each bird and proceed as follows: Remove all cheesy material from mouth and throat using a small pair of forceps or tweezers, scrape the sore places well. Don't be afraid of a little blood, but be sure and get down to healthy tissue. Dress mouth with a three per cent. solution of iodine; wash out well. If bird swallows a little of the solution it will do no harm. The nasal lesions should be treated by injecting a warm solution of boracic acid, about one teaspoonful to a teacup of water. Use a small syringe to force solution up nostrils. The eyes should be treated with the boracic solution. Wash out the eyes well and open up the lids if they are stuck together. Sometimes the whole eye cavity is filled with a thick cheesy material; remove this by pressure and the aid of the forceps. In severe cases a few drops of iodine solution may be used without ill effects. These eye lesions are often difficult to treat.

The above treatment is somewhat drastic and will take a little time, say three minutes for each bird, but if followed out faithfully and given a trial in suitable quarters it will be found to cure up most cases of roup, in two or three treatments which should be given every other day. It has been found that the average case of roup will clear up in about ten days and that soon thereafter the birds will commence laying again. Birds that have recovered from roup do not take the disease again.

Chicken Pox May Develop.

Another condition which may appear along with roup, or as an independent disease, is the so called chicken pox, in which scabs and scabs form on the wattles, combs and eyelids. The lesions are often about the size of a five cent piece and commence as small light raised areas that exude a thin discharge and soon become converted into crust like scabs. This condition is quite contagious and requires prompt treatment to control. Catch the bird, and with a small tablespoon dull knife scrape off the lesions until healthy tissue is reached. Don't be afraid of blood. Scrape well, then dress with iodine solution rubbed in well over entire head and wattles. Three or four treatments every other day will clear up most cases. Give birds opening medicine and remove from flock during treatment. Birds that recover from chicken pox are immune from further attacks. It is most essential to remove any ailing birds from the flock and it should be remembered that the discharges from the lesions carry infection so that all soiled litter and dead birds should be burnt.

These Diseases Spread by Contact.

Roup and chicken pox spread from bird to bird by actual contact. Often the first case is introduced into a flock by the purchase of birds from infected premises or by handling of birds by a person who has recently been in contact with affected birds, or on the shoes or clothing. The best way to prevent roup is to preserve cleanliness in poultry runs and houses; to watch the flock carefully and at early onsets and treat sick birds. It is advisable that the person who treats the sick fowls should recognize that he is dealing with a very contagious disease and should change outer clothing, clean boots and wash hands thoroughly before going among the flock, especially young chicks. Neither roup or chicken pox are communicable to man or any other animal.

Austrian Has Strange Power

His name is Rafael Schermann; he is called "the Man with the X-ray Eyes," and he is said to be the most remarkable phenomenon of the day. He is Sherlock Holmes in real life, except that he possesses powers that Holmes never approached. We all know how simple, how inevitable indeed did Sherlock Holmes' feats in reasoning become once he had explained the separate steps. "Elementary, my dear Watson," he used to say. But Schermann does not know how he does it. He regards his power of mind reading as a Divine gift, and says that a heavy penalty will be laid upon him in the future if he does not use it wisely. He is now a sort of private consulting detective in Vienna. When the rich come to him for advice he charges a fee, but the poor are equally welcome to his services. In a nutshell this man's uncanny gift consists of his ability to look at a person's handwriting and tell what thoughts are passing in the writer's mind, and to describe his appearance and relate his past history. It seems incredible, but that it is so is attested by well-known Austrian and Hungarian publicists and scientists. Charles Benedek, vouched for by the New York World as a Hungarian journalist and magazine writer of the first rank, tells about Schermann in words that will perhaps set seem unbelievable to persons who have read Conan Doyle's intimate little chats about the fairies. His latest triumph was the discovery of the thief of forty million kronen from a Vienna bank. It appears that a man named Goldenwasser opened an account with the bank for this sum of money and later on withdrew it. By accident it was discovered that the cashier's duplicate receipt for the money was missing. A thorough search was made. The money had been drawn out of the bank, but that it had ever been paid in was uncertain. An examination of the ledger showed an acknowledgment of the amount in the most regular form. It was initialed by one of the women clerks, a trusted employe. When she was questioned she denied that the initials were hers, though they bore a strong superficial resemblance to them. However, the police were on the point of placing her under arrest when Schermann arrived.

He is described as a small, bearded man, of apparently Jewish origin. He was shown the letter in which the alleged Goldenwasser had instructed the bank to transfer his deposit to another bank, and also the initials in the ledger. Then he seemed to concentrate himself mentally to a pitch that was unpleasant to behold. His face twitched and became convulsed, perspiration rolled from his brow. He closed his eyes and trembled. Then he said that the woman had nothing to do with the crime. The criminal was a man, whom he proceeded to describe. He also described the man's confederate, and said that at that moment the parents of the criminal were wringing their hands in distress, because they knew what their son had done and that he was leaving the country that night. They talked of suicide, and in order to save them there must be quick action. He said that the criminal was at the moment in the bank and demanded that all the clerks be summoned.

The clerks were obliged to pass before him one by one, and each had to write down his name and the words "I had nothing to do with the forty millions." Suddenly Schermann sprang to his feet at one point-ing to a clerk who had just signed himself "Louis Neumann" cried, "You are the forger. Your name is not Louis Neumann, it is Ludwig Neumann. You have a passport in your pocket in the name of Louis Nauheim, and you want to go to France." The young man collapsed, and after some time admitted that Schermann had been right in every particular. In all the cases which Schermann has solved confessions were necessary. He does not hustle round like an ordinary detective gathering clues that may be presented in the form of evidence at trials. He knows exactly what has happened. He can visualize a crime in every detail, but if the criminal has covered up his tracks Schermann's testimony will not be sufficient to convict him in a court. He must have confessions, and it is by astounding the criminal with his uncanny knowledge that he is able to extort confessions in most cases.

One of his most remarkable cases was that of Frau Buchmann, who was accused of having poisoned her husband. Scheman asked to look at her handwriting. Immediately he announced that the woman was guilty. The public prosecutor who had asked the question was embarrassed, and had to explain that the letter was written three years ago, before the woman had become Frau Buchmann. Scheman insisted that at the time the woman had written the letter she had murdered her husband. Investigation proved that he was right, that she had poisoned two husbands. He was unable to tell from the writing whether the woman would confess. Even if paper upon which there is a confession is presented to him after having been handled by another, he is able to tell the mood the person was in at the time what he had been doing and what he was going to do next. At least that's what they say.

Painting a Liner.

It is estimated that entirely to paint the top side of a big transatlantic liner from water-line to rail calls for enough paint to cover more than an acre of surface.

THE WOODEN NECKTIE

Sweater Coats, Stocking and Neckties from Spruce Trees.

Wood Cellulose Furnishes the Lustrous Thread—Dyed and Woven Like Silk—Man and the Silk Worm—Chemically These Products Are Much the Same.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

We all wear silken ties, and think or care little of the source of the material from which the tie was made. You may doubt the statement that the tie you are wearing came largely from a poison gas, carbon di-oxide, a compound that is ever present in the air in which we live and breath. Silken ties should be beautiful, since such are born of a remarkable parentage, an invisible compound for mother and a sunbeam for father. If we walk into the spruce forest where the tall trees reach toward the sky, we pause with wonder and ask how did it all happen. We can spend an interesting moment in tracing the development of the fabric.

Much So-Called Silk Comes From Spruce Trees.

The tiny seed of the spruce, nursed by mother earth and noticed in the warmth of the sun, sprouts to live and possess its tiny stem and leaves out to the light and air, out to under that contains the carbon di-oxide from which our tree will draw most of its substance for growth—out to the sunlight that activates the chlorophyll green of the leaves, setting to work the chain of processes that make wood growth. Layer upon layer, the wood cells are added as the tree develops. Every new pair increases the growing capacity of the little tree, doing its part in the transformation of the carbon di-oxide gas to sugar, starch and cellulose, the compounds in wood cell structure.

Wood Cellulose Furnishes the Line Thread.

Wood cellulose is the raw material used by the manufacturers of silk, the basis silk of commerce, to make the silken threads that we all like to touch. The lumber-jack cuts the tree, the pulp-maker by chemical processes reduces the wood to flaky white cellulose. The next is nitration. This is done by treating the cellulose with a mixture of nitric and sulphuric acids in solution, taking care not to overdo the digestion process, and then thoroughly washing the pulp free from the acids used as agents. The nitrated cellulose is then mixed with alcohol and ether, reducing it to the condition of viscous collodion. Next it is filtered carefully and forced through minute orifices in a glass plate and on into a warm bath to form the fine threads solidify. As the threads solidify such are passed on over a roller and into another bath containing a reducing agent known as ammonium sulphide.

Dyed and Woven Like Silk.

Passing on from this bath our silken threads go over heated drums and spindles to be dried and twisted into larger threads. To have the silken threads we must give them color, so into the dye bath they go. This done, over the drums the colored threads pass to dry, by a route that leads to the spools and reels, which in turn operate the knitting or weaving machine, as certain mind-controlled fingers direct. Here, where human control the forces that unite the colored threads into fabrics or articles of wooden apparel such as sweater coats, neckties, and stockings.

Man and the Silk Worm.

What is the connection between artificial silk and natural silk. It is very close, so very close that the expert chemist is frequently called on to decide on samples and determine if the product of man's skill or the industry of that of the silk worm. Man goes to the tree for his raw material, so does the silk worm. Man uses chemical agents and a machine of his own invention; the silk worm can't help it since Nature gave it a body structure and a digestive system that would convert the green leaf of trees to silken cocoon covering threads.

Chemically These Products Much the Same.

Chemically the product of man's endeavor and the silk-worm's work are much the same. Few will know or mind, glancing at your wooden buttings, wooden necktie or wooden sweater coat were made possible by the arts of a man or the green crawler so much loved by the people of the Orient.

Keep the trees growing, boys, that we may never want for silken clothes.—L. Stevenson, Director of Extension, O.A.C., Guelph.

Needful Minerals In Feed.

The common dairy feeds containing the most lime are the legume hays, cowpea, clover, alfalfa and soy bean, that from corn contains the most. Those which contain the most phosphorus are wheat bran, wheat middlings and linseed meal in the order given. None of the concentrates contain as much lime as the legumes do, and no roughage contains as much phosphorus as the concentrates named.

Essential to Milk Cow Dry.

Milking cows dry is essential. When milk is left in the udder after each milking, the glands will gradually slow up on secreting milk and ultimately the cow will cry up. It pays to spend a few extra minutes stripping the udder to make certain that all the milk has been extracted.

Beets Desirable for Cows.

Mangels or roots make a very desirable food for dairy cows. The cultivation of roots is the labor incurred in growing, harvesting and storing them.

USEFULNESS OF COVER CROPS.

Cover crops in an orchard are an essential part of good orchard practice. As the maintenance of humus or organic matter in the soil is necessary to retain proper physical condition, and as manure is becoming more difficult to obtain, and can be used probably to better advantage on other parts of the farm, cover crops fill a very useful purpose in this direction alone. Crops that will make a good growth serve to increase the humus in the soil, but by selecting a leguminous crop such as clover, vetch or pea, not only may humus be added, but also it may be possible to increase the nitrogen content of the soil, thus obtaining a two-fold advantage from the cover crop.

In the colder part of the country, where well ripened wood of the tree is necessary to ensure a chance of good winterige, it is considered necessary to utilize a cover crop in conjunction with the clean cultivation system. For this purpose the crop is sown about June 30th, allowed to grow all summer and fall, and ploughed under the following spring. The cover crop will thus draw upon the soil for moisture and food at a time when the tree should be ripening its wood, and will also serve as a means for holding snow, thus assisting in protecting the roots of the trees from severe conditions.

The use of cover crops in connection with bush fruit plantations has not been developed to any appreciable extent, but with the growing scarcity of manure there seems to be no reason why a combination of fertilizers and cover crops could not be adopted as good practice on areas where raspberries, currants, and gooseberries are being grown at proper distances. Such a combination offers many advantages, where cost of regularly applying manure is becomine prohibitive.

Following are some of the more important crops used for this purpose: Leguminous: red clover, crimson clover, summer vetch, field pea; non-leguminous; buckwheat, rape.

MILKING IN HOLLAND.

Milkers Carefully Trained to be Clean, Kind and Tactful.

In Denmark and Holland the milker starts his future profession at the age of 12 or 14 years. He then enjoys the privilege of being allowed to milk such cows as are in the drying off period, although it is done under the severe supervision of his father, who has charge of the cow or cows and spoil the animal. I remember well my first lessons in milking on our Holland farm, and one point I was of being allowed to milk. Before jumping on, the stool with my bucket and pail, Mr. Holland stuck six or some 2½ to 3 feet above the ground (able floor) the cow was given a little warning of my coming by a couple of encouraging words, then the bucket was put between the knees, the bottom of the bucket stools are wooden shoes. The first time I was milked out, and it was one of the teats milked out empty. Then the other I was inclined to take one of the back teats. This was not allowed because it might result in an unnatural development and increased stimulation of one of the quarters. The two front teats had to be empty before going over to the back teats. These were the preliminary instructions. After being able to milk several drying off cows I was allowed to follow with the second cows. This was another important step, and I believe it cost me still more sweat than the first lessons, for now I had to milk rather quickly and with the full hand, as stripping of the teats between thumb and forefinger was never allowed on our farm. Aside from the rather quick milking, we were not allowed to make strippers of our cows. Still these was a third class, and that was the milking of fresh cows and heifers. My father was always milking these, because he had the idea that nobody else but himself could break them. The milking of the fresh cows, thrice a day, would such a hard job, but to milk three stubborn heifers and never lose one's temper was a difficult job. Instead of milking first two the front quarters empty and afterwards the rear quarters, with the heifer a front and a rear quarter were first milked and afterwards the other two opposite quarters. This was done for the purpose of obtaining an equal development of all four quarters in the future cow.

We were then called fully skilled in the milking science, but let me add that we had to receive a good many side instructions, such as not to talk or be noisy during milking, never to be rough to any animal, never to lose one's temper, to milk always one's own cow and in the same order and at the same hours, and so forth.

The best method of posing for females to milk is to be quick and productive, and the way to do this is to keep the milk flow of every cattle thereon.

Something always is hurt work, not because the ground is generally weedy, but because the cow is not at the right place or is dull and rustic. Here a sharp hoof makes the work more easy.

HAVE YOU ANY MONEY IN THE BANK?
THERE is an old-fashioned theory which some people still cling to—that a bank wants no dealings with them unless they have "lots of money." Such is not the case with this bank; you will be welcomed whether you have $1 or $1,000 to deposit. Open an account with what you feel you can spare now and add to it regularly as "pay day" comes around. It is a comforting feeling to know that you have several hundred dollars put away safely in the bank.

LACROSSE.

Trenton 8, Napanee 2.

In a well played game of lacrosse at the Driving Park, on Tuesday evening, Trenton defeated the local squad by 8-2 in an O.A.L.A. Juvenile game. The visitors have a husky line-up and they are well drilled in the rudiments of the game. The locals had a fair share of the play, but were wild in shooting on goal. The return game will likely be played in Trenton next Monday. Mr. Jack Adams made an excellent referee.

Deseronto at Napanee.

The Deseronto Midgets come to Napanee next Wednesday for the last League game of the season. The locals have only lost one game this season and are right in the running for the leadership of this group and the right to play off with the winners of Group II. This will be the lacrosse event of the season and will no doubt be witnessed by a large crowd. Watch for dodgers announcing the hour.

N. C. I. NEWS.

The number of successful pupils at the recent High School Entrance examination points to a large attendance at the Collegiate Institute next year. The fact that pupils in Collegiate Institutes and High Schools are awarded Lower School standing on the recommendation of the staff will also tend to bring more candidates for Lower School standing to the Collegiate Institute.

In order that classes in the Collegiate Institute may be organized before the school opens, all pupils, both old and new, expecting to attend in September, are requested to send their names to the Principal, Dr. Morden. New pupils are requested also to give their ages and whether the course selected will be matriculation, teacher's or general.

In order that the Middle School work may be properly organized, it is absolutely necessary that pupils intending to commence Middle School work, that is those promoted from Form II., should especially notify the Principal.

WEDDING BELLS.

Williams—Dewey.

A very pretty June wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Dewey, of St. Mary's, on Tuesday, June 26th, the contracting parties being Dr. R. A. Williams, of Toronto, and Miss Hattie J. Dewey, of St. Mary's. Rev. Canon Collins, of Sarnia, assisted by the Rev. A. Farney, of St. Mary's, conducted the ceremony. The bride was prettily gowned in a suit of pearl grey knitted silk, trimmed with mauve, and wore a corsage bouquet of orchids and mauve sweet peas. The visiting friends were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Williams, Toronto; Dr. W. B. Abbot, of Seattle, Wash., uncle of the bride; Rev. and Mrs. Collins and Patsy, of Sarnia, cousins of the bride; Miss Estelle Russell, Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hobbs, Thorndale; Mr. Harold Hunter, St. Mary's; and the bride's brother, H. M. Dewey, Hartford, Conn., U.S.A. Miss Helen Mills, of St. Mary's, played the wedding march. The happy young couple started on their honeymoon on the evening train, and intend staying at Glen Island summer resort on Bay of Quinte, and will be at home to their friends after Sept. 1st, at 336 Palmerston boulevard.

CHEESE IS RISING.

Boards Throughout District Have Been on Upward Trend—Local Market Expected to Follow

Last week was one of those periods which bring joy to the hearts of the cheesemaker, with a steadily rising market and keen demand for cheese. At Brockville about two thousand of the four thousand boxes registered sold on the board at 17¾c., at Madoc the price was 17 13-16c., at Stirling the offerings were sold on the Board at 17⅞c., and at Campbellford 17 11-16c., Napanee 17⅝c., Picton 17 11-16c., and to wind up the week with a grand flourish of skyrockets, which did not hurt the feelings of the cheesemakers of this district any, Belleville Board on Saturday morning hit the high spot with a price of 18¼c.

TOBACCO'S EFFECT TESTED

MEDICAL MEN FIND THAT SMOKING AIDS DIGESTION.

That smoking may be regarded as an aid to digestion was indicated by Dr. J. W. Crane in an address delivered recently to a Western University audience at London, Ont. Dr. Crane said that he had at one time advised his students not to use tobacco, believing it weakened digestion, but tests had shown that the saliva of a smoker digested starch better than that of a non-smoker. Starch is a constituent of many foods.

From another point of view Sir James Cantlie, the renowned British medical authority, also regards tobacco as an aid to digestion. "Tobacco", says Sir James, "has its good effects in digestion, in lessening the effects of worry".

"If any Committee in your community is trying to get up a Chautauqua, and you are not helping, you are guilty of one of the worst sins in the category—that of indifference toward a great public demand".—By "A Plain Country Woman" in Ladies' Home Journal. Napanee Chautauqua dates are August 1st to 7th, inclusive. 28a

ENTERPRISE.

We are having good old fashioned summer weather, hot and dry. The hay crop is the heaviest in years, and is going in the barn in fine condition. —A gloom was cast over our village last Friday, when a wire from Fort William announced the death of Mr. Garnet Cox, a former resident of this village. Mr. Cox was born here and spent his boyhood days here, and was beloved by all. The remains were brought here for burial, and were interred in Centreville cemetery under the Masonic Order of Victoria Lodge of Centreville. LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Mr. Editor.

Will you permit me to draw your readers' attention to the privilege that the citizens of Napanee and the surrounding country are to have extended to them by the forthcoming Chautauqua. We frequently hear the comment that the only disadvantage in living in a small town like Napanee is that we have few or no opportunities of hearing first class music, celebrated lecturers and well staged theatrical performances. It was for the purpose of supplying this need that the Chautauqua was organized. It is not an uncommon occurrence for citizens of our town at great inconvenience to themselves to go to Kingston to hear a good concert or to enjoy an opera or play, and they consider themselves fortunate if they are not out of pocket three or four dollars. By means of the Chautauqua we have brought to our doors eleven different programmes, each of a superior order, and a season ticket admitting any member of a family costs only $2.75. It is not at all unusual to hear the remark that a single programme is worth the amount paid for the whole eleven. Anyone purchasing a season ticket is making a good investment if he does not attend more than one half of the entertainments. It is difficult to estimate the educative value of the annual Chautauqua. There is a refined and intellectual atmosphere which accompanies it which cannot fail to make its influence felt. It should require no argument to convince every public spirited citizen that he owes it to himself, to his family, and the community to encourage the Chautauqua by purchasing one or more season tickets. We each have a duty to perform for it is such an immense undertaking that its success can only be assured through the hearty co-operation of all classes. What more sensible present to some needy friend than a week of intellectual pleasure of the highest order? We are too prone when living in a small town to get into narrow grooves. Here is an opportunity for us to broaden out and enlarge our vision of the real riches of life. May we hope, Mr. Editor, that our friends in the country will join with the townspeople in making this Chautauqua the best ever held in Napanee?

Yours truly,
W. S. HERRINGTON.

AUTO HIT A BULL AND IS OVERTURNED.

A number of people witnessed an accident near Morven on Sunday. A touring car from Picton, en route to Kingston, struck a bull which was crossing the roadway, and the car turned turtle. The roadway had been tarred the day before and sand had not been placed on it. The occupants, three young men, and a young woman escaped with some scratches. The driver would have prevented an accident had he slowed up when he saw the bull crossing the road, but he failed to do this. Motorists must remember that farmers are entitled to a highway over which to drive their cattle, and the latter do not hurry. Several spills have occurred hereabouts recently because of the failure of auto drivers to slow up when cattle and pigs are in the way. Passing motorists helped the Picton people to right their car, which was severely damaged. The young woman was taken to Dr. Mabee's at Odessa, for treatment.

NEWBURGH.

Mr. Clarence Hannah, of Wesley, is stopping at his father-in-law's, Mr. George Quail, convalescing, after a hard struggle for life, following an operation for appendicitis, in the Kingston General Hospital.

Mr. Arch Reid, who had a limb amputated a few months ago, and who was able to get around on crutches, rather overdid the exercise when on a business trip to Kingston, straining the cords of his arms which produced a kind of paralysis and pain which gave his friends some uneasiness. He is now on a fair way to recovery, however.

Miss Lillian Embury is home from Kingston Hospital, where she was successfully operated on for goiter.

Mr. James Boyce is under the doctor's care, as a result of exhaustion and over-strain.

A number from here attended the funeral of the late Garnet Cox, which took place at Enterprise, on Sunday, the 15th. Mr. Cox was well known in Newburgh, he being a graduate of our High School. Much regret is felt at his passing while in his prime. He was 39 years of age.

A lawn social will be held (this) Friday night, on Mr. George Paul's lawn for the benefit of the Public Library. Admission, 25c., which includes a dainty lunch. An Orchestra will be present and an attractive programme will be furnished. The object is worthy, the lawn will be attractive, and if the weather is propicious, there is no reason why this social should not draw a large crowd.

Miss Jessie Wilson, who has been teaching at Kinderley, Sask., is home spending the holidays with her mother, Mrs. Bella Wilson, Homer.

Our baseball team, after what seemed to be a lapse of fortune, has become reserved and succeeded in putting un a good game with Enterprise on Wednesday last week, in which they won by a score of 3 to 1.

Mr. Dan Rodgers, of Wesley, had some trouble with his car while attending the funeral of the late Mr. Cox. The car by some means took fire. This participated a stampede among the other drivers near the scene which resulted in a general mix up to the detriment of running boards and other outstanding parts of cars that had part in the melee. But what is a little trifle like that in a world of rush and bustle.

Mrs. T. A. Dunwoody and her friend, Mrs. Gibson, of Niagara Falls, spent Tuesday and Wednesday at Desoronto, visiting Mrs. Dunwoody's sister, Mrs. Bella Dunwoody and her daughter, Mae.

Mrs. Wm. Sutton, who has been sick for some time, is convalescing nicely.

AMEY BLOCK AT VERONA BURNED.

Store and Dwelling Were Completely Destroyed, and Dr. Geddes' Office Scorched.—Loss About $25,000.—People Were Forced to Flee in Night Attire.

Breaking out in the same locality as the disastrous fire of three years ago, which destroyed a large part of the village, another big fire of unknown origin threatened Verona Monday night, destroying the Amey Block, valued at $25,000 and scorching the residence of Dr. Geddes. The fire was discovered about 1 a.m., and for the next three hours the volunteer fire department, under the leadership of Mr. George Lakins, worked furiously to get the conflagration under control. The chemical engine which was brought from Kingston after the other big fire did wonderful service and with it and the steady use of the pump, the fire was finally confined to the general store and residence of Mr. Amey.

Young Man Discovered Fire.

A young man returning from a camp meeting about 1 a.m., discovered the fire in the upstairs hall of the Amey property and the alarm was immediately given. The whole village was aroused and people from the entire countryside, some from a distance of twenty-five miles, were soon on the scene. The building in which the fire originated was of brick veneer, 50 feet by 60 feet and three stories high, and the large quantity of wood in its frame provided plentiful wood for the fire, which was soon sweeping through the whole block. The Amey family were aroused at once and had to make a hurried escape, having time only to pick up their clothing and rush from the burning house. Very little of the furniture was saved by the firemen because the fire was so hot they could not approach the building at all and were kept busy pouring water on it.

Dr. Geddes' Residence in Danger.

For a time it looked as if the fine residence of Dr. Geddes would surely fall a prey to the flames and the efforts of the fire-fighters were directed to saving this property. Through steady work this was accomplished and the building was only slightly damaged by heat and water. The cause of the fire could not be learned, and when it was discovered in the upper hall it was well under way.

The total loss is estimated at $25,000 which is partially covered by insurance.

On Site of Last Big Fire.

The property which was burned was on the site of the last big fire of three years ago, and had been rebuilt since that time. All that remains of it now is a heap of charred and smoking timbers, the building being completely destroyed. It was by far the largest building in Verona, and one of the best of the villages for miles around. Its complete destruction by fire is a serious loss to Verona, and only the prompt work of the fire-fighters and the excellent service given by the engine which formerly belonged to the Kingston Fire Department saved a large part of the village from being levelled to the ground.

No one was injured in the fire or in fighting it, though at times the falling walls threatened many of the firemen. Efforts were made to save the Amey property itself but the great headway of the fire could not be checked and the building burned to the ground. The saving of the neighboring property was all that could be done.

A TEMPLE BUILDER.

William Henry Garrison was laid to rest on Sunday, July 15th, 1923. His U. E. L. ancestors landed at Hay Bay, and early removed to Plainfield, in the County of Hastings. There the deceased was born eighty-six years ago. We married a pupil and devoted woman, Mary Jane Outwater. His outstanding characteristic was religion. By marriage a nephew to the great Bishop Richardson, he early eschewed evil; and in a great campmeeting, under the preaching of Rev. Dr. Gardiner, who preached on "Will a man rob God?" he was converted. He soon became Superintendent of the Plainfield Sunday School, which office he held for twenty-nine years. He also assisted in organizing other schools. In his profession of carpenter and contractor, he built or rebuilt some twenty-six churches, including both churches at Plainfield, one at Eldorado and at Westneath, and the one at Point Petre.

He removed to Napanee thirty-three years ago, becoming a member of Grace Church. He taught in the Sunday School, and helped organize a large class meeting. He has also been an efficient class-leader, and helped often and in many places in the conduct of public worship. Always was he found in his place in the sanctuary and at the prayer service. To him religion was both a business and a hobby. He was unsparing in his condemnation of evil and wrong of every kind. He was a devout reader of the Bible, and a lover of all churches and christian people. Both in sickness and in health the name of Jesus was often on his lips. After only two weeks' illness, and at a very ripe age, he passed to his reward. Surely he has joined the assembly and so cultivated the life of the spirit, and so labored and rejoiced in erecting sacred temples, that a fitness was held and his body was interred in the beautiful Riverside cemetery. Among the devout people he will be most missed.

For the Wednesday half holidays,—Thermos Bottle, Kodak Films and Laura Secord or Neilson's Chocolates. These for sale at Wallace's.

TOWN COUNCIL

Tax Rate 40 Mills—Estimated Receipts and Expenditure for the Year

A special meeting of the Council was held in the Council Chamber on Monday night for the transaction of general business.

The members present were Reeve Hambly, Councillors Burgess, Huffman, Paul, Perry, and Tustin.

Mayor MacGregor presided.

Chairman Tustin, of the Streets Committee, reported working in co-operation with the Utilities Commission in the improvement of the grounds east of the falls where the spring is located. This spot has been levelled off and otherwise beautified, a cement top laid over the spring and a drinking apparatus installed, making it an ideal spot for motorists on a tour to rest up.

In the discussion on the report of the Finance Committee, Coun. Tustin was decidedly against placing the cost of oiling the streets in the general tax, claiming it an imposition to tax property holders for street oiling on whose street no oil was placed.

The Mayor replied that the road oil was not placed on the streets to keep down the dust. It was a road builder—a preserver of roads—taking the place of other material that would not last. Everybody used these roads, consequently the people generally were benefitted.

Reeve Hambly spoke in favor of a special tax being levied against the property directly benefitted.

Couns. Burgess and Perry took the ground that this system of road building was general throughout the country, of no special benefit to one, but a benefit to all.

The report of the Finance Committee, which is given below, was put to a vote and adopted.

The following by-law to levy the rate necessary for raising the taxes for the year 1923, was passed the 16th day of July, 1923:—

Whereas the whole amount of the ratable property of the Town of Napanee for the year 1923 assessable for general purposes is $1,809,072, and whereas the whole amount assessable for school rates and for local improvement rates is the sum of $1,829,472.

Mr. Temple, representing a roofing paint concern, addressed the Council in reference to a preparation for preserving roofs, composed of asbestos and asphalt. He quoted a price of $12.15 per gal. to cover 100 square feet. The matter was left to the Town Property Committee.

Chairman Paul, Fire, Water and Light, reported recommending the placing of a number of lights at the camp ground. Adopted.

A petition was presented, signed by F. J. Vanalstine and others, praying for the construction of a sewer on Mill St., under the Local Improvement Act, from John St. Westerly to connect with the West St. sewer. On motion same was laid over until next meeting.

C. W. COX DIES SUDDENLY.

As suddenly as the last great summons can come to any man, death came this morning to Garnet W. Cox, accountant and assistant treasurer, Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company.

Mr. Cox, who was noticed by friends and acquaintances to be apparently in his usual good health about eight-thirty this morning, boarded a street car about 8.45 for the dry docks. He entered the office soon, and, while in the vestibule, on the threshold of his own office, fell to the floor and expired instantly, death occurring at five minutes to nine.

The remains were removed to Morris' undertaking parlors, where Coroner Brown viewed the body, and decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Garnet Wolseley Cox was 43 years and 11 months old, and was born at Enterprise, Ont. He was engaged in clerical work with Mackenzie and Mann in western Canada on Canadian Northern Railway construction work before coming to Port Arthur, where he arrived fourteen years ago, to work in the freight department of the Canadian National Railway.

One year later, in 1910, construction began on the big plant of the Western Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Company, as it was then called. Garnet Cox at once became identified with the plant with which during the rest of his life he was so intimately associated, and where this morning his career was brought to a sudden end in such an unexpected and tragic manner. Death found him at his post, ready to commence the work of another day, when he was called hence to a larger sphere of usefulness.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Cox celebrated the thirteenth anniversary of their wedding. They were married in Fort William on July 11th, 1910, his wife's maiden name being Mary H. Rose-son.

In addition to his widow, he is survived by his mother and one sister, living at the family home at Enterprise near Kingston. His father, Colonel Robert Cox, died at Enterprise about a year ago. R. S. Richardson, superintendent of the Canadian Government Railway here, is a cousin.

Always taking an interest in good, clean sport, it was mainly through the efforts of Garnet Cox that the Pasco Baseball and Athletic Association was formed, of which he had been president for the past two years. He was at the time of his death one of the Port Arthur representatives on the executive of the Thunder Bay Amateur Baseball Association.

He was a member also of Shuniah Lodge, Number 287, A. F. and A. M., and also of Port Arthur Lodge, No. 244, I.O.O.F. By religious denomination he was an Anglican, and two years ago was a member of the select vestry of St. John's Church. Mrs. Garnet Cox is an active worker in St. John's Women's Guild.

A. B. Conmee, secretary-treasurer of the Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company, paid the following tribute this morning to the memory of Garnet Cox: "Mr. Cox was held in high esteem by the officials of the shipbuilding Company. He was a man earnest in his work, faithful in his duty, and always willing to help along those who were working for him. He delighted in helping along any junior associate who wanted assistance, and in his death the shipbuilding company has lost a trusted employee and the city has lost a good citizen."

The funeral, which will be strictly private, will be held to-morrow morning from the family residence, 232 Tupper street, to the Canadian Pacific railway station, where the body will be placed on board the Trans-Canada for shipment to Enterprise, Ont., where interment will take place on Sunday under Masonic auspices. Mrs. G. W. Cox, widow, will go east with the remains, and W. H. Arnold will go on the same train, to attend the funeral as a representative of the Port Arthur Shipbuilding company.

The pallbearers to-morrow morning will be: John H. Smith, A. B. Conmee, James Whitecarc, J. H. Cook, F. J. Dolan and John Miller.

Honor of the late Garnet Cox the flag is flying at half-mast to-day over the offices of the Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company.

The floral offerings from the friends were very beautiful and of a very large number. Mrs. Cox, accompanied by a trained nurse and one of the representatives of the Shipbuilding Plant, left for the east with the body.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Robt. J. Maxwell.

After an illness of four and a half years, Mary Thompson, beloved wife of Robt. J. Maxwell, passed away on June 27th, 1923, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hugh Weir, Consecon, where she had resided for the past three years. Deceased was a daughter of the late Thomas Thompson, of Lime Lake, where she had always lived prior to her illness. She had been around as usual up till Friday, the 22nd, when she took her bed. All that medical aid and loving hands could do was done, but of no avail, and on Monday, the 27th, she called her husband and family to her bedside to bid them good bye, and told them she was going home, and on Wednesday night she passed peacefully away to the Great Beyond where troubles are no more. She was 86 years of age and was a devoted member of the Methodist Church. She leaves to mourn her loss a sorrowing husband and one son and three daughters, Fred Maxwell, Bowerman; Mrs. Hugh Weir, Consecon; Mrs. John Collins, Thomasburg; and Mrs. Stanley Weir, Roslin. Service was held at the home on Saturday morning, June 30th, thence to Lime Lake church, where her Pastor, Rev. Mr. Wolfraim officiated, taking his text from Psalms 20:4. He was assisted by Rev. Mr. Wilson, of Roslin. The remains were taken to Bunkers Hill and interred there to await the resurrection morn.

Shampoo This Way with Olive Oil and you will have hair with gleam and softness of silk

Olive oil for the shampoo, say leading hair specialists. Olive oil for the shampoo, agree women who have learned the secret—who are admired for their lovely hair.

And this specialists tell you, is why:

Olive oil cleanses thoroughly but gently. It never leaves hair dry and brittle—robbed of the delicate gloss and sheen that means beauty.

It washes away all dirt and oil. Dissolves and removes clinging dandruff. It leaves hair fluffy and soft. But never dry, never dull.

Pliant and shimmering as new silk, instead.

And this means beautiful, attractive hair—without which no beauty of face or dress is quite sufficient.

Olive oil treatments in its finest, most convenient form, as PALMOLIVE SHAMPOO. Thousands and thousands of women use it today. They find it most economical—for the treatment just costs a great deal when given by specialists.

You may have a 15c trial bottle free, by sending the coupon. Or you can get individual bottles at your dealers. A single shampoo will convince you.

THERE were 1021 forest fires reported in Ontario last season. The vigilance of the fire rangers kept 53 per cent. of these down to a size not exceeding five acres. But yet the total area burned was over 346,000 acres—equal to a strip of forest one mile wide from Toronto to Cochrane.

Of the total number, only 52 were lightning fires. In other words, out of every 100 fires, 59 fires were due to man's carelessness and were preventable.

Accordingly, the problem of forest protection in Ontario calls for the cooperation of the whole citizenship of the Province. If reasonable care be exercised by everyone in the woods to prevent the start of fire, our forests will be safe. Railway officials, campers, prospectors, lumber firms, settlers, construction firms—all can help by being careful of fire in the woods, and by joining hands with the press, the leaders of public opinion, and the business men of Ontario, in prompting educational propaganda to reduce forest fires.

Blinks—Did you always tell the truth?

Jinks—No; I want a few friends, thank you.

"Papa, what is a pedestrian?"

"An individual, my son, that is always found in front of automobiles."

As Tompkins was on his way home after nightfall he collided with Jenkins, who was running as fast as his bulk would allow him.

"Why this hurry, Jenkins?" he inquired.

"I'm—going—for — the — police," said Jenkins, between pants. "We've got a burglar in our house."

"But, surely, you haven't left your wife alone?"

"Oh, no! She's holding the burglar!"

The Comeback

By Dr. Frank Crane.

I find that the way I am treated in the day's work depends upon the state of mind I bring into it.

If I enter a circle of men whom I take to be superior to me, I am likely to be snubbed. If I impute to them, tho' fooling, that I am inferior, I will not fail to be inferior.

If I am self-confident, I awaken confidence.

If I cringe, I make others want to step on me.

If I am cheerful, cheerfulness is handed me by others.

If I am grouchy and snappy, they will bite me.

People go at me about the way I go at them.

There is a law in physics to the effect that action is equal to reaction. The ball rebounds from the wall with precisely the force with which it was thrown against the wall.

And if I approach a man with politeness, I usually receive politeness.

I get from this world a smile for a smile, a kick for a kick, love for love, and hate for hate.

Of course there are exceptions to this rule. But if there were no rules there would be no exceptions.

And the difference between the man who knows how to play a game and wins regularly—any game, including poker, business, and the game of life—and the man who steadily loses is that the wise man sticks to the rules and the law of averages, and the fool "has a hunch" and stakes his all on the exceptions.

A good definition of a fool is one who thinks that this time doesn't count.

My tablets, therefore! Moot it is I set it down that I am getting what is coming to me.

This is a world of law. Chance is only to be found in the dictionary. In the bright lexicon of fact there's no such word.

If I am petulant, unrestful, irritable, unsatisfied, wretched, and bored—I know the crop, and might have expected the harvest when I sowed that seed of self-indulgence, lack of will, moral cowardice, and general selfishness.

If I am lonely, it was I who drove hearts away.

If I am bitter, it was I who skimped the sugar-bowl.

If I am persecuted, it was I who brought it on by my cantankerousness.

The loving are beloved.

The generous are helped.

The considerate are considered.

The bully by and by is bullied, the smasher smashed.

And the end of the hog is the slaughter house.

There are no victims of fate. The hero always rises above tragedy.

The noble soul is never more serene than when all creation thinks it has downed him.

Summer "Work-Making" Sale of Made-to-Order Suits

WE had hoped for lower prices on Fine Imported Suitings this Fall, but we were disappointed. Good English Worsteds and Serges are still slowly advancing in price. We can't say when they'll take a turn the other way, but it looks hopeless this Fall.

There is a time, however, when you can buy that good Ordered Suit you would like to have, at much below regular. That time is right now, when we're holding our "Work-Making" Sale to keep our hands fully employed.

BOYES' Made-in-Napanee Suits are the genuine Custom Tailored kind. Every operation from cutting to pressing is done on our own premises. Satisfaction in Fit and Finish and Wear is assured. There's nothing better—and the best is the cheapest in the long run.

Cause of Asthma. No one can say with certainty exactly what causes the establishing of asthmatic conditions. Dust from the street, from flowers, from grain and various other irritants may set up a trouble impossible to irradicate except through a sure preparation such as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Uncertainty may exist as to cause, but there can be no uncertainty regarding a remedy which has freed a generation of asthmatic victims from this scourge of the bronchial tubes. ARDEN.

Rain is much needed in this vicinity, as the crops are drying up.—The 12th July celebration was a great success in this place. Many were present from all the neighboring towns. There were a number of other lodges present. It was a terrible warm day but the lodges did not stop for the heat, as they marched both in the morning and afternoon. In the afternoon a very interesting ball game, beginning at 3 o'clock, was played between Arden and Sharbot Lake, the winners being Arden boys. Score was 23-16. Mr. Fleming, of Sharbot Lake, was the umpire. A play was put on in the evening by Sharbot Lake Dramatic Club. It was a great success and we congratulate the Club, as the actors were well posted in their parts of the programme. The hall was well filled, and a number were standing outside.—Misses Vera and Madeline Vandeburg, of Landsdowne, are the guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Babcock.—The Secords, of Welland, are spending their summer months at their cottage here, and many other tourists are locating in their cottages.—Mrs. H. L. Greene has gone to Niagara Falls to spend a couple of weeks with her son, Ross.—Miss Jennie Johnston called on Mrs. E. Scott on Monday. — Mrs. Harold Steele and family have moved to Niagara Falls, where her husband is an employee of the Hydro Electric Company.—On Saturday evening last a variety shower was given in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Clarke, at the home of the groom's parents. Many were present and the young couple received many useful gifts, which shows the esteem in which the young people are held. We wish them bon voyage through life.

It Will Prevent Ulcerated Throat.—At the first symptoms of sore throat, which presages ulceration and inflammation, take a spoonful of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Add a little sugar to it to make it palatable. It will allay the irritation and prevent ulceration and swelling that are so painful. Those who were periodically subject to quinsy have thus made themselves immune to attack.

KING FACES PROBLEMS

POLITICAL DEADLOCK EXISTS IN "GREAT ROUMANIA."

Recently Crowned Monarch Must Use His Influence to Prevent Serious Breach to End In Trouble—Liberal Government Accused of Establishing Rule With a High Hand.

The coronation of King Ferdinand as sovereign of "Great Roumania" is an event of more than local significance, for it is intended to symbolize those national rights upon which the new Succession States rest, as against the dynastic rights to which the old Hapsburg monarchy owed its existence.

The coronation has taken place at a moment of great uncertainty alike in foreign and in home policy. Roumania is vitally interested in the freedom of the Straits, and, like Juro-Slavia, and indeed, Bulgaria, cannot view without anxiety the revival of Turkish rule in Europe, though she shares the general reluctance to become involved in fresh military operations.

But Roumania's negative attitude to the Near Eastern crisis is in no small measure due to the unsatisfactory political situation at home. The recent ceremony at Alba Julia was, above all, the logical outcome of the great assembly held there on December 1, 1918, at which the Roumanians of Transylvania formed their national government and solemnly proclaimed the union with the Kingdom of Roumania.

The late King Charles governed Roumania by a skilful system of "ins" and "outs," but this is now rendered highly difficult by the transformation of social and economic values wrought by the war, by land reform, and, above all, by the introduction of universal suffrage. The only possibility of securing an overwhelming majority for one of the pre-war Roumanian parties is by electoral pressure deliberately used to falsify the popular verdict.

At the elections of last spring the Liberal Party, which had accepted office in January, adopted methods of terrorism and corruption such as recall those employed before the war by successive Hungarian Governments against the Roumanians and other non-Magyar nationalities. The Liberals thus secured a majority, but the Opposition parties withdrew from a Parliament so constituted, and left it a mere rump whose decisions are morally worthless.

M. Maniu, leader of the Transylvanian National Party (and former President of the "Consiliu Dirigent," or Transylvanian Government), addressed to the King an open letter, denouncing the elections as "a European scandal," whose result "does not in any way correspond to the will and votes of Transylvania" in particular, and declining "to recognize the legality and moral authority of legislative bodies which have been brought together by such methods."

M. Britianu having presumably prevented the crown from answering this appeal, the National Party, the party of the late Premier, Gen. Averescu, and the Taaranist, or Peasant Party, unanimously resolved to boycott Parliament, and declared all its legislation to be null and void in their eyes. This attitude forced the Government to postpone its design of passing a new centralist constitution through Parliament—with the incidental result that the taking of an oath had to be omitted from the Alba Julia ceremony.

During the summer the gulf between Government and Opposition widened. There has been an unscrupulous press campaign which sought to prove separatist leanings on the part of the Transylvanian leaders and to discredit them with their peasant voters by insinuating that they had concluded a secret pact with certain big Magyar landowners at the expense of land reform. MM. Maniu and Vaida had no difficulty in exploding these calumnies, but some of their more ardent followers were unwise enough to hint that some of the blame for official illegalities must rest upon the king himself. As though this were not enough, attempts were made in other quarters to identify the dynasty with the Liberal policy and to use the coronation as a means of rehabilitating the Government in the eyes of the masses.

Though resentment at these tactics doubtless helped to decide the Transylvanian leaders in favor of abstention, such a step is deeply to be regretted, since on the one hand it is only too likely to estrange the dynasty from the most progressive elements in Roumanian political life, and, on the other hand, to weaken among the peasantry of the new territories the prestige of the crown as standing above all party strife, or of those leaders on whom they had relied in the dark days of foreign rule—or, indeed, of both crown and leaders simultaneously.

These possibilities weigh with many thoughtful Roumanians who are not wedded to one party or another, and who intensely resent, as a needless, serous and unnecessary, the growing tendency to range the new territories (Transylvania, Bukovina, Bessarabia) and the Regat (or old kingdom) on opposite sides of politics.

Great Roumania cannot be governed permanently in defiance of Transylvania opinion, and as the latter has become unbridgable, an early redistribution of political forces would seem inevitable. It may merely took the form of bringing to the front such Liberals as realize the need for compromise.

The restoration of harmony between the very divergent psychologies of the old Roumania and the new is the most burning of precedent-day problems, and it is here that the dynasty could play a unique part. In this lies the significance of the Transylvanian Coronation.

The First Bleater.

The following story of the Yarmouth bleater is told by the Elizabethan writer, Thomas Nash, in his "Lenten Stuffe": "At a time when chimneys were not known, a fire of wood was placed in the center of the principal room of the house, and the smoke was allowed to escape through the roof. A fisherman who had hung up several rows of fresh herrings, and forgotten to take them down for some time, found them when he did so of a golden color and the most deliciously cured." Others appreciated the new dainties as much as he did, and the lucky fisherman made a fortune before the secret of bloater making leaked out.

Matrimony and Old Age.

Bachelors and spinsters in the United States make up the larger part of those who in their old age are obliged to depend on the town or state for support. Figures show that of men who have a trade only one in a hundred thousand has to go to the poorhouse, and that of men with a college education the proportion is smaller still.

Opera for Masses.

Every family in Buenos Ayres is to have the privilege or hearing at least one opera each season free of charge at the new municipal opera house to be erected under the supervision of the Government.

The Lace Industry.

The great lace industry of Malta is almost exclusively confined to women and girls, and many families have special designs that are handed down from one generation to another.

The Chinese are the oldest workers known in masonry.

As Tompkins was on his way home after nightfall he collided with Jenkins, who was running as fast as his bulk would allow him.

"Why this hurry, Jenkins?" he inquired.

"I'm—going—for — the — police," said Jenkins, between pants. "We've got a burglar in our house."

"But, surely, you haven't left your wife alone?"

"Oh, no! She's holding the burglar!"

The Comeback

By Dr. Frank Crane.

I find that the way I am treated in the day's work depends upon the state of mind I bring into it.

If I enter a circle of men whom I take to be superior to me, I am likely to be snubbed. If I impute to them, tho' fooling, that I am inferior, I will not fail to be inferior.

If I am self-confident, I awaken confidence.

If I cringe, I make others want to step on me.

If I am cheerful, cheerfulness is handed me by others.

If I am grouchy and snappy, they will bite me.

People go at me about the way I go at them.

There is a law in physics to the effect that action is equal to reaction. The ball rebounds from the wall with precisely the force with which it was thrown against the wall.

And if I approach a man with politeness, I usually receive politeness.

I get from this world a smile for a smile, a kick for a kick, love for love, and hate for hate.

Of course there are exceptions to this rule. But if there were no rules there would be no exceptions.

And the difference between the man who knows how to play a game and wins regularly—any game, including poker, business, and the game of life—and the man who steadily loses is that the wise man sticks to the rules and the law of averages, and the fool "has a hunch" and stakes his all on the exceptions.

A good definition of a fool is one who thinks that this time doesn't count.

My tablets, therefore! Moot it is I set it down that I am getting what is coming to me.

This is a world of law. Chance is only to be found in the dictionary. In the bright lexicon of fact there's no such word.

If I am petulant, unrestful, irritable, unsatisfied, wretched, and bored —I know the crop, and might have expected the harvest when I sowed that seed of self-indulgence, lack of will, moral cowardice, and general selfishness.

If I am lonely, it was I who drove hearts away.

If I am bitter, it was I who skimped the sugar-bowl.

If I am persecuted, it was I who brought it on by my cantankerousness.

The loving are beloved.

The generous are helped.

The considerate are considered.

The bully by and by is bullied, the smasher smashed.

And the end of the hog is the slaughter house.

There are no victims of fate. The hero always rises above tragedy.

The noble soul is never more serene than when all creation thinks it has downed him.

WE had hoped for lower prices on Fine Imported Suitings this Fall, but we were disappointed. Good English Worsteds and Serges are still slowly advancing in price. We can't say when they'll take a turn the other way, but it looks hopeless this Fall.

There is a time, however, when you can buy that good Ordered Suit you would like to have, at much below regular. That time is right now, when we're holding our "Work-Making" Sale to keep our hands fully employed.

BOYES' Made-in-Napanee Suits are the genuine Custom Tailored kind. Every operation from cutting to pressing is done on our own premises. Satisfaction in Fit and Finish and Wear is assured. There's nothing better—and the best is the cheapest in the long run.

Rain is much needed in this vicinity, as the crops are drying up.—The 12th July celebration was a great success in this place. Many were present from all the neighboring towns. There were a number of other lodges present. It was a terrible warm day but the lodges did not stop for the heat, as they marched both in the morning and afternoon. In the afternoon a very interesting ball game, beginning at 3 o'clock, was played between Arden and Sharbot Lake, the winners being Arden boys. Score was 23-16. Mr. Fleming, of Sharbot Lake, was the umpire. A play was put on in the evening by Sharbot Lake Dramatic Club. It was a great success and congratulate the Club, as the actors were well posted in their parts of the programme. The hall was well filled, and a number were standing outside.—Misses Vera and Madeline Vandeburg, of Landsdowne, are the guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Babcock.—The Secords, of Welland, are spending their summer months at their cottage here, and many other tourists are locating in their cottages.—Mrs. H. Scott on Monday. — Mrs. Harold Steele and family have moved to Niagara Falls, where her husband is an employee of the Hydro Electric Company.—On Saturday evening last a variety shower was given in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Clarke, at the home of the groom's parents. Many were present and the young couple received many useful gifts, which show the esteem in which the young people are held. We wish them bon voyage through life.

KING FACES PROBLEMS

POLITICAL DEADLOCK EXISTS IN "GREAT ROUMANIA."

Recently Crowned Monarch Must Use His Influence to Prevent Serious Breach to End In Trouble—Liberal Government Accused of Establishing Rule With a High Hand.

The coronation of King Ferdinand as sovereign of "Great Roumania" is an event of more than local significance, for it is intended to symbolize those national rights upon which the new Succession States rest, as against the dynastic rights to which the old Hapsburg monarchy owed its existence.

The coronation has taken place at a moment of great uncertainty alike in foreign and in home policy. Roumania is vitally interested in the freedom of the Straits, and, like Juro-Slavia, and indeed, Bulgaria, cannot view without anxiety the revival of Turkish rule in Europe, though she shares the general reluctance to become involved in fresh military operations.

But Roumania's negative attitude to the Near Eastern crisis is in no small measure due to the unsatisfactory political situation at home. The recent ceremony at Alba Julia was, above all, the logical outcome of the great assembly held there on December 1, 1918, at which the Roumanians of Transylvania formed their national government and solemnly proclaimed the union with the Kingdom of Roumania.

The late King Charles governed Roumania by a skilful system of "ins" and "outs," but this is now rendered highly difficult by the transformation of social and economic values wrought by the war, by land reform, and, above all, by the introduction of universal suffrage. The only possibility of securing an overwhelming majority for one of the pre-war Roumanian parties is by electoral pressure deliberately used to falsify the popular verdict.

At the elections of last spring the Liberal Party, which had accepted office in January, adopted methods of terrorism and corruption such as recall those employed before the war by successive Hungarian Governments against the Roumanians and other non-Magyar nationalities. The Liberals thus secured a majority, but the Opposition parties withdrew from a Parliament so constituted, and left it a mere rump whose decisions are morally worthless.

M. Maniu, leader of the Transylvanian National Party (and former President of the "Consiliu Dirigent," or Transylvanian Government), addressed to the King an open letter, denouncing the elections as "a European scandal," whose result "does not in any way correspond to the will and votes of Transylvania" in particular, and declining "to recognize the legality and moral authority of legislative bodies which have been brought together by such means."

M. Britianu having presumably prevented the crown from answering this letter, the National Party, the party of the late Premier, Gen. Averescu, and the Tsaranist, or Peasant Party, unanimously resolved to boycott Parliament, and declared all its legislation to be null and void in their eyes. This attitude forced the Government to postpone its design of passing a new centralist Constitution through Parliament—with the incidental result that the taking of an oath had to be omitted from the Alba Julia ceremony.

During the summer the gulf between Government and Opposition widened. There has been an unscrupulous press campaign which sought to prove separatist leanings on the part of the Transylvanian leaders and to discredit them with their peasant voters by insinuating that they had concluded a secret pact with certain big Magyar landowners at the expense of land reform. MM. Maniu and Vaida had no difficulty in exploding these calumnies, but some of their more ardent followers were unwise enough to hint that some of the blame for official illegalities must rest upon the king himself. As though this were not enough, attempts were made in other quarters to identify the dynasty with the Liberal policy and to use the coronation as a means of rehabilitating the Government in the eyes of the masses.

Though resentment at these tactics doubtless helped to decide the Transylvanian leaders in favor of abstention, such a step is deeply to be regretted, since on the one hand it is only too likely to estrange the dynasty from the most progressive elements in Roumanian political life, and on the other hand, to weaken among the peasantry of the new territories the prestige of the crown as standing above all party strife, or of those leaders on whom they had relied in the dark days of foreign rule—or, indeed, of both crown and leaders simultaneously.

These possibilities which with many thoughtful Roumanians who are not wedded to one party or another, and who intensely resent, as being dangerous and unnecessary, the growing tendency to range the new territories (Transylvania, Bukovina, Bessarabia) and the Regat (or old kingdom) on opposite sides of politics.

Great Roumania cannot be governed permanently in defiance of Transylvania opinion, and as the conflict has become unbridgable, an early redistribution of political forces would seem inevitable. Or it merely took the form of bringing to the front such Liberals as realize the need for compromise.

The restoration of harmony between the very divergent psychologies of the old Roumania and the new is the most burning of present-day problems, and it is here that the dynasty could play a unique part. In this lies the significance of the Transylvanian Coronation.

The First Bleater.

The following story of the Yarmouth bleater is told by the Elizabethan writer, Thomas Nash, in his "Lenten Stuffe": "At a time when chimneys were not known, a fire of wood was placed in the center of the principal room of the house, and the smoke was allowed to escape through the roof. A fisherman who had hung up several rows of fresh herrings, and forgotten to take them down for some time, found them when he did so of a golden color and the meal deliciously cured." Others appreciated the new dainties as much as he did, and the lucky fisherman made a fortune before the secret of bloater making leaked out.

Matrimony and Old Age.

Bachelors and spinsters in the United States make up the larger part of those who in their old age are obliged to depend on the town or state for support. Figures show that of men who have a trade only one in a hundred thousand has to go to the poorhouse, and that of men with a college education the proportion is smaller still.

Opera for Masses.

Every family in Buenos Ayres is to have the privilege of hearing at least one opera each season free of charge, at the new municipal opera house to be erected under the supervision of the Government.

The Lace Industry.

The great lace industry of Malta is almost exclusively confined to women and girls, and many families have special designs that are handed down from one generation to another.

GOOD MONEY IN GOOD FARMING

"Let's Get to Work and Pay Off the Mortgage"

NINE years ago Canada's national debt was about one-third of a billion. It is more than two and one-third billions today.

Our debts have greatly increased—our revenues must also go up. The farmer has to bear his share of the increased burden. That means he must increase his revenue.

Complaint has been heard that farmers under present conditions in Canada cannot make farming pay. And yet many thousands of Canadian farmers do make it pay.

How Is It Done?

Patient and industrious "carry on" will do wonders, but something more is needed. Too often "patient industry" is coupled with "dull persistence" in poorly thought out methods.

Farmers today more than ever, must plan ahead, as well as "plug along"; indeed they have no option, if they wish to succeed.

Co-ordination of head and hand will mean real success. Farming in Canada has paid and pays now on many farms. It can be made to pay on almost every farm. Canadian agriculture has passed through low profit-making eras successfully in the past and can do so again.

With the increased cost of production, the higher standards of living now prevailing cannot be maintained by poor farm management, "boarder" milkers, scrub beeves, poor quality hogs or non-profitable hens.

That even under present conditions profits may be made is testified by many skilful, observant and non-plunging farmers, who believe more in the policy of "slow but sure" and "pay as you go" rather than speed, with excessive borrowing and the often consequent disaster.

The results on our Experimental Farms also bear testimony to the value of thorough, skilful work.

The Farmer Must Manufacture

But crops alone are not enough. The farmer must change his crops into less bulky and more high-priced products—milk, pork, beef, mutton, poultry, etc.

With fair yielding cows dairying shows good profits in Canada. The average cow has increased her yield 25% in the last ten years. She can quite readily go up another 25% and more, and there's where the profit lies. Better feeding, better selection and better breeding will do the job—feed, weed, breed.

To do better feeding means better pastures and more generous supplies of palatable roughage. Short rotations including clover and ensilage crops (corn, sunflower, peas and oat, etc.) will provide feed in abundance for both summer and winter. The experiments and investigations which the Dominion Department of Agriculture have carried on prove that farming scientifically and systematically undertaken will pay profits. The records and particulars of such work in every province are available to the Canadian farmer.

Are you growing grain, or pedigreed seed or interested in fruit? We can give you information that will help you. Do you breed live stock? Are you keeping dairy cattle? Are you interested in poultry or bees? Ask us for information. We have some that will help you.

We have published and have for free distribution, five different reports, bulletins and circulars dealing with matters of interest to you. Ask for what you want, or for a list of our publications.

We shall have something more to say later. Meantime write the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, about your problems.

Crop Returns Should be Increased

On the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa some crop costs and crop profits in 1922 as contrasted with all-Ontario average crop costs and crop profits are given below. The all-Ontario figures are in brackets.

	Cost per acre	Profit per acre
Hay	$21.13 ($13.50)	$11.21 ($5.09)
Corn for Forage	$41.50 ($35.75)	$10.28 ($2.80)
Oats	$25.67 ($16.32)	$ 7.33 (.64)

Similar results can be shown from the Dominian Experimental Farms in every province.

Experimental Farm crops are sometimes claimed to be produced at too great cost. Thousands of experiments, however, show that increased cropping costs wisely applied up to a reasonable point always increase crop profits. This is true on the Experimental Farm — and on any and every farm.

"Yes, and now his daughters have come home from college and taken up the job where their mother left off."

"I was told you said I looked like an elephant?"

"I meant that you resembled that animal in one particular."

"What is that?"

"You have ivory teeth."

Rub it in for Lame Back.—A brisk rubbing with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will relieve lame back. The skin will immediately absorb the oil and it will penetrate the tissues and bring speedy relief. Try it and be convinced. As the liniment sinks in, the pain comes out and there are ample grounds for saying that it is an excellent article.

"Why are you putting that greasy stuff on your lips, Mummy?"

"Because they're a little cracked, dear."

"Is that the stuff daddy puts on his head every morning, Mummy?"

It Will Prevent Ulcerated Throat.—At the first symptoms of sore throat, which presages ulceration and inflammation, take a spoonful of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Add a little sugar to it to make it palatable. It will allay the irritation and prevent the ulceration and swelling that are so painful. Those who would especially subject to quinsy have thus made themselves immune to attack.

A psychiatric board was testing the mentality of a negro soldier.

"Do you ever hear voices without being able to tell who is speaking or where the sound comes from?"

"Yes, suh," answered the negro.

"And when does this occur?"

"When I'se talkin' over de telephone."

Miller's Worm Powders act so thoroughly that stomachic and intestinal worms pass from the child without being noticed and without inconvenience to the sufferer. They are painless and perfect in action, and at all times will be found a healthy medicine, strengthening the infantile stomach and maintaining it in vigorous operation, so that besides being an effective vermifuge, they are tonical and health-giving in their effects.

RESUME OF EVENTS AND LEGISLATIVE ENACTMENTS

BY RECENT PARLIAMENT DURING PAST YEAR, AS THEY AFFECT AGRICULTURE.

(By Hon. W. R. Motherwell)

Ottawa, July 9th, 1923.

An effort has been made, by not altogether disinterested parties, to belittle the net results of the recent session of Parliament.

Speaking more particularly with respect to agriculture, I may say that I cannot recall any Session of Parliament since Confederation that passed more beneficial legislation on behalf of agriculture than the one recently prorogued. True, five months was a long time to spend in performing the work but that is one of the prices we must pay for groups in Parliament, all of whom have to have their say.

A number of Acts have been passed such as "An act to amend and consolidate the Acts respecting Live Stock" and "An Act to regulate the sale and inspection of Fruit and Fruit Containers," which can be merely referred to here as containing very important and up-to-date legislation in their respective fields. The same may be said of the amendments to Feeding Stuffs Act and the Dairy Industry Act, the latter of which provides for the prohibition of the manufacture and importation of filled butter, filled milk and filled cheese and the pernicious practices that were quietly but persistently establishing a foot-hold in Canada to the great detriment of the dairy industry.

In addition to this important legislation affecting one of our chief corner stones of Canadian agriculture — dairying — was the fight to a finish during the last Session on the question of whether the prohibition of the manufacture and importation of Oleo would be again reverted to, as it existed for thirty years prior to 1917, by a non-party vote of fifty-four to one hundred and twenty-five Oleo, for the time being, received a solar plexus to show that will take some recovering from. Nothing daunted, however, the packers' professional lobbyist was an anxious inquirer around the corridors the week following the vote, doubtless with a view to renewing the battle at some later date.

The report of Dairy Commissioner Mr. J. A. Ruddick and Mr. W. A. Wilson on their return from New Zealand and Australia, coupled with all the before-mentioned beneficial legislation on behalf of the dairy industry, makes the last Session of Parliament an outstanding one, so far as the dairy industry of Canada is concerned.

Although the removal of the British Embargo on Canadian cattle did not require legislative action on the part of the Canadian Parliament, it did on the part of the Imperial Government, which was the outcome of a conference between the Imperial and Canadian Authorities — hence, properly referred to in this article as one of the advanced steps taken on behalf of agriculture during the past year.

The removal of the British Embargo against Canadian cattle has had a greater direct result in improving the farmers' market than any other single move that has been accomplished during the past few years.

Canada was in the unfortunate position of being largely shut out of the only two available markets for her live cattle—the American tariff and the British Embargo accomplishing this end.

An agitation has been carried on, both in Great Britain and Canada for a number of years for the removal of the Embargo, and a great many people on both sides of the water have given valuable assistance in this effort, and not a few of them claim that the removal of the Embargo is entirely due to their efforts. But to say that a great many people helped in bringing this about, is much nearer the truth of the matter.

For the last two or three years, while it was generally expected that the Embargo would be ultimately removed, it was of vital interest to the business of raising cattle in Canada, that it should be removed quickly, and the delay was not only disappointing, but it was ruinous to the cattle business. The present Canadian Government not only acted promptly, but effectively, in this matter, and when the Ministers of the Government and the officials of the Department of Agriculture entered into a conference with the members of the British Government and officials of the British Ministry of Agriculture, they had a very difficult task on their hands. They accomplished something, however, of real importance for the Canadian farmer when they came to a satisfactory settlement of the case, which as a matter of fact, was only concluded the morning after the Lloyd George Government had resigned.

A new Government took office in Britain, and then for a time it looked like another year's delay. A special Session of the new Parliament was called in November to pass the Irish Bill. The Canadian Government pressed to have the legislation removing the Embargo enacted at this special Session, but the new Government urged that it had just taken office, that this Session was for a special purpose, and that the Embargo legislation should remain in abeyance until the regular Session after the first of the year. It was only after repeated and persistent urging on the part of the Canadian Government that this question which had been of such long standing was finally solved by the British Government passing an Act removing the Embargo, which came into effect April 1st of this year.

They have now a live stock man in Canada but recognizes clearly the tremendous advantage it would have been to have had this market last fall, and what a calamity it would have been were it not available this year.

Mention might also be made of the granting of a certain bounty on twine and fibre, which came from, for the purpose of establishing a hemp industry in Western Canada—a movement well worthy of a moment's consideration.

Canada last year became famous by having arrived at the stage of being the largest exporter of wheat in the world. In the face of this it does seem a mistake to longer continue to depend upon foreign countries for the twine with which to tie nine-tenths of this crop. Hemp is a product that can be grown successfully, almost luxuriantly, in many parts of the West and East, with or without irrigation. It grows freely in this country, and should supply unlimited quantities of raw material for the successful establishment of a hemp industry, the future production of which for both home consumption and export no man can estimate. As important as this should be to every Western man, strange to say, only three Western Members supported it.

Following the reduction of freight rates by the restoration of the Crow's Nest Pass Agreement, important legislation has been passed designed to control and regulate lake rates, which spared to such alarming proportions last Fall.

The personnel and work of the newly-appointed Royal Grain Enquiry Commission, presided over by Mr. Justice Turgeon, is another indication of the desire of the present Government to serve agriculture faithfully and well.

The increase in the Estimates of over half a million dollars for the Eradication of Bovine Tuberculosis, twenty-five thousand for further experiments in the exportation of chilled beef and ten thousand for experimentation with the dehydrating of fruit, all speak for themselves and indicate a further desire to grapple with first things first in the solution of Canada's many agricultural problems.

Live stock men generally will greatly appreciate the valuable importation of the various purebred breeding animals imported and selected personally by Mr. Archibald, Director of Experimental Farms. These animals are intended for distribution among the various Experimental Farms, from which farmers may resplenish their breeding stock to advantage as desired.

A question of more than usual significance to Western agriculture was the three-year Canadian National Railway Construction programme, passed by the House of Commons and approved of by the country generally, more particularly by the West. Imagine with what consternation it was learned that the irresponsible Senate stepped in and thwarted the will of the people by giving this railway programme the six months' hoist. As if to add insult to injury, some Western Senators have the audacity to say (as per Senate Debates) that the Government so enacted this legislation that it would court the disaster that befell it. How false this statement is, nobody knows better than the ones who make it.

MOTHER OF TWIN BOYS

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Her of Inflammation and Great Weakness

West St. John, N. B.—"I was in a general run-down condition following the birth of my twin boys. I had a great deal of inflammation, with pains and weakness. Finally my doctor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He said that it would be the only thing that would make me up. I am sure he is right, for I am feeling much better and am gaining in weight, having gone down to ninety-three pounds. I was in bed for over a month, but am up again now. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to my friends and given you permission to use my letter."—Mrs. Elmer A. Ritchie, 82 Rodney St., West St. John, N. B.

There are many women who find their household duties almost unbearable owing to some weakness or derangement. The trouble may be slight, yet each such annoying symptoms as dragging pains, weakness and a run-down feeling.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them. Mrs. Ritchie's experience is but one of many.

Dealing extensively with the attractions of Ontario, in the way of fishing, hunting and camping, and pointing out the numerous advantages of the province with its splendid roads, fine hotel accommodation and all the advantages which await the tourist, the July special tourist issue of Rod and Gun in Canada is one of the most attractive issues of the magazine, with its special cover, its numerous beautiful illustrations, and interesting articles. In addition to the extra section, the July issue, is full of good stories. "Six Days with Paddle and Pack on the Steel River" by Douglas Hains is a first class description of this novel trip. "Touring with the Fontinalis" by J. E. Richardson, and "Excitement with a Sailing Canoe" by G. P. Sladen are only a few of the articles which with "Fishing by the Way in Canada", by I. D. Willis, and numerous other attractive articles and stories make the July issue the best yet. The regular contributors, Bonnycastle Dale, R. P. Lincoln, W. C. Motley, C. S. Landis and J. W. It Has Done Me Worlds of Good, Says Toronto Woman.

Dreco Proves a True Friend to Mrs. Oliver, of 695 King St., West, Toronto, Who Cannot Praise It Too Highly.

Another Toronto resident has found real merit in Dreco as a corrective for ailments arising from a poorly working digestive system. Here is her story:—

"I have suffered for eighteen months from inflammatory rheumatism. My muscles and joints ached so badly that I could not bend or get on my knees. Nothing could be so painful as I suffer as I did. My liver was also out of order and I often had bilious attacks, dizzy spells and spots floating before my eyes. My blood was impure and I always felt tired and weak. I tried almost everything, but my case seemed to be getting worse until at last I heard about Dreco and decided to give it a trial."

"Have only used one bottle but the results are really wonderful. My aches and pains from rheumatism have gone and I have no more dizzy spells. My bowels are regular and I sleep through the night without disturbance. Have no more tired feeling and am so much stronger that my work is now a pleasure. I'd gladly tell anyone about Dreco, as I think that all who suffer should know about this medicine. It has done me worlds of good."

Mrs. Oliver's statement is a message of hope to all who are troubled with symptoms caused by faulty digestion. Dreco is scientifically prepared from nature's herbs, roots, bark and leaves and acts on the vital organs, toning and regulating them in a way that speedily benefits the whole body. It contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs, and is the most reliable spring tonic known.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Napanee by Wallace & Co., and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

COL. W. J. MALLEY DIED SUDDENLY IN TORONTO.

The Mayor of Deseronto Succumbed to an Attack of Apoplexy.

Lieut.-Col. W. J. Malley, Mayor of Deseronto, and a prominent man in that town for many years, died very suddenly in Toronto on Thursday night. He suffered an attack of apoplexy.

The late Col. Malley was sixty-one years of age, and had been a resident of Deseronto for thirty-eight years. He was druggist, and had a shop there. He served one term as Mayor, and had only filled this position a few months on a second term, having been elected following the death of Mayor Dalton, who also died following a stroke of apoplexy. Deceased was a member of Craig Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Deseronto, and was also a member of the Kingston Lodge of Perfection, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. Col. Malley was a leading member of the old 5th Kingston Battery. He is survived by his wife and two sons, Claire, in the drug store at Deseronto, and Arthur in the Customs Department, at present relieving at Belleville.

The funeral, which took place Sunday afternoon, under Masonic auspices, was probably the largest funeral Deseronto has had in a great many years. Brethren were present from Toronto, Kingston, Belleville, Napanee, and other points. St. Mark's Church was not capable of holding half of those who wished to attend the service. The Masonic service at the cemetery was conducted by Wor. Bro. T. L. McCullough, assisted by Rt. Wor. Bro. Rev. R. J. Craig.

LACROSSE.

The Deseronto Midgets visited Napanee Wednesday to play a schedule game, and trimmed the locals 13-0, in the deciding game for the leadership of the league. Only for the good work of Fraser in goal and Stewart on home, the score would have been much larger. The Deseronto team are a fine bunch of players and should go a long way in the finals. An O. A. L. A. man from Toronto refereed thes game. The Juvenile play Trenton Monday, in Trenton.

BASEBALL.

LENNOX GROUP.

The Napanee baseball team visited Selby Wednesday afternoon and were defeated 10-15. It is easily seen that the locals are not practicing enough, and unless they get a little more pep in them, they will find themselves at the foot of the League.

BOWLING.

Not till the last bowl was tossed was the outcome of the games between Belleville and Napanee held on the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club's greens determined, when Belleville was found to have won out by three points.

The first match to finish was that between C. H. Vermilyea and E. J. Pollard, the latter winning by four points. Rev. D. C. Ramsay defeated J. E. Madden by ten, but Frank Bell, of Napanee, won from Charles Sulman by four. The other skips, C. J. Maybee and R. J. Wray, were running neck and neck and at the shot before the last the visitors were up. The last shot gave Skip Wray a lead of one, and the series went to Belleville by three points.

The play was most of the time very close, and many of the players gave very fine exhibitions of bowling.

NAPANEE GIRL GUIDE CAMP.

The Napanee Girl Guide Camp was held at Thompson's Point from July 14th to 21st. We are greatly indebted to the Scoutmaster and Scouts of the Napanee Troop, who very kindly allowed the Guides to take over their camping ground on the conclusion of their own camp, and very generously left a great deal of their equipment for our use.

The first step in taking Guides to camp is to secure a camping permit from the Canadian Camp Advisor of the Guides. A detailed account of the proposed camp must be submitted, telling the location of the camp, its distance from the nearest doctor and telephone, the number of intending campers, the date of the camp, the names of those in charge, the sanitary arrangements, the precautions taken to ensure safe boating and bathing, the purity of the water supply, etc. Sometimes a personal inspection by the Camp Advisor is made, but in our case this was not considered necessary before the permit was granted.

Ten Guides, in charge of Miss Diana Miller, the Captain of the Guide Company, and Miss Herrington, from Guide Headquarters, arrived at the camp on the morning of Saturday, July 14th, and took over from the three Scouts who had been left in charge when the Scout camp broke up a few days before. There was a great deal to be done in getting ourselves settled, choosing our tents, finding out from the Scouts where everything was kept, and unpacking our own kit. Before we knew where the time had flown, the Scouts had left and the day was almost over.

For further news of the camp, we have the Camp Log, which was written for the most part by the Guides themselves:

Saturday, July 14th.—We were not able to have a camp-fire because of the rain, so a meeting was held in the cottage, followed by a concert and dance, the orchestra for the latter consisting of kazoos, combs, mouth organ, jazz-whistle, and drums. A dixie and a large spoon make an excellent kettle-drum.

The Guides divided themselves into two patrols, Bluebirds and Orioles, made up as follows:—Bluebirds: Madeleine Stevens, leader; Dorothy Lucas, Muriel Garrison, Dorothy Richardson; Orioles, Rhoda Gough, leader; Grace McCabe, Helen Nelson, Edith Hudson.

Sunday, July 15th.—By the time the Captain was ready to blow the rising whistle, there was no one left to be roused. This does not mean that she overslept, but that the camp was moved to rise at the crack of dawn, perhaps for fear of missing something. After breakfast all the Guides paraded for flag-raising and prayers, the Bluebirds furnishing the colour-party. Miss Herrington pad-dled to Le Nid and bore back loot in the form of a baseball and bat, and a tin of fish-worms. With the latter the Guides caught enough perch about three inches long, to provide supper. In the evening we sat on the verandah of Mrs. Miller's cottage, and sang songs, ranging from "Onward, Christian Soldiers" to the Girl Guide song, and down to Allouette.

Monday, July 16th.—After breakfast, flag-raising, and prayers, we all went off to meet the Paridie. Was it to meet Claire and Marjorie Thompson, or was it for the provisions, some of which have not yet arrived? Claire Thompson joined the Bluebirds, Marjorie the Orioles.

The team play of both patrols in serving meals is much improved. We have not seen to-day what we witnessed yesterday, a whole patrol dashing off and failing to find the milk, which Miss Miller was able to point out to them, from the other side of the camp.

In the afternoon, while the Bluebirds went off to procure a row-boat for the use of the camp, the Orioles fell to and cleaned the cottage. As soon as the floor downstairs was thoroughly scrubbed, no one was allowed to walk on it, and the unfortunate people at work upstairs had to stay at the window and shout, until whatever they needed was hoisted up to them. We thought they would have a chance to use their Oriole wings, but they were finally allowed to walk down.

Tuesday, July 17th.—Due to the Guides accepting the proposal urging the use of daylight-saving time, there were many heavy sleepers, who finally roused a little before 8.30, the rising whistle having sounded at 7.30. The breakfast was prepared by the Bluebirds, and then came morning prayers, and the hoisting of the colours.

After straightening up the camp, a few Guides reached the dock in a row-boat and canoe to welcome Dr. and Mrs. Myers to the vacant cottage on the Point.

The Bluebirds claimed the honours for having the neatest tents, and the Orioles won fresh scrubbing laurels by operating on the floor of Mrs. Miller's cottage.

Four of the Guides had a motor ride to Adolphustown and procured ice cream for the others. Later, the other Guides left the camp in charge of Miss Herrington, and spent a very enjoyable evening at Mr. Lavek's farm-house.

Wednesday, July 18th.—Orioles got a very appetizing breakfast and then took charge of the morning colour ceremony. In a class on First Aid, Miss Miller went through the process of having a sore foot bandaged quite a number of times. Miss Herrington was the victim of several very rough nurses, and her suffering was barely tolerable when she had bandages applied for broken collar-bone, several cut arteries, and a broken leg. After dinner, the Orioles had a lesson in signalling. Several tried their tenderfoot and golfer of their second-class tests, and just before the colours were lowered in the evening, three of the Orioles were enrolled. An impromptu play completed the day's programme.

Thursday, July 19th.—The camp was roused by the voice of Miss Miller, calling for action. The Guides, dressed in bathing-suits, washed a pair of blankets each. Breakfast was served, and the girls who had had a lesson in swimming, finally emptied the water from their lungs and were able to breathe properly.

The camp was very glad to receive fresh supplies for the canteen. A visitor arrived to spend the day, Miss Lloyd, of Deseronto.

After supper we had a play by five of the girls, and after a very heavy day, we turned in early.

Friday, July 20th.—After prayers, the Bluebirds walked to the dock and greeted Mr. Babcock, with a most uncomplimentary chorus of groans merely because he had come to help us break up camp, and his coming meant that we would have to go home the next day. We were complimented on the neat appearance of our camp. The next hour saw a great deal of work done by the Guides. Seven tents were struck and neatly packed away. Dinner proved the most welcome meal of the week, after this exertion. Packing-up and moving into the little cottage was finally over, and a very sad group of Guides bade Miss Miller good-bye.

The Guides tried the fire-lighting test for their second-class, and all succeeded. Some of the Orioles followed a trail laid by the Bluebirds, and are to be given credit for tracking.

In the evening a large camp-fire was lit in the sugar-bush, and we spent the evening singing songs, toasting marshmallows, and popping corn.

Saturday, July 21st.—Breakfast was prepared on a stove improvised by an ingenious Oriole, after our regular stove had been borne off on the Paridie the day before. We had a great deal to do, to leave the cottage in ship-shape and pack up everything that was left, but we managed to fit in an expedition to the dock to meet the boat, and a long swim. Then we saw that one of the Orioles really had learned to swim at the camp.

On our way home on the Paridia, we showed the skipper that one thing Guides can do is to tie knots, and upon we were shown some thrilling new knots and splices.

We don't know what our families thought of the very noisy, sun-burned crowd that climbed off the boat at Napanee, but we hope they thought camp did us good, because we are already planning for next year's outing,—and that is to be for two weeks, if we can manage it."

NEWBURGH.

The lawn social in aid of the Public Library, on Friday evening last, was a very enjoyable affair. The weather was ideal, cooling down after a very warm day. It afforded a fine time for rest to the older people, while the young children enjoyed it to the full. The refreshments and programme completed a full evening's enjoyment.

The farmers in this vicinity have about completed their hay cutting. The hay crop is abundant, but the grain and vegetable crops are showing the effect of the prolonged dry weather.

William Dunlop died in the Kingston General Hospital, on Sunday morning, and his body was brought here for burial. Mr. Dunlop was unmarried and lived nearly all his life in the vicinity of Newburgh. Being a good worker and an expert farmer, he was in much demand among the farmers as a trusted manager. He was the last of a family of ten children. His funeral took place from Geo. B. Paul's undertaking rooms to Camden East, where he was interred in the family plot.

Mr. Fred Peters and his sister, Mrs. Carpenter, accompanied by Mr. Peters' niece, Mrs. Yiles, of Ameroles, visited Mr. Peters' brother, Mr. Marshall Peters, for a few days last week.

Mrs. McLeod, of Winnipeg, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dougans.

Miss Galespie and Miss McCarrow, of North Bay, are holidaying at the home of Miss Galespie's aunt, Mrs. Richard Lilly.

Mrs. Bella Wilson and her daughter, Miss Jessie, have gone to Brockville to visit Mrs. Wilson's daughter, Mrs. Hewitt.

Miss Juanita Wartman is visiting her friend, Miss Betty Ryan, at Port Hope.

Miss Mabel McNeilly spent a week with her sister, Mrs. Lee, of Yarker.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Samson, with their cousins, the Misses Johnston, spent a day visiting their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Perry, of Ernestown.

Miss Mitchell and Miss Willa Nickle, students at Queen's Summer School, were home for the week end.

Miss Annie Gandier was taken to the General Hospital, Kingston, on Saturday evening, where she passed through a successful operation for bowel obstruction.

BANDITS ROB BANK MESSENGERS

THREE MEN WOUNDED AND $83,000 IS STOLEN

Bank Messengers Held Up in Broad Daylight in Heart of Toronto's Financial District—Bullets Fly in Narrow Streets—Gunmen Disappear in Powerful Red Touring Car—Police Car Outdistanced by a Skilled Bandit Driver.

Cold-blooded and calculated villainy stalked abroad in the streets of Toronto on Tuesday morning when a gang of bandits, armed to the teeth with revolvers and shotguns, staged the most dramatic and determined of daylight hold-ups in the history of crime in Toronto.

Three men lie in hospital, so severely wounded that there is a strong chance that they will not recover.

Police estimates place the value of the booty secured by the bandits in the vicinity of $132,000.00, all in negotiable currency, though the banks say the total is $83,000.00.

A fourth man who came to the assistance of the bank messengers from whom the money was stolen was badly beaten and is suffering a nervous breakdown. The injured are:

Jas. W. Harris, Standard Bank messenger, shot through abdomen. His chances of recovery are good.

Walter S. Duck, Union Bank messenger, shot above the heart. His condition Tuesday night was reported favorable, though serious.

David Campbell, Sterling Bank messenger, shot in left lung. In a critical condition.

Allen Lord, elevator man, was bruised in the fight.

For sheer audacity and for utter disregard of human life, the murderous raid establishes a new record. At 9.40 Tuesday morning a mystery car, said to have been a red, high-powered Studebaker, stood at the corner of Melinda and Jordan streets. From it descended calmly men who stationed themselves at the four corners. A few minutes later, when the daily procession of bank messengers, returning from the Toronto Clearing House, was passing, bearing a king's ransom in heavy leather bags, the same peaceful street resembled a shambles.

A Sharp Battle and Escape.

Bleeding from several wounds, two men with blanched faces lay stricken on the wet pavement. A third, pierced by a bullet, had dragged himself to shelter in a doorway, while another who had rushed into the fray fled for his life amid a hail of bullets.

Calmly gathering their loot, the bandits backed across the street, still firing, and climbed into their car, left with engine running ready for immediate flight. Another minute and the escape had begun. When last seen the car, driven by a colored chauffeur, was speeding west on King street, to vanish from the sight of justice.

At a late hour Tuesday night the police officials were scouring the country for the perpetrators of the crime. A cordon was drawn about Toronto and the surrounding towns. No reports have been received of further notice of the bandits, but news of their capture is hourly awaited. It is thought that they made for the border.

The car employed by the robbers in making their escape is said to have been stolen in the east end of Toronto on Saturday last. It bore a stolen license number which has been identified as issued to a resident of Bonnihill and which was missed lately.

Banks Say $83,000.60.

While the full loss has not been ascertained, official figures ascertained by the banks last night indicate that the Bank of Nova Scotia was robbed of $71,000, and the Sterling Bank of $12,000. More than $120,000 was saved from the bandits by the presence of mind and prompt action of other bank messengers who were in the attacked party.

Stories of brave men, performing their duty and remaining faithful to the last breath; of comrades and of a disinterested spectator battling to the death against overwhelming odds; of cowardly assault and of well planned and efficiently executed crime; of a peaceful city street transformed by desperadoes into a battlefield from which innocent citizens fled in horror: these are the factors of the Toronto hold-up which is holding the city and the entire country aghast.

On the Customary Path.

It was on the usual path of the bank messengers from the Toronto Clearing House at 2 Wellington street east that the attack was made and carried through. It is the custom of the bank messengers each morning just before banking hours to go to the Clearing House and wait while the officials there exchange the bank bills received the day previously. Each bank brings the circulation of the other banks, and gets in return its own bills or Dominion Government currency. The return route of the bank messengers has been Wellington street to the west side of Yonge street, to Melinda street, where the south side was usually taken to the different banks in the King and Bay streets section of the city.

Jordan and Melinda streets was the point chosen for the attack. Jordan street is a one-way street for autos, and very narrow. From the way the attack was carried out it appeared that an armed bandit was stationed on each of the four corners. Leading the march of the bank messengers were the uniformed men of the Sterling Bank of Canada and the Bank of Nova Scotia. The cash of the latter bank was contained in two cases, while that of the Sterling Bank was in one. The Bank of Nova Scotia had about $71,000 in cash in the bags, and the Sterling Bank close to $12,000, according to official statements made by the banks.

Battle Quickly Staged.

Revolvers, shotguns and clubs all figured in the battle between the bandits and the bank messengers, which furnished one of the most dramatic episodes in the history of premeditated crime in this city. With the comparative stillness of Melinda street, unfrequented by the heavy traffic of the busier arteries, shattered by a fusillade of ringing shots, dozens of employees in the nearby offices looked down on the scene of the tragic combat, attracted by the unusual character of the occurrence, and scarcely realizing that in the streets beneath men were at grips to the death with a gang of cold-blooded desperadoes.

At 9.45 the corner of Jordan and Melinda streets, where the grey mist of the dark morning was undisturbed by hurrying crowds, presented its usual quiet appearance. Carelessly longing to the occupants of the big, new, brown stone building on the west side of Jordan street, midway between the intersection stood a large red Studebaker car with engine purring as though its stop was to be short. Two minutes later, frightened pedestrians were frantically seeking the nearest shelter; on the pavement lay James Harris, messenger of the Standard Bank, stricken down by two bullets, but emptying his revolver at men who were running toward the red car with their booty; nearer the corner William Duck, Union Bank messenger, was being clubbed over the head with a short shotgun by one assailant while he struggled with another for the possession of his bag containing thousands of dollars in currency, while beside him on the pavement was stretched David Campbell, gasping in pain through blood-flecked lips, with a bullet from a bandit's gun buried in his lungs. Running west on Melinda street, followed by a hail of bullets, Allen Lord, elevator man of the McKinnon Building, who had pluckily come to the assistance of the bank messengers, fled for his life amidst a murderous hail. One minute Melinda street had been a peaceful and unhurried thoroughfare; the next it was practically a shambles, and the scene of the most desperate gun-fight that had ever been openly staged on Toronto streets.

CAMDEN EAST

We are having very dry weather in this vicinity and crops are suffering badly.—Mr. and Mrs. L. Hartman motored to Maple Lane on Sunday last, and spent the day with his brother, Mr. S. D. Hartman, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Emmons and daughter, Lena. —Miss Grace Gallacher returned home on Monday last from Harlem, where she was visiting her sister, Miss Florence Gallacher, for a few weeks.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Martin and daughter, Doris, of Toronto, arrived Monday night to spend two months in his sister's residence, Miss E. Hagerboon, Conway. She was very unfortunate about one year ago, falling and breaking her hip, and was removed to her son's, where she died. She was a kind neighbour, and will be much missed in the village. The funeral sermon was preached here by her Pastor, the Rev. M. Pringle, on Monday afternoon last, in St. Luke's Church, and the remains were taken to Wilton cemetery and laid beside her husband, who predeceased her a few years ago. There were two funerals in that church that afternoon, Mr. Dunlop, of Strathcona, at 2 o'clock, preached by the Rev. Mr. Spencer, a former Pastor, and Mrs. Hagerboon's at 3 o'clock. The many relatives and friends of both parties have the sympathy of the community.—Mr. and Mrs. Ben. Hayek, of Bardolph, accompanied by the latter's sister, Mrs. Ira Fifield, of Hamilton, motored here on Sunday last, and spent the day with another sister, Mrs. Fred Snider. Mrs. Fifefield remained to spend several days with her sister.—A very little man applied for board at Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Amey's, last week.

Deceased was born in Sheffield eighty-two years ago, but spent the most of her life in Hungerford township. Her husband predeceased her same fifteen years ago. In religion she was a Methodist, and was of a kind, cheerful disposition, always ready to return good for evil, and bore her trophies with Christian fortitude and forgiveness. On Wednesday the remains were conveyed from Belleville by auto hearse, to the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. A. Simmons, Potter Settlement. The services were held in the church there, and were conducted by the Rev. R. G. Thompson, after which interment was made in the family plot at Tweed. She leaves to mourn two daughters, Mrs. D. A. History of Odd Titles

If a business man asked you to meet him on the following day in the Land of Green Ginger, you might think that he was trying to be funny, supposing, that is, that you did not know the bustling town of Hull in England.

The Land of Green Ginger is one of the busiest parts of that busy seaport. How did such a name come into existence? The present square does not stand, as some believe, on the site of a market where, in days of old, mariners home from foreign parts sold green ginger to the landlubbers.

We get the key to the mystery in a document of the year 1685, in which a visitor to the town says: "I was set down at the George, at the corner of the land of Moses Greenhinger."

Moses Greenhinger was a renowned boatbuilder, who bought some ground near the river. As years went by the Land of Greenhinger was transformed in popular speech into Land of Green Ginger; and so it remains, to the mystification of many.

Other names almost as quaint abound in all old towns. York's Whipma-Whopma Gate is perhaps as curious as any. To understand its significance you need only exercise your mind back to the "good old days" when rogues and vagabonds were sentenced to be whipped at the cart's tail through the streets.

Besides Whipma-Whopma Gate, York can also produce Jubbergate. It was the Jews' quarter, and the word is a corruption of Jewgate or Judahgate. The same name in different forms appears in London in Jewin street and Old Jewry. Other old foreign quarters are seen in such names as Lombard street, Frenchgate, and Portugal street.

Streets whose names denote the class of trade that was carried on in them are numerous. London has Cheapside and Eastcheap, "cheap" meaning market; in Canterbury the wine sellers had their booths for the refreshment of pilgrims in Winchcap.

Spurriegate in York and Gillspur street in London were the abodes of the spur-makers, the latter being on the way to the tournament ground at Smithfield. Petticoat Lane was not a corruption of petty (little) coats as some maintain. It was the nickname given to the place which was until a few years ago the greatest of "old clo'" markets. At Cambridge Petty Curry stands for Petty Curie, all that is left of "petite cerie," the French for little stable.

Cannon street is another trade name, though it had nothing to do with guns. It was originally Candwick or Candlewick street, the quarter of the candlemakers. Artillery street was the street of the makers of bows and arrows, which weapons were once called "artillery." You may remember how the Bible relates that "Jonathan gave his artillery to the lad."

Birdcage Walk was the aviary of Charles II., whose official keeper of the royal birds, Storey, has left his name in Storey's Gate. Pall Mall stands now where once fashionable Londoners played pallemaille, a kind of early cousin of croquet. Constitution Hill marks the place where an owner of the site once took his morning constitutional.

And what of the hub of the Empire, Piccadilly Circus? In the time of Queen Elizabeth cuffs and collars made of a particular foreign lace were all the rage. A haberdash who specialized in this lace, which was called picadilla, set up a large shop where the Circus now is to-day. So famous did his wares become that his establishment was known as Picadilla House, and later the name passed to the street and the circus.

Only Wants Wheat.

The British Government is being advised to encourage the importation of wheat instead of flour, whether by an embargo on flour or by other means, as a means to relieve the agricultural depression in England. G. Holt Thomas, writing in the London Times, points out that the United States farmer finds it worth while to import Canadian wheat, mill it, and export the flour to England, while he retains the offals. Mr. Thomas advocates that British farmers do the same, and he claims that a Government measure to encourage the importation of grain as opposed to flour would be well received, and would ensure Canadian and other Empire wheat coming into the country. He makes no reference to the probable effect upon Canada's great milling industry.

Elizabethan Link.

As a measure of economy, the special school for the choir boys of the Chapel Royal, St. James' Palace, London, is to be closed, and the boys are to be transferred to the City of London School. The school has been in existence since the days of Queen Elizabeth. "The Children of the Chapel Royal," as the choristers are termed, were the principal performers of the old religious "mystery plays." Among the names of past children who have become famous are those of Orlando Gibbons, Henry Purcell, Sir John Goss, Samuel Sebastian Wesley, and Sir Arthur Sullivan, musicians and composers.

Harnessing the Jordan.

One of the great undertakings for resettling Palestine is to use the swift current of the river Jordan from Mount Hermon to the Dead Sea to furnish electrical power for lights, railways and industrial purposes and water for irrigation. The cost of coal in Palestine—about $25 a ton—is one of the chief reasons why the country is so backward in industry and transportation.

BIDDING HOGS OF LICE

Keep the Colony House and Swine Vermin Free.

Crude Oil Will Bring Certain Relief —Protecting the Farm Well and Its Water From Contamination —Shade and Fresh Water Aid Pork Production.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Vermin cause considerable annoyance to cattle, and their presence in large numbers is destructive to profits. If the swine have a good wallow hole they can free themselves of the pest during the summer, but without the assistance of a wallow, some other aid must be given or the lice will flourish. The pigs will be annoyed and the fences and pens racked through the rubbing of the swine in their attempt to free themselves from their tormentors.

Crude Oil Will Bring Relief.

The application of crude oil to the pig's skin will make the lice let go. The crude oil may be applied through the use of a rubbing post equipped to deliver oil when the pig rubs against it, or it may be applied with an oil can in the hands of a handy man. Hand oil can is used, the spout is drawn along the pig's back from the ears to the tail and sufficient oil released to moisten the pig's skin all over. A good time to apply oil is when the pigs are standing at the feed trough.

Colony houses should be well sprayed with a two per cent. solution of creolin in the autumn and again in the spring.—L. Stevenson, Director of Extension, O.A.C., Guelph.

KEEP WELL WATER PURE.

How the Contamination of Farm Wells Can be Removed.

There are thousands of shallow wells and cisterns on farms that are poorly protected against contamination. Most of them are poorly protected by boards with cracks between them that allow the surface drainage and filth to get in. A good concrete top that will protect the water supply can be made by anyone with only a little effort and at a small expense. It only takes one sack of cement, two cubic feet of sand, and three and a half cubic feet of screened gravel to make a circular top four feet in diameter and four inches thick.

The shape of the top would depend on the well, its location and the taste of the owner. If it is to be circular, lay out a circle on a smooth, level piece of the ground, the exact size of the top desired. Carefully excavate inside the circle to a depth of four inches, this to be the form and is much more easily constructed than one of wood. Cut out a cylindrical block of wood and place where the pump pipe will pass through. Provide four bolts to fasten the base of the pump to concrete top, and pieces of woven wire for reinforcing across and two pieces of smooth wire for the edge of the top.

How to Handle the Concrete.

Provide a platform and mix the concrete to a quaky consistency, not too wet. Use a proportion of one sack of cement to two cubic feet of sand and three and a half cubic feet of screened gravel or crushed rock. Sprinkle the form so it will not absorb much moisture from the concrete, fill the form about half full of concrete, place the reinforcing and set the bolts, and then fill the form with concrete. Finish the surface so that it is slightly higher where the pump will be placed and with a slight slope to one side so that no water will drain back into the well.

To cure or season the top, after the concrete sets, cover with a layer of sand and keep wet for a week or ten days. After about two weeks it may be taken out and set in place on the curb. Where the curb is watertight below the ground surface and it extends a foot or eighteen inches above the surface with a concrete top such as described, the danger of surface contamination will be reduced to a minimum.

How to Purify the Water.

If the water is offensive to sight, smell or taste, it is in all probability unsafe, or at least highly objectionable, for domestic use. In such cases boiling all the water required for drinking purposes is a great safeguard, for it will kill any disease germs that may be present, but it will not make the water a good one. Half a small, teaspoonful of hypochlorite (chloride of lime), rubbed up with a little water and well stirred into a barrel of the water, is another precaution for the destruction of germ life, that is nowadays advocated. But a water impure from the presence of excretal matter is not to be recommended, even when one or other of these precautions is carefully carried out.

Fresh Water and Shade Aid Pork Production.

Good live stock men agree that plenty of fresh water and shade are important factors in the successful propuction of pork. Hogs will drink often if water is available, Water helps digestion and promotes fat production. A mineral mixture of charcoal, hard wood ashes, air slacked lime or ground limestone and salt in front of the hogs wills keep them in better tone.

If a herd of good cows could speak, it is quite likely they would claim as theirs the farm which they so nearly paid for.

Cows need an abundance of fresh air, but it is unnecessary to expose them to the north side of a barb-wire fence during cold and inclement weather in order to get it. Cow comfort demands that fresh air be brought into a warm and well lighted barn. A warm barn may contain pure air and a cold barn may have impure and vitiated air.

It was a thrilling story that McGregor had to tell.
"I had abandoned all hope," he said. "As I sunk for the third time my past life seemed to rise before me in a series of the realistic pictures."
A murmur of sympathy rolled from the lips of listening friends; but just as McGregor was preparing to resume McTavish interrupted him sharply and hopefully. "And did you happen to notice," he asked, "a picture of me lending you five dollars in the autumn of 1919?"

An English rider, coming to a river he was unfamiliar with, asked a youngster he saw playing on the bank if it was deep.
"No," replied the boy, and the rider started to cross, but soon found that he and his horse had to swim for their lives.
When finally he reached the other side he turned and shouted, "I thought you said it wasn't deep."
"It aren't", was the reply. "It only takes grandfather's ducks up to their middles."

IT DIDN'T FIT.
Pat was well-known about the village as the chronic kicker. No one was ever known to please him, in fact it was impossible. One day Pat died, and his death caused much speculation as to whether he would be satisfied in Heaven.
In due course his friend Mike also went the way of all flesh, and upon seeing Pat in Heaven, exclaimed: "Well, well! If it isn't old Pat, and I do hope yez are satisfied up here."
"Oh," said Pat grudgingly. "Things ain't bad, but look here, do you call this crown a fit?"

Canada Faces the Future With Confidence

CANADIANS have always been noted for courage, optimism and faith in their country.

Canada was not built up by pessimists, nor will Canada continue to develop if her people allow themselves to become croakers and for fees, labor, interest and depreciation, the net profit per pig was still $4.63.

Profits from Sheep

As money-makers, sheep are hard to beat. In every Province from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia are found many flocks returning generous profits to their owners.

We Must Cut Production Costs

Canada is meeting with the keenest competition in the marketing of her products. To hold her own and regain her place on the world's market, she must reduce cost of production.

The only way to do this is to increase production per acre, per cow or per other unit.

Not increased quality, also, is essential to meet market demand.

The quantity and the quality of the products and the cost of production in competitive countries is to a great extent under our control.

Prices of agricultural products are regulated by world supply and demand.

Home-developing production will not help the Canadian farmer.

Poultry Pays

Poultry makes money for those who adopt modern methods, whether East or West. Little Prince Edward Island markets co-operatively in cartons, shipping annually upwards of one million dozen eggs. The British Columbia Co-operative Poultry Men's Exchange markets in the same way. Ilusy having ruinous gluts in their local market.

There is a market for good Canadian horses, whether light or draught.

Grow Seed

Canada's Northern grown seed possesses extra vitality. There is a large market for it to the south. Canadian-grown, but imports from seedsmen who have the opportunity to grow seeds themselves and for export.

The Future

Ten years from now the pessimists of to-day will have been forgotten. Britain will have lifted the embargo against our cattle. She wants our beef and bacon, our cheese, butter, eggs and apples, our silver and fleece. As the population of the United States increases, she will come to less and less against us on the British markets. Eventually she will herself be an exporter of many other products which she buys from this country.

Canada has, as regards the climate, the land, the soil and the natural markets, all necessary for successful agriculture. Combined with the industry and resolute energy which Canadians have shown in the past, success is assured. Let us work and save our debts. Canada is winning! Let us look forward with confidence to the future. Let us have faith in Canada.

BRING BACK THE QUAIL

Encourage this Splendid Game Bird on the Farm.

How We Lost Our Quail — Most Birds Are Friends of Farmers—Quail Destroy Weed Seeds and Insects—How to Entice Them Back.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Why not have lots of quail? When they were plentiful we had a great deal of useful shooting. By running overboard and not protecting them in the winter, we have almost lost the Bob-White of our boyhood. Now we have the potato bug and can for it with paris-green. Why not have the quail, plus the sport of shooting them, and get rid of some of these pests to boot at the same time?

How We Lost the Quail.

In the old days the farm lay shot a few brace of quail. The city sport came out, and a few brace were not enough for him. Further and further afield you had to go.

The brush it was natural shelter for the quail, was cleared up and burned. Every foot of ground was cleared for the plough or for pasture. Even weeds, a lusty shelter, followed by short, thin grass was no shelter. Then came severe winters, the snow five two or three days, and quail, useless as we starved. It was a most unequal fight.

Most Birds Are the Farmer's Friends.

The quail is one of the farmer's friends. Let us look at his habits. Very feasibly, one bird can eat a half-bushel weed seeds in a day. Each bird will spend in that way is a fair figure. Why not call it a bushel? Now, if we can save a bushel of weed seeds per bird, we have done much for the farmer.

Now comes the question of quail having these birds practical. It can not be done in a day, nor must you expect it in a year.

There are some quail left. There may be a few on your farm. Protect them. They are worth gold dollars to you. Allow no hunting whatever. As you have seen, outside of planting, the lack of shelter and food during and after winter storms, is the chief cause of the disappearance of this valuable bird!

How to Entice the Quail Back.

Place heaps of brush in the fence corners. Plant a Virginia Creeper, or Wild Cucumber seed, and instead of a brush heap, it will become a beauty spot. On the brush heap or a stump place several forkfuls of buckwheat straw, unthrashed. This will not interfere with your fall ploughing, as the buckwheat is tender, chinch bugs will devour it. In winter the straw is worth a dollar a forkful, if occasions we do. A few forkfuls each time of amount of food weeds each day would be too much. This you see, lets your potato be a weed destroyer in the Bob-White to be plentiful! The United States Department of Agriculture says that each quail in the farm's worth $29 to

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH IS REVEALED AT LAST

Monkey Gland Specialist Exhibits Films of Complete Operation in London.

London, July 20.—Dr. Serge Voronoff, celebrated Paris monkey gland surgeon, yesterday showed a motion picture film here of the complete operation of the transference of the vital gland from monkey to man before an interested group of distinguished surgeons from all parts of the world. It was a feature of the second session of the International Congress of Surgeons. Dr. Voronoff also presented a film depicting the marvelous change effected in old men who had undergone this operation, and who are now enjoying perfect health. Three cases were shown.

One man was 74 years old. Before the operation he was almost doubled up with age. He could not walk up stairs and moved with the assistance of two sticks. In a film taken twenty months after the operation, he was seen playing golf, riding horseback in a park, which looked like the Bois de Boulogne, in Paris, and rowing a boat on a small lake.

The picture created a feeling among the spectators that Ponce de Leon's fountain of youth has been at last discovered. (.

Of the other two men in the film, one was 65 and the other 77. When shown four and six months later, respectively, they appeared to be hale and hearty men in the prime of life, except for grey hair.

Just before the film showing the operation was begun, an English doctor asked Dr. Voronoff if he objected to women being present.

"Certainly not," he replied with a French shrug, and as the lights were lowered, one or two entered the hall.

What Picture Showed.

The picture showed a man and monkey stretched out side by side on two operating tables. Judging from the number of hands seen in the picture, three or four surgeons hovered over them. The necessary incisions were rapidly made in both and then one of the monkey's vital glands was cut into six pieces and quickly sown to the man's—two equivalent glands, whereafter he was sewn up again and a dressing applied.

Before the operation the man was given a local anaesthetic of novocaine, while the monkey, presumably more sensitive to pain, was given a general anaesthetic. It appeared in the film that both subjects twitched occasionally during the operation, the man particularly, just as the finishing dressing was applied.

The film showing the operation lasted twenty minutes, which, allowing for a slight difference, perhaps, in the rapidity of the motion picture operator must have been approximately the time actually consumed.

A film was also shown of Voronoff's experiments with gland transplantation on goats. Two specimens were seen, both goats, before and after the operation, revealing the same characteristic differences as the men before and after treatment. Both of the goats are still well and thriving, and one already has lived two-and-a-half times as long as the average goat. Both goats have had offspring since the operation.

To Asthma Sufferers. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy comes like a helping hand to a sinking swimmer. It gives new life and hope—something he has come to believe impossible. Its benefit is too evident to be questioned—it is its own best argument—its own best advertisement. If you suffer from asthma get this time-tried remedy and find help like thousands of others.

There is nothing repulsive in Miller's Worm Powders, and they are as pleasant to take as sugar, so that few children will refuse them. In some cases they cause vomiting through their action in an unsound stomach, but this is only a manifestation of their cleansing power, no indication that they are hurtful. They can be thoroughly depended upon to clear worms from the system.

SALT FOR LIVE STOCK

Considered Necessary for Practically All Farm Animals.

Be Careful Not to Salt Too Heavily—Live Stock Grow Unthrifty Without It—Milking in Holland—Kindness and Cleanliness Strictly Insisted Upon.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Salt the cattle, salt the sheep, and salt the horses. Why do we practice it? You stockmen have been doing it all your life, and your fathers did so before you. But why did they do it? No doubt it was observed that the stock liked to lick anything that had a salty flavor—a hay cask, or soil where salt had been spilled or a natural salt deposit. Like all our animal feeding practices, the feeding of salt has developed through years of observation, until it is now regularly practiced by all the best herdsmen and feeders.

Salt For Animals a Necessity.

Animals must get salt from some source if their bodies are to function with full efficiency. If no salt is available to the animal through the food medium or minerals given, the digestion is impaired. Large quantities of salt are as harmful in practice as no salt at all. But a little is absolutely essential in that it supplies the chlorine so necessary in forming a minute part (the hydrochloric acid portion) of the digestive fluid. The quantity of salt given to farm animals should not exceed one-half ounce per day for fully grown horses and cattle, small animals in proportion.

Do Not Salt Stock Too Heavily.

Many people make the mistake of salting the stock heavily once a month during the summer, and forgetting to do it at all during the winter period. The live stock kept by people who neglect this work usually develops the appearance of age fect. The use of blocks of rock salt, in troughs or mangers covered is either the stable, yard or field is a good practice that will pay good returns for the expense or effort. Just remember that the stock must have salt from some source, and that the salt that you give them supplies the chlorine essential in the formation of hydrochloric acid in the animals digestive system.

Animals that have been kept without salt for a year become very unthrifty, and animals that are given an overdose of salt do not thrive. Half an ounce a day is about right. It is not a food, but it helps to make the food materials available during the process of digestion.—L. Stevenson, Director of Extension, O.A.C., Guelph.

Turks and Asia Minor.

About the time when William the Conqueror invaded England the Seljuks invaded Asia Minor and conquered the Greeks. Since that time the Greeks of Asia Minor have paid taxes and tribute to the Turks. A part of the ancient population, and the part that the Greeks hated the most, was the "tribute-children," whom the Turks drafted and trained to form the famous Janizaries. In spite of oppression the Greeks have maintained their national unity, their language and their civilization, and in the coast cities and towns the population is still more Greek than Turk.

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydenham, Ont. —"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I had started to take it. I just felt as though I wandered out all the time and would have a weak, faint spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I will send that little book you sent me to any one I can help. You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will help others take it."—Mrs. HARVEY MILLIGAN, Sydenham, Ont.

It is a remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, run-down condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken in safety by the nursing mother.

Gains Ten Pounds In Two Weeks

Popular Commercial Traveller Strong ly Recommends Dreco, the Ideal Tonic and Regulator. His Story is particularly Interesting at This Season of the Year.

Mr. Samuel Toples, of 340 Charlotte Street, Peterborough, Ont., the well-known traveller for B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co., Limited, discovered in Dreco an ideal corrective for internal ailments. Mr. Toples says :—

"For years, my stomach, kidneys and liver have troubled me. My food would sour, causing indigestion, gas and heartburn. Had a sharp pain in the small of my back from my kidneys and suffered terrible dizzy spells which at times got the best of me so that I could hardly keep up with my work. Bad pains in my stomach and chest from the gas and my bowels seemed locked as I had always to be taking medicine to keep them open. I was very nervous and could not sleep, and my appetite was very poor. I hardly knew what it was to eat a square meal.

"I suffered from these ailments for several years and tried almost every kind of medicine without result. Then, fortunately, I heard about Dreco and gave it a trial. One bottle has done more good for me than anything I have ever used. Most of my troubles have vanished and I can carry on my work with great comfort. I intend to finish the full treatment, and have my wife, whose health has been poorly, take it also."

All of Mr. Toples' troubles were traceable to his stomach. Dreco, prepared especially for the stomach from medicinal herbs, and roots, quickly restores it to healthy functions and builds up the whole system. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or bold forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Napanee by Wallace & Co., and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

"The bearer of this letter has worked for me one week and I am satisfied."

A Corrector of Pulmonary Troubles.—Many testimonials could be presented showing the great efficacy of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in correcting disorders of the respiratory processes, but the best testimonial is experience and the Oil is recommended to all who suffer from these disorders with the certainty that they will find relief. Judge McNamara Upheld.

A decision by Judge McNamara, Pembroke, has been upheld in the appellate division of the supreme court. In May, 1922, at the request of Judge Scott, Judge McNamara tried an action in Perth and decided that the council of that town had no right to grant permission for the erection of gasoline pumps on the streets. An appeal was taken, but it was dismissed and Judge McNamara's decision upheld. The appeal judgment extended for thirty days the time fixed for removal of the tank and pump from the street.

Vesper Services.

The July Vesper services at Odessa and at Wilton Methodist Churches took the form of Old Boys' and Girls' Reunions, and attracted large audiences. At Wilton, Mr. J. B. Sandersun, formerly of that place, gave an address on "The Old-time Faith", and at Odessa Mr. Elmer Davis, Kingston, spoke on the heritage that is ours and the contribution this generation should make to national life. At both meetings a married couple's choir led in the singing of old favorites, and the programs included a quartette, solos and a recitation. Bouquets were presented to grandparents present and flowers sent to the sick and the "shut-ins". The services do not follow regular forms, but are informal gatherings.

Wilton Lawn Social.

The Presbyterian Church of Wilton held its annual lawn social on the church grounds, on July 18th. The evening being a perfect one, a very large crowd was in attendance, there being about 400 on the grounds. The amount taken in was $166.00, and the amount cleared over $100.00. The programme consisted of bagpipe, piano and violin music; comic selections by "Mr. Gallagher" and "Mr. Sweet", etc., and other Kingston talent. Another very interesting feature was "King Tut—right from the Tomb"; also the "Loud-Speaking Radio". The refreshment booths were an attractive feature, ice cream and cake, watermelons, homemade candy, lemonade, bananas, etc., being sold. The grounds were well lighted by Delco lights, from Archie Simmons' plant. Much credit is due the Pastor, Rev. A. L. Blacklock, for the success of the social. The members of the committee wish to thank each and every one for helping to make this entertainment such a brilliant success.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. J. F. MacKnight.

The community was shocked and saddened on Sunday, July 22nd, when the message circulated that Mildred Alberta Campbell, wife of Mr. J. Fred. MacKnight, had passed away, at their home, near Tamworth, in Camden Township. Although not in robust health for some months, her illness presented no particular seriousness until just within the last two weeks, when having been to the Hospital, it was discovered that her condition was too critical for the best medical skill. Her return home on Tuesday evening proved to be but a short farewell. Her mission here was over, and the gates of Eternity were ajar for her to enter.

Always of a sunshiny, optimistic disposition, she made friends wherever she went, and those who knew her best loved her most. By extreme old age death is often welcomed, but life is sweet at thirty-three. Not until Saturday did she intimate that she was not going to live. Then she called her daughter, Helen, to her and in a few quiet words committed her to God's keeping.

Mrs. MacKnight was born at Croydon, October 26th, 1889, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Campbell, and her earlier life until her marriage was spent in that community. Besides her bereaved husband and daughter, she leaves to mourn her loss, her mother, two sisters and five brothers. Her funeral was held on Tuesday morning in St. Andrew's Church, Tamworth, of which she was a member, where in the presence of an overflowing and sympathetic congregation, Rev. W. H. Clarke conducted the service, and her body was laid to rest in the Tamworth cemetery.

Her passing has shed a gloom over the whole community where she went about quietly doing little kindnesses very often only known of by herself and the recipients.

Robert R. Hartin.

On Sunday, June 17th, 1923, Robert R. Hartin, second son of the late Henry D. Hartin, and Margaret Reid, died at the age of eighty, at the old homestead, "Eastwood Hill", Centreville, where the family have resided since 1812. His illness of nearly two years' duration, was endured with the greatest patience. Mr. Hartin was a man of retiring, charitable disposition, loved and respected by his many relatives, friends and neighbors.

Of a family of thirteen, three sisters survive, namely, Miss Elizabeth, Miss Marinda and Mrs. S. L. McKm, who were in constant attendance at his bedside. The funeral service was conducted at his late residence, on Monday, June 18th, by Rev. Mr. Leigh, when a large number of relatives and friends assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to one so much esteemed by all. Interment took place in the family plot, Centreville, under the Orange Order 756, of which he had been a member for over sixty years.

MOSCOW.

The Moscow member community picnic has now passed into history, and was a decided success. From 9.30 a.m. until 3 p.m. the people came in large numbers from all quarters. The speakers for the convention hour were all present, Rev. S. F. Dixon, Rev. A. C. Hoffman, and Mr. E. J. Sexsmith, M. P., while Mr. Wroomon, M.P.P., and Mr. W. D. Black, M.P.P., were unexpectedly prevented from attending. Owing to the size of the park and the intense excitement created by the games and sports, it was not possible to get the big crowd together for the speaking, and lack of time also made it necessary to call off more than one-half of the long list of athletic sports. The "big thing" was the last league game of baseball for the season, Yarker vs. Newburgh. It was a great game, and the score was either 9-9 or 10-9, in favor of Newburgh. The point was not decided when the teams left the grounds. Great credit is due the officers and directors, for they were all on the job to the finish. Proceeds will up to $150.00, counting free tickets. A special vote of thanks is hereby tendered to any and all who helped to make this, our first community picnic, such a fine success, and to the band teams, who did us a great favor by playing the "league game" on the grounds. The next big event is the picnic at "Cedar Crest Park", Varty Lake, next Wednesday, the 8th inst., to which a number from here are going.

A small bottle of Parke's Catnip Flavor flavors and preserves a whole bushel of tomatoes. No other spices needed. For sale at Wallace's.

YARKER.

Quite a number from here attended the big picnic at Wilson's grove on Wednesday, and report the best time yet. — A goodly number have also secured tickets for the Ai picnic at "Cedar Crest Park", Varty Lake, next Wednesday, 8th inst.— Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Otis at Mrs. W. Smith's. — Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Down, and Mr. Jack Burnette, of Ottawa; Rev. A. McLauchlin, Mrs. A. McLauchlin, and Miss Betty and Masters Bill and Bob McLauchlin, of Keene; Miss F. Down, of Pickering, and Mr. P. Robertson, of Trenton, have been spending their holidays at the parsonage with Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Down.

GLEN ISLAND NEWS.

The weather for the last week has been most delightful, although rain has threatened on several occasions. The wind has remained mostly in the north and east, discouraging the local Isaac Waltons from pitting their skill against the mighty muskie.

The good ship "Dolphin", under Skipper Mills, has been making frequent trips on the bay, her moonlight sails proving a great attraction. The vocal recitals rendered gratis by the younger guests, with the chorus and solo work, must be heard to be appreciated. The inhabitants of the bay shore have been advised individually and collectively of the unprecedented shortage of bananas and of the damp romance of "My Darling Clementine" until they resorted to ear-muffs.

Among the guests who are well known in Napanee are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Daly and children, Miss Margaret Daly, Mrs. U. J. Flach and Miss Marjorie Flach. Miss Helen B. Wallace is expected down for the week-end.

Dr. Wells, who has brought in so many of the largest fish in previous years, has arrived with his family, and everyone is looking forward to the results of surgeon Dr. W. W. Robinson's last year's catch of a 63-lb muskie.

The "Dolphin" is attending the Belleville Regatta, with Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Williams and a party on board.

The Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday night dances have been most popular, the cool, airy pavilion and the famous Trinity Trio attracting numbers from Picton and Napanee by water. The road from Napanee to Young's Point is in excellent shape, both via the Hamburgh road and the Hay Bay ferry.

Mr. Herbert Daly has laid out a 9-hole "table" golf course on the Island, which is very popular. The game is played under Patagonian rules.

The masquerade dance was a great success, with some novel and beautiful costumes. Miss Eileen Smith, of Cobourg, carried off the lady's first prize in a very becoming mauve and yellow creation, as a mercurial French doll. Dr. Amey, of Toronto, took the gentleman's first prize. He appeared as a perfect Huckleberry Finn, fishpole and all.

Messrs. George Daly, Purnell Gould and Harold Herrington, of Camp Le Nid, cruised to Picton last Monday in the "Skimeer". After inspecting the town, they set out to hang up a record on the return trip. This took four hours and forty-five minutes, and constitutes a slow-action record. They were passed by everything on the bay. They deep hung the anchor down during the return trip, as there is no anchor. All offers well during the trip and voted the whole voyage delightful. George has successfully passed his Able Seaman's examination and now proudly inscribes the letters "A. B." after his name.

A match is being arranged between Mr. Franklin Gould, golf champion of Camp LeNid, and the winner of the Glen Island Golf Tournament. The match will be played under Match Play Rules, and the outcome is awaited with interest.

STEAMER SINKS IN LAKE

CREW OF EIGHT MEN AND ONE WOMAN TAKE TO BOAT.

Napanee Boy Survives a Thrilling Experience.

Captain James Quinn of 132 Seaton street, Toronto, and eight members of the crew of the steamer W. J. Carter huddled in a small boat, were blown about for six hours in a storm on Lake Ontario after the steamer sank Saturday night.

Captain Quinn and his crew, who included Mrs. Kate Redmond, of Peterboro' and Toronto, the cook, were picked up by the steamer Key Port at 4.30 Sunday morning and taken to Kingston. Mrs. Redmond reached Toronto Sunday afternoon, and went direct to the home of Captain Quinn, where she was put to bed.

Gives Credit to Captain.

Mrs. Redmond was still in a state of near exhaustion Sunday night, and under medical advise decided not to make any lengthy reference to the thrilling experiences of herself and the rest of the crew on the night before. Mrs. Redmond said she was still alive last night, first, because they were picked up by the Key Port, and, secondly, because Captain Quinn kept the oars himself and guided the small boat in the storm. The woman gave both full credit. It took a skilful seaman, to get them aboard the Key Port, she said, and it was just as thrilling and difficult to guide the small boat in the storm. When picked up they were almost all exhausted, but after given food and any spare dry clothing on the Key Port were able to be transferred to the Wolfe, a ferry running between Kingston and Wolfe Island. Captain Quinn and the crew, with the exception of Mrs. Redmond, who had little clothing, remained in Kingston.

Loaded With Coal.

The steamer W. J. Carter was carrying coal between Oswego and Cobourg. She was owned by the Hicks Brothers Company, of Peterboro'. Captain Quinn with the W. J. Carter was delayed some time waiting for a cargo at Oswego, but succeeded in getting a load of coal directed to another boat. When he left Oswego Saturday at 5.30 p.m. he was bound for Cobourg with the coal, which was to be transhipped to trains and sold to dealers in Northern Ontario points. After leaving Oswego the steamer ran into heavy weather. They were riding the high waves safely when Thomas Ralfe, Chief Engineer, announced a leak. The pumps, he said, were unable to check the flow. Captain Quinn ordered all to the lifeboats, but before they could get near them the steamer listed and sank. They were just in time, however, to launch a small boat used by the crew for painting and repair work.

She Sank Quickly.

The steamer went down in fifteen minutes after the leak was discovered. Captain Quinn and Engineer Ralfe before taking to the small boat tied the whistle in such a way that it would keep blowing so long as she remained afloat, and thus give warning to passing steamers. The steamer's whistle was blowing when the crew saw her disappear in fifteen fathoms of water.

All night long they drifted about, with Captain Quinn at the oars, he not wishing to trust the guidine of the boat in the waves to anybody but himself. They brought with them from the steamer a lantern, which they waved continuously, but got no response. Three steamers passed them without seeing them, and the fourth, the Key Port, was well on her way down the lake when the frantic efforts of the eight men and one woman in the small boat to attract attention caught the eye of the First Officer of the Key Port, who was on watch. Captain Quinn saw the Key Port stop, the crew on, and the party had just given up hope of rescue, when she suddenly circled around and came toward them. The rescue was effected with the greatest difficulty, as it was the wish of the First Officer of the Key Port and his crew that they should not further endanger the lives of the nine half exhausted people in the frail craft. There was a heavy gale blowing at the time and the sea was running very high.

Mrs. Redmond was taken off first, Captain Quinn being the last to leave the small boat. The crew of the W. J. Carter comprised: Captain James Quinn, Toronto; Thomas Ralfe, chief engineer, Fort Erie; Robert Robinson, second engineer, Huntsville; James McAlear and Bernard Loughlin, firemen, Kingston; Walter Smith, wheelsman, Napanee; William Steadman, deck-hand, Aurora, and Mrs. Kate Redmond, of Peterboro' and Toronto.

For the six hours they were on the lake during the night they had to keep the boat bailed out. They were wet through when the Key Port came in sight.

Walter Smith, the wheelsman mentioned in the above article, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith, Water Street.

OBITUARY.

Mr. Charles Darling.

On Tuesday, July 24th, 1923, at his home, near Moscow, the death occurred of Mr. Charles Darling. Deceased was in his seventy-sixth year, and had spent his entire life in this community, his farm having been cleared by his father, the late Samuel Darling, and himself. The Darlings are of old United Empire Loyalist stock, and the mother of the deceased, Marin Harney, came from the County Tyrone, Ireland, sometime before her marriage to Samuel Darling. There is left to mourn the loss of an affectionate father, one son, Fred Albert, and one daughter, Grace Darling (Mrs. D. A. German), both of Moscow; also seven grandchildren, Charlie, Claire, Eloise and Carmelcetta Darling, Geraldine, Velma and Irene German. His wife, Amanda Simmons, pre-deceased him in March, 1922. The funeral was held at his late residence, on Thursday, July 26th, and was conducted by his Pastor, Rev. J. W. Down, of Yarker, and Rev. Mr. Babcock, of Harrowsmith.

FORMER NAPANEE BOY ABROAD.

The following is taken from the Syracuse Herald:—

George O'Hara, 506 McBride street, merchandise manager for E. W. Edwards & Son, home after a 12,000-mile European trip, gave an interesting account of his travel to The Herald to-day. Sailing June 2 on the Majestic Mr. O'Hara returned on the Aquitania, July 21st, just 49 days later.

"The greatest number of American buyers ever in the European market were there this summer, I was told abroad," Mr. O'Hara said.

"Germany's situation interested me greatly. The business men there quote you prices in dollars. The mark was 110,000 to the dollar when I arrived in Europe and 300,000 to the dollar when I left.

"The German anti-rent-profiteering laws work out this way: The Edwards agents in Berlin have nine rooms which they rent to others and from these they receive the equivalent of five cents a month. The government has legislation against raising rents and it is enforced.

Foreigners Pay Double.

"Americans and English in Germany are taxed 80 per cent. and 10 per cent. on all charges at hotels and restaurants. My hotel bill at $3.50 a day was subject to an extra charge of $3.15 under the tax on foreigners. There are compensations, however, in other lower prices. A stein of beer in Berlin, for example, is sold for a cent and a half.

"While in Belgium I called at the home of Cardinal Mercier at Malines, but did not see him. At Vienna in the cathedral crypt I viewed the coffins of 136 kings and queens and two saints. At the royal household I saw the quarters of Franz Josef, including the plain iron cot on which he slept and which was his deathbed. Austria is ravaged, its population of 60,000,000 cut to 6,000,000 by partition of the land. Vienna is gay, but is not as good a market as other capitals.

200,000 at Track.

"From Paris we went out to the Longchamps races and visited Versailles. The crowd of 200,000 at the track was one of the sights of the trip.

"The Majestic is what they must mean by a floating palace. The only way I realized I was on shipboard going over was by going to the window or on deck. If the Kaiser was coming on an American triumph he surely had a vehicle fit for it in the Vaterland. It took us over in five and a half days and we came back in six days. It was my first trip and needless to say, my best, so far."

Mr. George O'Hara is a brother of Mrs. Silas Woodcock, of Napanee. He has been connected with business enterprises in Syracuse for the past thirty years.

Lady Sharp, Once of Napanee, Re-Visiting Girlhood Scenes

Lady Sharp, who, with her husband, Sir Henry Sharp, is a guest at the King Edward, Toronto, for a few days, on route to England, is a native of Napanee, Ontario, and before sailing for the Old Country, intends to visit many of her old friends in Eastern Ontario.

In spite of the fact that she has a nine-year-old grandson, Lady Sharp is vivacious and young, both in appearance and interests. When called on by a representative she was wearing a smart costume, composed of draped black canton skirt with white jacquette embroidered in brilliant red braid, and a chic cloche hat finished with a narrow lace veil extending under the chin.

"I'm not going to tell how long we've been married," she declared, laughingly, but one somehow recalled seeing a newspaper despatch from California only a few weeks ago announcing the marriage of Mrs. George Hamm, of Mexico, and formerly of Savannah, a wealthy widow, to Sir Henry Sharp, for thirty years Secretary of State in India.

Lady Sharp and her husband intend making their home in London, England, where the former's son resides. Last year Lady Sharp spent five months in Bucharest visiting her daughter, who is the wife of the American Consul-General to Rumania.

DRIVER JUMPED FROM MOVING CAR.

SIX IN TONNEAU UPSET UNHURT. POLICE SEEKING FUGITIVE IN WOODS.

When Provincial Officer Thompson, of Napanee, was giving chase on the Ninth Concession of Tyendinaga, on Sunday afternoon, to a car which had been stolen some time before from a garage at Deseronto, the driver of the pursued motor spurted on the gasoline and drove away at a furious rate. Dashing over the top of a hill and down an incline which was wooded, the driver jumped from the motor which he left running and dashed into the woods. The car continued its course and was ditched in a few seconds at the side of the road on the hill. Fortunately the occupants, who included two men, two women and two children, were unhurt in spite of the awkward position in which the driver had left them.

The fugitive, when he disappeared in the woods, made good his escape for the time, the officer in charge being unwilling, on the ground of a common humanity, to look after the occupants of the motor who he feared might be badly hurt.

One of the wheels of the stolen motor car was broken.

The car was discharged to Ross Paul, of Napanee, and had been left in Thompson's garage at Deseronto. It was taken after midnight on Saturday and was discovered Sunday morning at eight o'clock. By two o'clock the provincial officer on duty at Napanee had traced the motor car and came in sight of the fugitive.

The driver of the fleeing car is said to have been G. L. Howard.

COUNTY COUNCIL COMMITTEES.

On Saturday, 28th July, Warden J. S. Johnson convened The Finance, Roads and Bridges and County Property Committee, and they met at the County Clerk's Office, and transacted several important matters of business.

In the morning the Finance Committee opened 13 sealed tenders received by Secretary, R. W. Paul, for $250,000.00 5½ per cent. Debentures maturing in ten equal annual instalments, and awarded them to R. A. Daly & Co., Toronto, the highest tenders there offer being $100.59, or $100.20 over par. Chairman W. H. Milling having the debentures ready, it was ordered that they be transferred to the Treasurer to be immediately forwarded through Dominion Bank and delivered to the purchasers upon receipt of $28,163.20. Committee also considered the present insurance on County Machinery $18,500.00 and decided to cancel same as the machinery was only covered while in storage, and to place insurance on it in the Fall at short date, 7 months while handling thus saving about $200.00 in premiums. County barn will be insured for $1000.00.

During the afternoon the three Committees were in joint conference, and besides disposing of a number of minor matters, dangerous condition of level crossings and approaches at several places in the County on C. N. Railway and C. P. Railway, was discussed, and the Clerk was instructed to notify the Head Offices of these Railways thereof and demand immediate remedial action in the matter. Council meeting will be held in September. Thomas McNeely was directed to have necessary repairs made to the Court House roof, and to have the same painted in accordance with specifications in several other matters.

Chairman of Roads and Bridges Committee, P. E. Smith, and Reeve W. B. Hall, were appointed to accompany Anthony Rankin, Esq., M. L. A. for Frontenac, and wait on Minister of Highways, concerning certain County Road matters.

The Councillors expressed regret at the illness of W. D. Black, Esq., M. L. A., who is confined in Belleville General Hospital.

GREEN FEED AND ITS VALUE.

(Experimental Farms Note).

The value of green feed in connection with dairying is well known. Some farmers practice the natural method of feeding it, but only on meadow pasture. Others feed it in the fall to meet unfavorable feed conditions. The Experimental Farms system of feeding green crops is carried through the summer, and is applicable to the requirements of practically all parts of Canada. Cows are turned on fresh pasture pastured, by the aid of movable fences, in the morning of every day. Where the pasture is small, further, the cows were in good healthy condition in the fall.

Oats, peas and vetch, when sown together, make an excellent mixture for green feed for dairy cows, because it is rich in protein and carbohydrates.

Green feed will do much to reduce the cost of rearing calves. Ten pounds of good oats, peas and vetch have approximately the equivalent in feeding value of three pounds of ground oats. In other words, if oats are worth $42.00 per ton for feed, green feed from oats, peas and vetch would have a feeding value of $11 per ton.

When green feed in the form of clover, rape and oats, peas and vetch is provided for our brood sows we are able to reduce the meal ration from ¼ pounds per head per day to three pounds, which is a saving in mill feeds of three pounds per day, or 3 cents per sow per day. The following method is adopted for supplying green feed, for pigs:—A small area near the piggery is sown with common red clover and alsike, with a cover crop of oats. As the oats reach the milk stage they are cut and fed to pigs in pens. The clover will come on early in the following spring and be fit to pasture off by the middle of June. Two more small paddocks are sown with rape as early in May as the soil is fit to work. This is usually ready for pasturing from the first to the middle of July. A third paddock is sown to oats, peas and vetch. This is cut and fed to pigs in pens, ready about the last of July. In this way there is provided a continuous supply of green feed for the brood sows and growing pigs throughout the greater part of the season. Oats, peas and vetch are mixed as follows:—Banner oats, 1½ bushels; Gold Vine peas ¾ bushel; vetch, ½ bushel; and sown at the rate of 3 bushels per acre. Rape is seeded at the rate of 8 pounds per acre, broadcast. Common red clover is seeded at the rate of 10 to 12 pounds and alsike at the rate of 2 to 3 pounds per acre. It is not a good plan to turn the pigs in on the oats, peas and vetch, as there is too much waste from trampling. In feeding the rape, allow the pigs two or three hours per day at first; later they may be allowed full range of paddock. If the practice of growing green feed for stock is once established, its value as an economical stock feed will soon become apparent.

POINTS ABOUT PLOWS

The Development of This Basic Agricultural Implement.

Began With Sharpened Pieces of Wood—Iron Plows Used by the Romans — Introduction of the Subsoil Plow—British and American Plows the Climax in Development.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Sharpened stakes and crooked limbs of trees were the earliest substitutes for the plow in historical times, and their use has been common among the nations. The ancient Egyptian plow was but a pointed stick. The early Greeks used the trunk of a small tree with two branches opposite, one forming the share and the other the handle, while the trunk formed the pole or beam.

The Iron Plow Used by Romans.

Iron plowshares were used many centuries before the Christian era by the Romans, and the iron was used for a double purpose—for plowpoints one year and for swords and spears the next, as iron was scarce in those days. The Romans greatly improved the plow by putting on a wheel and also a coulter. Many races of people showed a widespread hostility to the use of iron in connection with agriculture, believing that iron poisoned the land.

Wooden Plows Used in America 150 Years Ago.

The people of all countries went through the early experience of finding a ways and means of tilling the soil, some slowly, some rapidly; and curiously enough the first plow of all nations were much the same in spite of the fact that some nations started thirty or forty centuries ahead of the others. The wooden plow is only a century and a half remote in American agriculture.

It is curious to trace the progress of plowmaking in Britain, where Cæsar introduced the plow about 55 B.C. Those of the early cultivators were of presently rude and imperfect, for in those days the plowman was obliged by law to make a plow before he was permitted to use one. It is uncertain whether the early British plow had wheels, but wolfe of those of the Saxons were furnished with them. The Norman plow was furnished with wheels, and it was usual for the plowman to carry a hatchet to break the clods.

Introduction of the Subsoil Plow.

The first attempt at the construction of a subsoil plow was made in 1677. It loosened the land up to a depth of fourteen inches. It is not necessary to do more than point to the various and numerous references which are found in early history of this valuable implement. For ages the plow was little more than a clumsy instrument, which served only to tear up the surface of the land sufficiently deep for the seeds to be buried. It was not brought to anything like a perfect tillage tool until the close of the seventeenth century. The Dutch were amongst the first who brought the plow more into shape, and soon its best features were copied and included in the Britisher's idea of a plow.

The Rotherham plow was made by J. Foljambe at Rotherham, and a patent was granted for it in 1730. It was then the most perfect in use, and is still well known after two centuries. This plow was constructed chiefly of wood, the draft iron share and coulter and the plating on the mould board and sole being the only parts made of iron. With the development of the iron industry, it was but a short time before plows made entirely of iron and steel were being made.

James Small, a Scotsman, was the first inventor and manufacturer of the cast-iron mould board. At that time (1760) the plow was generally the joint manufacture of the village wheelwright and blacksmith. Plow shares had been made of wrought iron until 1785, when a patent was secured by Robert Ransome for the making of cast-iron shares. The case hardening process as applied to cast-iron shares was the subject of a patent granted in 1803.

British Plows the Climax in Development.

The Rotherham plow, Small's chain plow, and Small's Scotch plow represented the climax in plow development previous to 1800, and the men whose ingenuity, spirit, and perseverance brought about the development in plow making were Foljambe, Small, Wilkie, Finlayson and Ransome. The work and development of the plow during the past 125 years is too well known to all to warrant its mention here.

The old plowmen simply scratched the soil with their crude implements, going over the field time and time again, crossing and re-crossing until they had worked up a few inches fine seed bed. The Roman farms were rarely over five acres in extent, and when our forefathers in this country used the old wooden plow, the clearings among the stumps were small. The two century gap between the old rooter that scratched the soil surface and the new multiple bottom tractor plow of to-day is a long stretch for the numerous plow milestones that stand by the way to mark the progress of Agriculture.—L. Stevenson, O. A. C., Guelph.

Fall plowing is best from the standpoint of saving time, as it leaves more time for spring work and usually means earlier seeding. Spring plowing is more effective in the control of weeds, as, being turned under just before seeding, they have less chance to crowd the grain.

The best time to inspect a machine for its weak parts is when you are putting it away for the season. A few notes in a memorandum book set down at the time will help you remember the new parts you should order next winter.

Just What She Needed

Mrs. M. Steed Tells of Wonderful Benefits Her Daughter Received From One Bottle of Dreco.

A story of motherly love triumphant by the aid of Dreco is told by Mrs. M. Steed, of 43 Lindiner Street, West Toronto, as follows:

"My daughter Beatrice had been in a general run-down condition for several months," says Mrs. Steed. "She had no appetite, poor circulation, pains all through the body and severe headaches; also spells of indigestion. She was very nervous and couldn't sleep well. She tried various remedies but none of them seemed to give her any result.

"Reading of so many people getting good results from Dreco I decided that she had better try it. This week I purchased a bottle. Already there is a marked improvement. She is beginning to get a good appetite, rests better, has no more headaches, and in fact her condition in general is much improved already.

"It was just what she needed and I do not hesitate in praising the merits of this great tonic. I will never lose an opportunity of telling my friends about Dreco."

Statements like this from responsible people right in Toronto should do much to convince people of the true merits of Dreco. This remedy does not contain mercury, potash or any harmful drugs. Dreco is composed entirely of the juices of roots, herbs, bark and leaves that act on the vital organs and put them in a new working order.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Napanee by Wallace & Co., and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

"Why do you jump at the sound of a motor car?"

"Well, some time ago my chauffeur eloped with my wife, and every time I hear a horn I think he is bringing her back."

Moths.

There are three stages of destructive moths and all merely change their coats when they make ready for winter. We know our best cold weather moth as the Clothes Moth, and the Tapestry Moth.

The name of the Furniture Moth is self-explanatory. It eats carpets, etc., to make a home for its young. They very rightly use the fur or hair of the animals and birds for their nests and also the edge of the carpet or upholsterine or chairs is preferred. They are extremely difficult to detect, and have often accomplished much damage before their presence is known. This species of moth has pale yellow wings without any markings.

The Clothes Moth has greyish yellow wings with faint brown spots. This moth lays its eggs in clothes, being specially fond of fur and woollen garments. When exposed to a strong light, the developing power of this moth's eggs are destroyed, so that it is quite a good plan, during the winter months, to leave all furs and woollen and such things lying about in the sunniest parts of a room, instead of shutting them upon drawers and cupboards. In this way the eggs will be destroyed before they are due to hatch in the early part of the year.

The Tapestry Moth is the largest of these destructive moths, and specially delights in laying its eggs in holes, carriage linings, and such things. Sunlight has no bad effect upon its eggs, so it is wise to use pepper, camphor, or naphtha, as a preventative, for in this case "prevention is far better than cure." An occasional beating of the furs, etc., is another excellent way of fighting our enemy, the moth.

HANDLING THE HARROW

An Implement Often Neglected By Farmers.

Smoothing, Disc, and Spring Tooth Harrows Described.—Keep the Bolts Tight and the Wearing Parts Clean.—The Implement Shed.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The iron smoothing harrow, being a rather clumsy implement to handle, is apt to be neglected to the extent of bolts working loose and teeth falling out. A small wrench should always be at hand, preferably strapped to the adjusting lever, with which all bolts could be tightened and kept in proper adjustment. The teeth should be kept sharpened if the harrow is to do its best work with the least expenditure of horse or tractor labor. The harrow sections should be tested for uniformity of set frequently, by lining up the teeth and seeing that all are cutting the same depth. Long, short, crooked, or dull teeth reduce the efficiency of this implement. When not in use the harrow should be piled in sections out of harm's way. In storing away after seeding it is a good practice to daub a little machine oil or grease on the bright portion of each tooth, using a brush or cloth to do so. If any parts, such as bolts or teeth have been lost, make note of it on a card, tying the card to the section so that repairs will be made before the harrow is required for use again. The rusty harrow tooth will ball up, collecting grass roots and soil particles in moist ground, reducing the efficiency of the work. It pays well to keep the harrow teeth bright and sharp. The place in the implement shed for harrows where such will be out of the way is up on the side walls. Long pegs or spikes that will hold two sections can be driven in the studs or wall boarding, and the harrow sections hung thereon high, dry and easy to get when wanted.

This harrow generally suffers more from neglect to oil than any other farm implement. Lifting and dropping the soil on its own bearings, it has been difficult for manufacturers to make a bearing that is dust or sand proof. Frequent and careful oiling right from the start is the only practice that will save the bearings of the disc. If the bearings become loose or worn, the draft is greatly increased and the work not as well done. The oil can should always be at hand and oil should be applied every hour. A 16-inch disc will turn 660 times an hour at ordinary field speed with considerable pressure from two directions on the bearings. Oil can not be expected to last very long, and it does not, so oil often or your disc will squeak and the horse tire. This implement must be kept tight if it is to do its best work. The wrench should always be on hand and used when needed. If the discs are free from rust, well burnished and smooth, they are not apt to clog. The rusty disc may cause long delays in the early spring. The discs should be dry and clean when put away, and a little rub with a soft cloth saturated with machine oil will keep the wearing parts bright and always ready for the field.

The Spring Tooth Harrow.

The spring tooth harrow is an easier implement to keep in order than the disc harrow. With large wheels twice a day oiling will suffice. The keeping of the bolts tight and the wearing surfaces clean and bright are the principal needs leading to efficient working of this implement. Steels points must be renewed or sharpened when required. The wearings parts should be kept bright and clean; this is best done by going over them with a dry cloth and then following with an oil soaked one. The moving parts in the elevating mechanism require and should get sufficient lubricant to keep them in condition to move freely. Both shelter and painting when needed to protect the iron and wood parts and keep the wheels tight are very essential to long and useful life of this implement. — L. Stevenson, O. A. C., Guelph.

The Implement Shed.

Shelter for tools and implements is absolutely necessary during the period when such are not in actual use. The weathering elements will soon destroy the wood or metal used in implements, perhaps not fast enough to excite the indolent man into action, but nevertheless, slow, sure and steadily the wood will decay and the metal will rust, until the implement becomes too weak to stand the strain of use. A good roof over a floor that is always dry, and amply large for the implements and tool storage requirement of the farm is all that is needed. A palatial building is not needed. Posts set in cement, a frame strong enough to support roof and wall is all that is required if a special building must be erected.—L. Stevenson, O. A. C., Guelph.

Orchard May Be Pruned In Winter.

Fruit growers do not need to wait until spring to prune their orchards. There is little or no difference in the growth and maturity of the wood where pruning has been done any time between November and May.

If the usual care is taken to make the cuts close to the main trunk or branches, no stubs will be left to die and decay, though the covering of wounds with a white lead and oil paint or with common grafting wax warmed to the consistency of cold molasses will give added protection.

The boy and girl should be made to see that they are a main factor in the maintenance of a farm, and not a slave or servant to do little errands for the parents.

The worms that infest children from their birth are of two kinds, those that feed lodgement in the stomach and those that are found in the intestines. The latter are the most destructive, as they cling to the walls of the intestines and if not interfered with work havoc there. Miller's Worm Powders dislodge both kinds and while expelling them from the system serve to repair the damage they have caused.

A GOOD WINTER WHEAT

Farmers May Try Free a Well Tested Variety.

The O. A. C. No. 104 Is a Proven Success — Other Experimental Tests Suggested—All Material Is Supplied Free of Charge—A Chance for Enterprising Farmers.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The market value of the winter wheat of Ontario amounts to over fifteen million dollars annually. It is, therefore, one of the most important of the money crops of the Province. The acreage of winter wheat during the past year has been about the same as the average annual acreage for the past forty years. There is not a county or district in Ontario in which winter wheat is not grown, although in New Ontario the average annual amount is not more than about 20,000 bushels. Owing to the comparative low price of winter wheat at present, strict attention should be given to economic methods and to large yields.

O. A. C. No. 104 a Carefully Chosen Cross.

The Dawson's Golden Chaff is still the variety most largely grown according to the December Bulletin of the Ontario Department of Agriculture for 1922. With the object of securing even a better variety, crosses have been made at the Ontario Agricultural College between the Dawson's Golden Chaff and some other varieties, such as, Tasmania Red, Crimean Red, Turkey Red, Bolda Pesth, Imperial Amber, and Bulgarian. A new variety has been originated at the College by crossing the Dawson's Golden Chaff and the Bulgarian, and this is now known as the O. A. C. No. 104. In both the College and the co-operative tests this new variety has made an excellent record, surpassing the Dawson's Golden Chaff in both yield and quality of grain. It is a white wheat, and resembles the Bulgarian in possessing a white chaff and the Dawson's Golden Chaff in a beardless head. It is a vigorous grower, and has been less subject to winter-killing than the Dawson's Golden Chaff.

The Value of Using Good Seed.

It is also important to use seed of high vitality. The results of six years' experiments at the College show an average increase in yield of grain per acre of 6.8 bushels from large as compared with small seed, of 7.8 bushels from plump as compared with shrunken seed, and of 9.9 bushels from sound as compared with broken seed. Seed which was allowed to become thoroughly ripened before it was cut produced a greater yield of both grain and straw, and a heavier weight of grain per measured bushel than that produced from wheat which was cut at any one of four earlier stages of maturity. In each of two years when winter wheat was grown in the fields, germination tests of the grain were made. The following results show the average percentage of germination from each selection: Skin over germ, unbroken, 94; skin over germ, broken, 76; sprouts one-quarter inch long, 30; and sprouts one inch long, 18. Not only was the sprouted wheat low in germination but the plants produced were very uneven in size.

White Wheats vs. the Red Varieties.

White wheats as compared with red wheats yield more grain per acre, possess stronger straw, weigh a little less per measured bushel, are slightly softer in the grain, are more useful in the manufacture of shredded wheat and of pastry, and furnish a somewhat weaker flour for bread production.

Winter wheat which was grown on clover sod yielded much better than that which was grown on timothy sod, and that which was grown on land on which field peas were used as a green manure yielded 6.5 bushels of wheat per acre more than that grown on land on which buckwheat was used as a green manure.

Several Experimental Unions To Choose From.

In time for seeding this autumn, valuable material will be sent out from the College to those farmers residing in Ontario who wish to conduct experiments upon their own farms under the medium of the Experimental Union. The material will be supplied, free of charge, to those who wish to conduct the experiments and report the results in the early autumn of 1924. Any Ontario farmer may apply for the material for any one of the following seven experiments: (1) Three choice varieties of Winter Wheat (including O. A. C. No. 104); (2) One variety of Winter Rye and one of Winter Wheat; (3) Spring applications of Rye Fertilizers with Winter Wheat; (4) Autumn and Spring applications of Nitrate of Soda and Common Salt with Winter Wheat; (5) Winter Emmer and Winter Barley; (6) Hairy Vetches and Winter Rye as fodder crops; (7) Mixtures of Winter Rye and Hairy Vetches for seed production.

The size of each plot is to be one rod wide by two rods long. Fertilizers will be sent by express for Experiment No. 4 this autumn, and for Experiment Nunmber 2 next Spring. All seed will be sent by mail except that for Number 4 which will be sent by express for the fertilizers. The material will be sent out in the order in which the applications are received, and as long as the supply lasts.—C. A. Zavitz, O. A. C., Guelph.

EATMOREHOME-GROWN

We Import Too Much Foreign Agricultural Products.

Canadians Use a Good Deal of Imported Fruit, Vegetables and Grain—Their Value Estimated at Nearly $100,000,000—The Mystery of Nitrogen—No Alcohol in Silage Milk.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Are Canadian farmers getting the full advantage of their home market? A study of the import figures for the fiscal year ending March 31st last reveals the amazing extent to which the food stuffs we most pride ourselves in producing are imported for consumption in Canada.

Take fruits for instance. Of apples we imported 155,291 barrels worth $775,819. They weren't all early apples either, for 29,028 barrels were brought in during March. During the year we imported: Berries, $114,482; cherries, $83,249; currants, $212,894; grapes, $661,443; peaches, $402,312; pears, $566,729; plums, $240,455, and strawberries, $785,150; a total of $3,907,083. Add to this $1,784,522 for dried apples, apricots, peaches, plums and prunes, and $492,828 for canned peaches, jellies and jams and imported fruits and fruit juices being $26,409,235, besides an item of $2,728,475 for nuts. Mischief the war, of course, for subtropical fruits, but some of these might be substituted, to our financial and customary advantage, by home grown products. For instance, we might eat more riped apples and fewer oranges. While dealing with matters horticultural a bill for $1,064,211 for plants, shrubs, trees and vines might be mentioned.

Coming to vegetables, our total bill for the-treat article was $3,573,070, of which cabbage accounted for $187,589, onions for $487,069, potatoes for $237,231 and tomatoes for $965,941, a total for these four commonly grown articles of $2,177,930. Of canned vegetables we imported $626,210 worth; of sauces, catsups and pickles, $518,666. Our total outlay for vegetables and vegetable products reached the considerable sum of nearly $5,000,000.

We have a great dairying country in Canada, yet we purchased abroad during the year $1,844,212 worth of milk and its products. This included $1,249,819 for 3,767,572 lbs. of butter, $327,022 for 916,517 lbs. of cheese, $46,287 for condensed milk, $92,710 for cream, and over $24,274 for sweet milk and cream. Our butter importations were supplemented by 1,166,449 lbs. of imported oleomargarine.

Our foreign grain bill amounted to $11,275,882, though this included $7,695,289 for feed corn, and $2,029,596 for rice, of which 18,000,000 lbs. came from China. Milled products cost us $685,895, and prepared foods and bakery products another $500,000.

Our total import, under the head Agricultural and Vegetable Products, Mainly Food" came to the rather startling total of $168,701,762. We could hardly be expected, however, to produce our own tea, coffee and spices, though we might considerably reduce our sugar bill, which now amounts to approximately $40,000,000 a year, by growing more beets.

We also imported $20,925,298 worth of alcoholic beverages, which, as we all know, are mostly derived from the products of the farm. It may be, however, that some of our imported grains and fruits returned to us in this highly manufactured form.—R. D. Colquette, Dept. of Agricultural Economics, O. A. C. Guelph.

The Mystery of Nitrogen.

Since animal life must depend upon plant life for its support, we must first learn how nitrogen gets from the air into the plant. Every farm boy has seen the grain turn yellow at times for the very early spring and especially that which was growing in the dead furrows of the fall. This occurs largely because there isn't enough nitrogen in the right form for the plants to get at this time of the year. As a single pound of existing soil, neither animals nor the green plants can use nitrogen, and yet the air is the source of the entire supply for all life.

If we go back into history of Roman agriculture, we will find that the farmers of that time knew enough to grow legumes. Even though all of this was known, it was not until 1887 that the reason for it was discovered. Then it was that the little swellings always found on the roots of legumes were discovered to contain countless numbers of minute forms of life, now known as bacteria. Later it was learned that these little workers had a great deal to do with keeping the soil in fit condition for the growing of crops, for they, in their magic way of living, are capable of taking the nitrogen out of the air that is in the soil and making it become a part of the soil compounds. In this way we have the cheapest means of keeping up the nitrogen supply of the soil.—Heard's Dairyman.

No Alcohol in Silage Milk.

Satisfactory evidence has been adduced to show that by the feeding of corn silage alcohol is transferred to the milk. While it is true that silage does have traces of alcohol in it, yet it is altogether probable that the alcohol, as well as the acids of silage, are completely burned up in the cow and never passes even in minute traces into the milk.

The poultry house should be built as low as possible without danger of the attendants bumping their heads against the ceiling. A low house is more easily warmed than a high one.

"Some oh de gloomy talk yo' hear," observed Uncle Ezra, "am caused by de fact dat it's easier to talk hard times dan it is to do hard work."

THE LONESOME WOMAN

"No Chance to Exercise My Tongue," Is Her Plaint.

Was This Farmer's Wife Correct?—Is There Any Respite From Monotony in the Life of Rural Women?—What Is the Panacea for Farm Loneliness?—Handling Cream for Butter.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

I called at a farm home one day in search of water for an overheated motor. Rapping gently on the kitchen door, I was met by the good lady of the house.

"May I have a pail of water?" I asked.

"You may," she said, handing me a pail and pointing to the pump. I noticed that her index finger and her chin seemed to work in unison when she indicated the direction of the pump.

"Shrewd old girl," I thought, as the water flowed into the pail. "I will try and draw her out. I wonder how she puts in the time. What is she thinking about anyway?"

A Farm Woman's View of the Quiet Life.

After filling the radiator with the clear, cold water, I returned to the door with the borrowed pail. No need of rapping this time. She met me with a kindly smile.

"You have a nice farm here," I said. "You must have a nice quiet life in the country where everything about you is just plain wholesome nature."

"Quiet life!" she said, with some emphasis. "Just plain nature! You said too much so, so much so that we want to get away from it all, and be natural."

Somewhat surprised at her expressions, especially the "be natural," I had always thought that if there was any place where a person could be natural it was on the farm.

The Monotony of Farm Living.

I asked, "Why do you want to get away?"

She replied, "We have no life here. My husband and I get up at five o'clock every morning. He at once goes to the barns to feed the stock, while I get the breakfast and attend the poultry. We hurry through breakfast, and then he rushes away to the barn or fields, returning at noon for one half hour in which to eat his dinner. After dinner he is away again until supper time, when he returns tired from work in the fields, pretty well worn by the long monotonous day of heavy labor. As for me, why, I attend the house work. Yes, I attend the house work in all once all day long, and that by what gets my goat. I do not hear the sound of another voice from one day's end to another. No woman to talk to, no neighbor handy by where I could run in for a visit. No chance to exercise my tongue.

Farm Women Fed Up With Silence.

"We farm women get fed up with so much silence. It is somewhat different with the men, they are working with animals and do not feel the loneliness as we women do. Once a week is not often enough for women to get together. Besides we live apart so long it is any wonder that our conversation was at both ends, when an opportunity to talk does occur?

Is There a Panacea for Rural Loneliness?

After hearing that little sermonette, I unconsciously started for the car that I had left standing on the roadway. Coming to my senses after a time, I began to think, just what there was in what the lady of the fields home had to say, and repeated to myself her words, "No chance to exercise my tongue, no lunch silence."

Perhaps, after all, the farm is too lonely a place for the average woman of to-day, and with the trend of modern living it will be a more lonesome place in the future unless something happens to change ideas and ideals.

Can anyone suggest a solution of the problem?—L. Stevenson, O. A. C., Guelph.

Handle Cream for Butter Carefully.

Cream may be a little sour, but, if it is clean and free from flavors and tastes, it will make good butter in the hands of an expert buttermaker. Cream approaching rancidity and carrying with it particles of dirt, whiffs of undesirable odors, and a taste of the barnyard or cellar never loses its identity. The butter it enters into is that which drunk on the market and sells at a low price. To argue that because certain neighbors are careless with their cream provides a reason why no one needs to be careful is illogical. Produce and handle your cream in a careful, friendly manner, deliver it frequently and then demand a price in keeping with the quality.

Flushing Sows.

Flushing ewes at breeding time to increase the number of twin lambs is an ancient practice among flockowners, but not till recent years have swine raisers paid much attention to this practice. Prof. Edward, of the Iowa Experiment Station, has been investigating the practice with pigs, and reports that the sows making the most rapid gain at the time of breeding produced on the average 2.1 pigs more per litter than those making the slowest gain. Another practical conclusion reached as the result of this same set of observations is that if large litters are preferred, for it is well not to breed the sow until the first period of heat after weaning, when two litters are raised in one year.

An extra gallon of gas carried in a can or bottle under the back seat of your car will save you a walk some day.

Mrs. Gabbleigh — Strange you should talk in your sleep. I never do. Husband—Certainly not! What is there left for you to say?

London Antique Dealer Victimized His Customers Trial Was Full of Surprises

Visiting in London, Francis Hackett sends back to the New York World some interesting facts brought out in a trial concerning a collection of antiques which recently amused dealers and shocked the general public. We gather that it is a suit entered by a man named Adolphe Shrager against an alleged expert, part of whose name is Basil, though as to whether it is the prelude or the postscript we are left in ignorance owing to Mr. Hackett's whimsical way of writing. Basil is described as a "swell antique dealer." To him one day came Shrager, who was in the rubber business during the war and rolled up a handsome fortune. He concluded that it would be a good idea to invest in antiques, for he had heard that genuine antiques were much like diamonds. They did not lose their value. On the contrary it was likely to increase, and in the meantime one had the use of them. Not knowing much about antiques, he consulted Basil.

Basil was ready to oblige him. Adolphe explained that what he wanted was genuine antique, collectors' pieces, and that he was prepared to spend up to £100,000 in making a collection. Basil made some negotiations concerning Sheraton, Hippelwhite, Queen Anne, Charles II. and Adam. Mr. Shrager was astonished to learn that any pieces of Adam had survived, he being under the impression that they had perished at least in the flood, but accepted Basil's explanation. He was also told about some really good oak panelling from Royston Hall, in Hertfordshire, and a campion clock. Basil received orders to go ahead, and did so with great enthusiasm, until he had spent £85,252. Then came an unfortunate turn in the stock market, rubber behaved badly. He saw his fortune slipping. What he needed was a considerable sum of ready cash if all was not to be washed away. It occurred to him that he had a lot of antiques which he was not using, and that he might dispose of some of them, which would yield him the money he needed and also give him a profit on his investment.

So he sent for another dealer. The dealer looked over the collection, shook his head sadly, and said that he could do nothing with the pieces. Then Adolphe, in panic, summoned a specialist, Herbert Cescinsky, and in court Herbert made the following revelations:

There was no Royston Hall. That was just Basil's happy thought. The old oak panelling, some of it, came out of a dairy on High Street and the rest out of the carpenter's. It cost three hundred or less to start with, but after the "reconstruction" Adolphe was permitted to have it for £2,000. Ye "fine olde Chippendale" lamp-stands were neither fine nor Chippendale. "The legs were obvious by now," Mr. Cescinsky showed the court, "and the stem had probably been made from a child's four-post bed. The price of £450 was ridiculous. As second-hand furniture they would be worth £8 10s." This bitter expert next exhibited an "eighteenth century blue lac cabinet." He described it as "a well-known article of commerce." It came from a stock of bogus antiques. "It was not Queen Anne, but was recently made up in a factory. The lacquer was merely French polish and the brass work was of a well-known Birmingham make." This bit of artful dodgery cost the rubber king £850.

Adolphe had a fatal leaning toward Queen Anne, so the next thing he fell for was a Queen Anne red lacquer writing bureau. This bureau was an ingenious thing, a combination of Dutch body and an Oriental chess-board tacked on top. Eight hundred pounds, the price of any fashionable operation. A Charles II. walnut table with marble top was the next exposure. Cescinsky took the same delight in showing this up as Houdini did in sprinkling tin tacks on the stage for the celebrated "ghost" in hare feet. Like the old New Haven railroad station, this table "had no period at all." It sold for £75. It was worth £10. A pair of Chippendale side tables sold for £1,100. They had modern carvings and were worth £7 apiece.

By the time that Cescinsky had shown the judge and the ten experts-counsel the difference between a knife-slit made in 1921 and the wear and tear of the eighteenth century, by the time he had proved how old bodies could be put on new bed and new bodies on old beds, by the time he had taken a wine cooler and an Elizabethan oak buffet to pieces, his lordship began to fear for his sanity and his profession. If he moaned, there are 200 antiques to be indecently exposed, what of the willing jury? Such a case should be huddled into the twilight zone where reviews preside. The burning daylight must not play on Chippendale legs. He murmured, "Another tribunal," and was obliged away. One gathers the impression that Adolphe was stung. "Still, I am not worrying about him," says Mr. Hackett. "He asked for it! The moment he walked into the antique shop, his footprints leaving the imprint of liquid gold, Basil could hardly have been restrained. The temptation to sell Adolphe a Globe-Wernicke filing cabinet as a nice bit of Hepplewhite must have been considerable."

Birth Rate In France.

During the first six months of 1922 the birth rate in the ten largest cities of France showed a decrease of 10 per cent. compared with that of 1921. The figures for Paris were 24,258 per thousand, compared with 27,459 in 1921.

WEDDING BELLS.

A pretty home wedding of an unusual manner took place Friday evening, July 20th, 1923, at 8.45 p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher E. Snyder, 49 Maple Ave., when her daughter, Miss Vera Mostck, of Pulaski, N.Y., and Mr. H. R. Rudd, of Lacona, N.Y., were united in matrimony. The Rev. Thomas Connell, of the Standard Church of Watertown, officiated. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Samuel Snyder, while the bridegroom was attended by Mr. Samuel Snyder. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, and Matron of honor carried pinks. The bride received a few nice presents. Relatives were present from Watertown, Lacona, and Pulaski were present.

Directly after the ceremony a prayer meeting was held, and Rev. Connell, spoke with much inspiration from the words found in 1st Samuel, 15 : 22, "Behold to obey is better than sacrifice". The service was closed by prayer for all present and especially the newly married couple.

The day following the wedding the bride and groom left for Watertown, where they spent a few days with friends. On returning they expect to take up their residence with her mother at Pulaski, for a time.

Mr. Rudd entered the ministry six years ago last May. He has travelled in Pennsylvania, New York State, Quebec, Canada, Canadian North West, North Dakota, and through parts of Ontario. Last fall he returned from Western Canada, to Brockville, Ont., where he attended the Standard Church Seminary to help complete his education.

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

A Letter from Mrs. Smith Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Trenton, Ont.—"I am writing to you in regard to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would not be without it. I have taken it before each of my children was born and afterwards, and find it a great help. Before my first baby was born I had shortness of breath and fainting in my cars. I felt as if I would pull through, one day a friend of my husband told him what the Vegetable Compound did for his wife and advised him to take a bottle home for me. After the fourth bottle I was a different woman. I have four children now, and I always find the Vegetable Compound a great help as it seems to make confinement easier. I recommend it to my friends."—Mrs. FRED H. SMITH, John St., Trenton, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers, and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intended. Thousands of women testify to this fact. C

Last Sunday afternoon a fire started in the long grass in the vacant lots north of the station. Our special thanks are due to Scout Master Babcock and his patrol for their prompt assistance in helping to switch out the fire.

Crowd at Lawn Social.

Over five hundred people thronged the spacious, electrically-lighted grounds of J. H. Babcock, Odessa, on Thursday evening, at the lawn social held under the auspices of Odessa and Wilton Methodist Church. The Napanee Brass Band played throughout the evening. The ladies of Odessa and of Wilton were alert to the needs of those who crowded around the booths, and the "Mystery Tent" satisfied the curious. The receipts were over $190.00, with net proceeds over $120.00.

Harrowsmith Saw Mill Burned.

W. J. Campsall's saw mill at Harrowsmith was destroyed by fire on Monday morning. It is believed that the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion in a pile of saw dust. There was no insurance carried on the plant. The fire broke out between six and seven o'clock and made quite a spectacular blaze. The saw mill was an old landmark in the village and was operating every day, and the loss will be severely felt. The plant manufactured cheese boxes, shingles and other building material. The Verona fire engine was used in fighting the fire.

Selby at Napanee To-Day.

Selby visits Napanee this (Friday) afternoon to play a scheduled game in the Lennox League. If the local team win this game they will have won the championship of the Lennox League, and will have the right to play off with the winners of the Addington group for the championship of Lennox and Addington. Should Selby win to-day it will create a three-cornered tie. Manager Adams is confident that the boys will turn in a victory and the public should not miss this opportunity of seeing the old rivals in action. The game will be called at 2.30 p.m. sharp.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Melita, Man.,
July 27th, 1923.

To the Editor Napanee Beaver.

Dear Sir,—Being born in the good old County of Lennox over fifty years ago, and a resident of Manitoba for thirty-six years, I take this opportunity of appealing to your readers for harvest help that we may save one of the best crops our Province has been blessed with for several years. Owing to the very warm weather we have had this last two weeks, our wheat cutting will be general by Aug. 10th, and every farmer will require one or two extra men, and we certainly look to your good old Province of Ontario to help us out in time of need, for about ninety per cent of us came from there several years ago; and when we have any surplus money we go back to visit our old friends at home. I realize that harvest help will be scarce which must cause high wages. I would say that it will take with favorable weather fifty days at least to harvest and thresh our crops in this district. I will only be glad to correspond with any one regarding wages, etc., and know that this district will require help as long as any other in this Province.

Trusting the above will bring good results for all; come on the first train to Melita.

Respectfully yours,
SIDNEY G. DAVIS,
Melita, Man.

Soft Ball at Strathcona

The first game of soft ball in the league was played last week between Wilton Imps and Strathcona Orioles, resulting in Orioles trimming the Imps to the tune of 40-13. This is the first time Wilton has been beaten in four years, and considering this is the Oriole's first year at soft ball you can figure out yourself the talent we have in the making. You could not pick an individual star on the Oriole line-up unless you were sporty. The midget playing short left always a thorn in the opposing team's side. You will hear more from those birds before the season is ended, especially when they get through with Newburgh in the next league game Monday evening. Their motto is, "Follow us." The line-up:

Orioles—B. McGuire rf, C. Murphy cf, J. Finlay c, M. Toner p, L. McGuire ss, C. Sweet lf, E. Toner 1b, M. McGuire 2b, B. Craigan 3b.

Imps—L. Babcock rf, L. Peters cf, E. Embury c, A. Babcock p, H. Erink ss, Neilson lf, Asselstine 1b, S. Burt 2b, R. Newman 3b.

Score by innings—

Orioles,	0	7	7	9	1	3	9	4	x—40
Imps,	2	0	0	0	4	0	2	2	3—13

OBITUARY.

Mrs. William Clark.

The death occurred on Saturday noon last of a respected lady of the town, in the person of Mrs. William Clark, who passed away after a short illness. The funeral took place from her late residence, Robinson street, on Monday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. J. H. H. Coleman. A large number of friends and relatives attended to pay their last respects to Mrs. Clark. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband and four daughters, Mrs. Harry Reid, Mrs. Elmer Miller, and Misses Marian and Josephine Clark. The remains were taken to the Riverside cemetery.

Mr. John Lowry.

Mr. John Lowry, one of Napanee's most widely known and esteemed citizens, passed away on Tuesday morning, at his home on Dundas street. Though he had been in poor health for some months, he was seriously ill but a few days. John Lowry had been a resident of Napanee for over sixty years. Starting life as a blacksmith with the late firm of Webster & Boyes, he later went into the blacksmithing business for himself, and after a successful business career retired some years ago. For a number of years deceased was a member of the town council, and served two terms as Mayor of the town. He was also Reeve for a couple of years. No man in Napanee took a keener interest in the public works of the town than John Lowry, and no one had the same knowledge of the sewer system of the town as he had, a large number of the sewers having been built by him or while he was in the Council. On retiring from the Council the town availed itself of his knowledge and appointed him overseer of all its sewer and street work for some years. Later Mr. Lowry spent some time as foreman on the Provincial Highway leading both east and west from the town. Besides his widow, he leaves one son Mr. Jos. Lowry, and two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Burns and Mrs. E. J. Pollard. The funeral, which was largely attended, was held from his late residence, on Thursday afternoon. Rev. A. H. Foster conducted the service. The Mayor, Council, Town Officials and the Firemen attended in a body.

NAPANEE WINS WAGAR CUP.

The local baseball team put their native town on the map last week, when they won the Wagar Cup, emblamatic of the championship of Lennox and Addington. There was no question of the supremacy of the winning team, as the scores below will indicate. Manager Adams and his team of recruits are to be highly congratulated on their successful season. The best of good feeling has prevailed in the league and, while the attendance was not what it should have been throughout the county, still the management are thankful for the support given and hope for better things in 1924.

Final Standing.

	Won	Lost	Runs Scored	P.C.
Napanee	2	0	30	1.000
Yarker	0	2	5	.000

Napanee 12, Yarker 3.

In the first of the home and home games in the finals for the championship of Lennox and Addington, played at Yarker on Tuesday of last week, the visiting team won handily from the Yarker boys by a score of 12-3.

Features of the game were the steady pitching of Ray Loucks, who turned in one of the best games of his career. Ross Loucks had a great day with the willow, connecting for three 2-baggers with the bases loaded each time. Johnston, the diminutive short stop, was accused of robbery because he made a sensational one-hand catch of a hot liner.

The whole team in general were in top form and won on their merits.

Napanee 18, Yarker, 2.

In the second of the home and home games, played at Napanee on Friday, the locals again won out. The game was never in doubt, and ordinarily would have been a shut-out.

The largest crowd of the season was in attendance and witnessed as nice an exhibition of baseball as one would wish to see.

Ray Loucks pitched his usual heady game, and was ably supported by Ross Loucks behind the bat. The infield showed some class, while the outfield was invincible. Beautiful catches were made in the outer garden, and the manner in which the infield gathered them in from all sides and accurately threw to bases was a revelation to many.

The boys had their batting togs on, and it would have taken some team to have stopped them on Friday. In the second innings they garnered six runs off Keller, and in the eighth they added eight more to the total off Cairns. This boy, Cairns, is the first left-hander that the Napanee players have entertained this year. With the change of pace that Cairns introduced in the fifth innings he had the locals guessing, but they soon solved his delivery. In justice to him we must say that several errors behind him in the eighth accounted for a number of the eight runs. With good support, Cairns should show class.

Among the outstanding features of the game should be mentioned Johnston's running catch, Fraser's catch of a long fly, also Percy Stewart's catch, and Fraser's three-bagger in the eighth off Cairns.

The Napanee boys have only made two errors in the last three games.

Following is the line-up:

Napanee—Carter 1b., P. Stewart r.f., J. Stewart 3b., Ross Loucks c., Fraser 1.f., Johnston s.s., Vanalstine c.f., Ray Loucks p., McNeil 2b.

Yarker—Smith s.s., D. Holland 3b., Cairns ss. and p., Warner c., Dalby 1b., Woodhouse r.f., Keller p. and ss., G. Warner l.f., Holland 2b.

Score by innings,—

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Napanee	2	6	1	0	0	1	8	1	8	—18

Napanee at Sydenham.

The next game in the O.B.A.A. semi-finals, as far as Napanee is concerned, will take place this (Friday) afternoon at Sydenham. The game will be called at 3.45 p.m. A large crowd from Napanee will take in the game.

Sydenham at Napanee.

On Wednesday, August 22nd, the Sydenham boys will play the return game at Napanee. This should be a merry battle and will be worth coming miles to see. Don't forget the date and arrange your work so that you can be at the Driving Park, Napanee, on the 22nd not later than 3.30 p.m., as the game will start sharp on time.

NEWBURGH.

What might have been a very serious fire, affecting a large tract of country, started on a farm owned by Mr. Charles Dewey, north of Camden East, on Saturday morning. It is thought that the fire was started by some careless smoker who, while crossing the premises, threw a cigarette end or match down, which ignited the dry grass. The fire, despite the efforts of over one hundred men, spread over an area of ten acres. With the aid of switches, water and other means it was brought under control and finally extinguished. The rural telephones, motor cars, and prompt action saved the situation. Several car loads of men from Newburgh and Camden East, as well as farmers from all directions, were very promptly on the scene. The house, which is unoccupied, was on fire several times. Speaking of fire, Mr. Geo. B. Paul, who made a trip to Northbrook, in the rear of the county, reports that the country in the neighborhood of Kaladar Station is all on fire, burning marsh hay and everything with which it comes in contact. The C. P. R. has gangs of men protecting the ties that are piled at intervals along their track.—Mr. Benjamin Lewis, a well known farmer of Camden, whose wife died some time ago, is feeling the need of another wife to cheer his lonesiness, and succeeding in persuading Mrs. Dean, of Selby, to his way of thinking, they were married last week. The groom being 70, and the bride 68, the people of the community, including some from Newburgh, thought proper to chivari the old couple. The groom, no doubt anticipating something of the kind and being of a philosophic turn of mind, with the aid of his two sons and their wives, prepared himself accordingly. When the chivari party arrived they were invited into the house and treated to fruit, candies and all sorts of eatables, so what started as a chivari turned out to be a veritable banquet, after which the party left, some cheering for the bride and groom and some feeling a little bit sheep that they were there at all.—Mr. Cyrus Fry, of Elkhart, Ind., is renewing old acquaintances in the village. Mr. Fry first came to Newburgh as a comparatively poor boy. He learned the trade of paper making in Thomson's mill here, later going to the States. Being a good workman and an expert at handling men, he soon came to the front, first as a foreman and afterwards as a mill owner. He now owns and operates a large paper mill at Elkhart and has a controlling share in other mills in his adopted State. Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Cameron are calling on friends in their native village while the guests of Mr. Cameron's mother on Homer street. Mr. Cameron, who has been employed as principal of the Moose Jaw High School, is leaving there and coming to Ontario, where he will join the staff of the Windsor Collegiate.—Mrs. R. J. Carsen, Kingston; Mrs. Berkeley Gow and son, George, of Chicago, and Miss Mabel Miller, Clifton Springs, have been calling on friends in Newburgh. These ladies are all old Newburgh girls.—Mrs. Blakely and son, of Prince Edward County, were visitors last week at Mr. Chas. Welbanks'.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Shouts are on a visiting tour to see their daughter, Mrs. Carrald, who lives at Chatham, and their son, Robert, who lives at Windsor. —Miss Maud Welbanks and niece, Miss Edith Breeze, are holidaying this week in Picton and vicinity. Miss Emily and Master Jim Yeomans are spending a few days with their uncle and aunt, Jos. Yeomans and Mrs. Yeomans, South River Road, North Fredericksburgh. Patrick Finn raised the frame of a barn on Monday, to take the place of the one burned some time ago.—Mr. and Mrs. William Patterson, of Stirling, visited his uncle, Mr. J. H. Pattenden, one day last week.

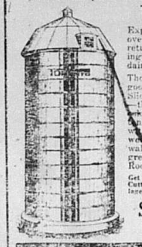
SPECIAL AUGUST TERMS ON TORONTO SILOS

Startling Big Offer Makes it Easy for Any Farmer to Own a Silo

I know that many farmers need silos, but can't buy them right away. But they need them now. To make it easy for every farmer in my community to own a silo and make more money, I am offering special terms for the month of August only. I can do this because a "Toronto" Silo pays for itself. Before you have to pay me, the silo will have paid you. See me to-day for particulars. Don't put it off. This offer is for August only.

TURN YOUR CORN INTO MORE BEEF AND MILK



Experiment and practice have proven over and over again that the biggest returns from a cornfield come from feeding the corn as good ensilage to beef and dairy cattle.

Thousands of farmers have proved that good ensilage is made in a "Toronto" silo. "Toronto" Silos are made of wood — the best non-conductor of heat and cold. Selected spruce staves, double-tongued and grooved and impregnated with creosote. Silage juices do not affect wood. Ensilage does not freeze to the walls in a wooden silo. You gain 15% greater capacity through our Special Hip Roof construction.

Get my booklet on "Toronto" Silos and Ensilage Cutters. Shows how the latter ensures better ensilage and more money.

THEY CALLED HIM AN "OLD PILL"

THAT was years ago when he packed a terrible stomach and a liver that refused to do things that all good livers should. No wonder his friends called him an "old pill" and stayed away.

But that was years ago—long before he discovered Beecham's Pills and learned that two at bedtime can bring sunshine into a man's life. Today, he's an optimist, a hero to his wife, and a staunch believer in Beecham's Pills.

The cheer that Beecham's Pills bring into a man's disposition, is the incomparable cheer of sound digestion, active liver, and the regular habits that make good health.

THE MARKING OF LAMBS

Benefits of System Clearly and Practically Told.

Australian Sheep Branding Fluid Recommended — A Numbering System Suggested — About Seed Corn — Pigs Profitable When Cared For.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The last few years the raising of sheep has been one of the most profitable branches of live stock farming, the amount of profit depending to a great extent on the success at lambing time and immediately afterwards. Difficulty is frequently experienced in giving the necessary care to individual lambs because they are not easily recognized. In a large flock many lambs look alike, and mothers frequently disown or fail to care properly for their own lambs.

Australian Sheep Branding Fluid Recommended.

In order that needy lambs may be easily recognized and their mothers found, a convenient system of marking is needed. For marking purposes Australian sheep branding fluid is best. It can be obtained in different colors from firms who handle sheep supplies, such as the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers. This fluid does not injure the wool, and shows a distinct mark for several weeks, even when exposed to the weather. It may be applied with a small stick or, better still, an ordinary machine oiling can, and should be rubbed in so that it will not spread.

A Good System of Numbering Suggested.

In marking, a system of numbering is adopted. All male lambs are given an even number as 2, 4, 6, etc., all female lambs an odd number as 1, 3, 5, etc. The lamb's number is made on its back with fairly large figures, and the mother is also marked on the back with the same number as her lamb or lambs. If she has two lambs, a ewe number 5 and a ram number 8, she will have the figures 5 and 8 placed so that seen from behind one will be above the other or nearer the head than the other, to show 5 and 8 rather than 58. These numbers are best put on a few hours after the lambs are born, before any of the System Described.

Some of the advantages of a system such as this have been found to be: One quickly gets to know the individual lambs by their numbers and their development is watched with interest; good mothers and poor mothers are known by their lambs and how they care for and feed them. This quality is often overlooked in sheep but is most important. For a ewe loosing a single lamb a needy twin can easily be found to take its place and properly guarded till fully adopted. Lambs needing help for any reason are easily found and ewes recognized that can spare a feed for them. When two or more are in charge of the flock, it is an easy matter for the one to point out to the other what lambs need attention. By the adoption of this system of marking a complete "Record of Performance" at lambing time is easy to keep, and one will be better able to fill out the undesirable ewes and their offspring, if any, keeping only those that prove good breeders and good mothers.—C. W. Laidlaw, Demonstration Farm, New Liskeard.

About Seed Corn.

In districts where corn growing is an assured success the greatest cause of low yields is poor seed. This should not be so. The use of poor seed is unprofitable and causes the loss of large sums of money each year, not only in loss of crop, but in loss of labor and use of tools in tilling acres that have but a thin or less than 100 per cent. stand of crop. With corn planted, 42 x 42, there are 3,556 hills per acre if no loss occur through broadcasting. Using four seeds per hill, there would be 14,224 plants if all seed grew and developed strong plants. If each plant gave an eight-ounce ear, the yield would be 104 bushels per acre. If only one plant in each hill gave an eight-ounce ear, the yield would be 26 bushels per acre. Now the work and expense of interest on investment, fertilizing the land, ploughing, planting, and cultivating would be the same for a perfect stand as for a twenty-five per cent. or a thirty-three per cent. crop. Good seed is, therefore, the first insurance for a 100 per cent. stand in the corn field.—L. Stevenson.

Pigs Profitable When Cared For.

Swine are profitable when given abundant sunshine and exercise, fed on well-selected feeds, gently handled, given proper sanitation and housing, kept free from worms and lice, and protected against cholera and other diseases. Quite a lot can happen a pig between birth and old age, but it is an easy animal to keep in the straight and narrow path leading to successful and profitable development if you go the right way about it.

Pigs frequently suffer more from the heat of the sun during the summer than they do from the cold of the winter period. If possible, make full use of any available shade trees when making your plans for swine pastures, feed lots or colony house locations.—L. Stevenson.

Is farm life worth while? Not if it is one continual round of drudgery, 365 days in the year, without conveniences or any playtime. Nor, for that matter, is life carried on that way anywhere of much value. Conveniences, a garden, flowers, playtime, and some time given to neighbors, make life more worth while.

If farm operating equipment must be left outdoors for any length of time, it is a good idea to protect it from contact with the ground. Run it up on stones or boards.

Why do we lose sales every day on Saura-Secord Candy? Because the makers of these famous Chocolates would prefer losing any number of sales rather than sell one box that was not fresh. Therefore we get a shipment on Friday, direct from the studio. Leave your order at Wallace's Drug Store.

The popular Jonteel Talcum is now only 25c. a tin, at Wallace's.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of Maggie Seal, wife of Harold Kilgannon, who died August 17th, 1919.

One less at home,
The charmed circle broken—a dear face missed day by day
From its usual place.
But promised, saved, perfected by grace.
One more in heaven.
One less on earth!
Its pain, its sorrow and its toil to share.
One less the pilgrim's daily cross to bear,
One more the crown of the blessed to wear,
At home in heaven.

—Husband, Daughter and Auntie. 33ap

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Jas. McKitrick, who passed away August 16th, 1921.

We loved him, yes, we loved him.
But Jesus loved him more;
And he has sweetly called him,
To yonder shining shore.
The golden gates were opened,
A gentle voice said come,
And with farewells unspoken,
He calmly entered home.

—His loving Wife and Children. 33ap

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Ann Fregmanite, who departed this life August 12th, 1922.

Rest in peace, your cares are ended,
Rest in peace, your sufferings done;
Relentless death, how swift it comes,
And bitter grief imparts,
It takes our loved ones from our homes,
But never from our hearts.

Sadly missed by Husband and Children. 33ap

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Chas. Lowry, who died Aug. 18th, 1921.

Time may bring back to memory
A dear one laid to rest;
And those who think of her to-day,
Are those who loved her best.

Ever remembered by Husband, Daughters and Sons. 33a

IN MEMORIAM.

In memory of Robert Ballance, who died August 17th, 1922. 32ap

—The pupils who are registering early for attendance at the Napanee Collegiate Institute when the term commences on Sept. 4th, will be sure of accommodation. The indications are that there will be such an increased attendance in September that a new room will have to be provided. Those registering now will be provided for in the present rooms, but those who do not register may have to take temporary accommodation wherever it can be found. All pupils, old or new, no matter whether in upper or lower forms, should register at once with the Principal, Dr. G. W. Morden.

—The annual excursion of St. Mark's Parish and Sunday School, Deseronto, to 12 O'clock Point, Aug. 9th, was an all round success. The weather was ideal, and the large crowd who took advantage of the excursion, thoroughly enjoyed themselves, from the oldest to the youngest. The candy booth on board, with Messrs. Seale, Thomas Hetherington and Jack Gault in charge, did a rushing business. 12 O'clock Point is just the spot for a day's enjoyable outing. There was a good programme of sports. The Rev. E. Radcliffe, Rector of St. Mark's, assisted by the Wardens and a competent staff, helped to make everything pass off very pleasantly.

TRAITORS!

Comrades, we have some traitors in our midst,
Poor purblind fools, of reasoning power bereft,
Who'll fan the flame that accident has lit
Or nurse the fire that carelessness has left.
Ay, even in their greed-distorted minds
They'll frame the plan of kindling it anew,
And sacrifice a Forest to the flames
To get themselves a job upon a crew!

In blackened valleys, fire-scarred mountain sides,
Now barren wastes where nothing grows, nor can,
We see the traces of this Devil's brood
Of reckless wasters of God's gifts to man.
Traitors are they, cruel selfishness their creed,
They trade your birthright for their paltry stake!
A nation's wealth goes billowing up in smoke!
Come! Help us crush them — for your children's sake!

IMPLEMENT AND TOOL

Misused and Neglected Too Often by Many Farmers.

When Tools Were Really Valued—Neglect Is Criminal Waste—The Jointer Plough — Half-Acre Garden Gives Good Results.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

With the advance of agriculture the increase in farm tools, implements and machines has been great. A century ago, an axe, a scythe, a spade and a saw formed a large part of the equipment of many farms. These few simple tools were probably the most useful in working the small areas of land under process of clearing. The development of the farms brought improvement in tools and a gradual development toward the modern type of farm machines.

When Tools Were Really Valued.

Tools were valued in the early days because such were hard to get. There was no waste of farm equipment then; the spade and the scythe were valued as much as the shotgun. Conditions have changed during the past century. The progress is now marked by an abundance of tools, implements and machines for every purpose in agricultural production and harvesting — in abundance of machines so great that we see waste on every hand. Ploughs, tillage machines and harvesters neglected and exposed to the weather, rust and wear out before giving half service. The waste of tools, implements, machines and articles of farm equipment amounts to many thousands of dollars each year.

Neglect of Implements and Tools Is Criminal Waste.

Neglect to put machines under cover, to apply weather-proofing paint, to keep sharp all cutting parts, to oil or otherwise lubricate all bearings is reducing the efficiency and shortening the period of usefulness of equipment in which many millions of dollars of farmers' money has been invested. The machine or tool is not the only loss, since the power, either horse, motor or man, is also reduced through having to work with a tool or implement not in the best condition. This double liability, while fully appreciated by the most efficient or business type of farmer, is a matter that should be understood by all who own or work with farm tools.

The Life of a Grain Binder.

In the hands of good men a grain binder has been known to last and do 100 per cent. efficient work for thirty years. In the hands of careless men grain binders have gone racked to pieces in less than five years, through such treatment as neglect to oil and to keep belts tight. The reward for efficiency might here be expressed as the price of five binders over a period of thirty years.—L. Stevenson, Sec. Dept. of Agriculture, Toronto.

The Jointer Plough.

The jointer plough was developed through the appreciation of plough makers of the necessity of making vegetable matter with the soil during the ploughing operation. The jointer is a miniature plough attached to the main plough beam in such a position as to cut and roll a small furrow slice into the bottom of the furrow and just ahead of the furrow slice turned by the plough mouldboard. This arrangement permits the turning of a wider furrow slice and puts all vegetable matter well under the cutter of the turned furrow slice. Jointer ploughs are equipped with a shorter mouldboard that is shaped to invert the furrow slice; more curly or steep, as the terms generally used to describe the jointer plough mouldboard. A wheel and a landside designed to keep the plough straight of uniform depth and steady are also part of the jointer plough equipment. Shorter handles, shorter beam, and shorter mouldboard are characteristics very pronounced when the jointer type of plough is compared with the Scotch or long plough type.—L. Stevenson.

Half-Acre Garden Gives Big Return.

You can make on an average $44 net on a half-acre garden on your farm. Can you make as much on a half-acre in any other way? The thing has been worked out by the Illinois Experiment Station, and for five years, this station found that the average gross income from its half-acre garden was $74.85. With a labor cost of $25.71 and expenditures for seeds, plants, and insecticides of $5.20, the net return was $44.06. Here is what the Illinois garden produced in its last year:

Onions, green, 36 dozen, ripe 2 bushels; asparagus, 104 pounds; radishes, 102 dozen; lettuce, 72 bags; turnips, green 5 baskets, early 10 dozen, late 2.6 bushels; rhubarb, 34 pounds; spinach, 21 baskets; peas, 11 baskets; beets, green 8 baskets, early 15 dozen, late 8.9 bushels; cabbage, early 100 heads, late (to date) 24, late (small) 24; beans, string 16 pecks, lima 14 pecks; early potatoes, 5 bushels; parsley, supply; cauliflower, early 25, late 10; carrots, early 24 dozen, late 7 bushels; squash, summer 93, winter 230 pounds; sweet corn, 47 dozen; tomatoes, ripe 25 bushels, green 7 bushels; cucumbers, slicing 287, pickles 76; muskmelons, 1,185 pounds; watermelons, 2,063 pounds; onion sets, 41 pounds; peppers, 4 pecks; parsnips, 3.4 bushels; salsify, 1.2 bushels; winter radishes, 3.1 bushels; celery, 20 dozen.

Corning Beef In the Home.

The price of beef commonly used for corning are the plate, rump, cross ribs, and flank, or in other words the cheaper cuts of meat. The loin, ribs, and other fancy cuts are more often used fresh, and since there is more or less waste of nutrients in corning, this is well. The pieces for corning should be cut into convenient-sized joints, say 5 or 6 inches square.

The case with which corns and warts can be removed by Holloway's Corn Remover is its strongest recommendation. It seldom fails.

WHEN THEY WERE YOUNG.

Schoolboys Who Have Since Become Celebrities.

"He is a boy of great mental power, and has made progress in everything except penmanship. I think he is a serious boy—always anxious to do well. With his immense powers of application," I often tell him he could become a good French and German scholar."

In these words a schoolmaster described Mr. Bonar Law in the days of his childhood, long before anyone thought that he was destined to become one of Britain's greatest men and guide the affairs of the nation.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain tells against himself an excellent story of his youth. He had decided to devote himself to politics after his departure from the university, and communicated this decision to his old nurse.

"Politics!" exclaimed the old dame, scornfully. "Oh, Mr. Austen, I should have thought two in the family, your father and Mr. Richard, enough to have in politics! Why don't you go in for something useful?"

When Lord Curzon was at Eton he had a reputation as an adept at repartee, and it is recorded that on one occasion he put a big fellow to flight simply by the power of his tongue.

Another Viceroy of India, Lord Reading, had a terrible reputation at school. He has been described as one of the worst boys from the schoolmaster's point of view that it would be possible to find. "Lessons he left unlearnt, classwork he shirked, mischief was his only devotion," said this early friend. "My recollection of him is always of a determined young lad with sparkling eyes, who was always in disgrace or being caned, and yet wished ever merry and deliciously humorous."

The inclusion of Mr. Douglas Hogg, K.C., in the Cabinet as Attorney-General is in the nature of a fulfilment of a prophecy made of him when he was leaving Eton.

So struck was Dr. Warre, the head master, by the boy's ability that he observed to Mr. Quintin Hogg, his father, that if Douglas were put into the law he would undertake to say the boy would eventually become Lord Chancellor.

There are not many stories of Mr. Lloyd George's young days, but one relates to the period when he attended the national school in his Welsh village. The future Prime Minister found a small boy being bullied by four bigger youths. He interfered, and offered to fight the tormentors one after the other. Everything was arranged, but it came to the ears of those in authority, and the battle was stopped.

On one occasion the Prince of Wales was allowed to join a luncheon party which his grandfather, King Edward, was giving at Sandringham. The King was in conversation with a great statesman when the little prince interrupted with: "I say, grandfather—"

He was told to be quiet, but a few seconds later called out again.

"If you can't be silent while I'm talking, you must leave the room," said King Edward, sternly.

The King finished his conversation and then turned to his grandson.

"Well, David," he said. "What was it you wanted to say?"

"Oh, it doesn't matter," was the reply. "I only wanted to tell you there was a caterpillar on your plate. But it doesn't matter now. You've eaten it."

The Bells of Limerick.

Limerick claims to have one of the most beautiful peals of bells in the world. They were made in Italy by a young workman, who, after the toil of many years, produced a peal of bells which were so perfect in tone that even his critical judgment was satisfied. The bells were hung in a neighboring convent, but in the course of years war swept across that part of the land, and the bells were lost. Misfortune overtook the bell-founder, and he left his native land, wandering about the world for years. Then, hearing that his bells had been taken to Limerick, he set out to hear their sweet tones once again. As his vessel sailed up the Shannon, borne upon the evening air from the towers of the cathedral came the music of his bells. He went forward and sat, listening, his gaze fixed upon the distant cathedral, but when the vessel came to anchor and they went to rouse him he was dead.

Where Laughter Is Unknown.

Laughter is unknown among the Veddahs of Ceylon. They are the most solemn people in the world. When a traveler asked some of them why their people never gave indication of mirth they replied that they never saw anything to laugh at. On the other hand, some savages appear to have a more robust sense of humor than their civilized brethren. Doctor Livingstone tells of an African tribe who, when dressed in clothes for the first time, "rolled about on the ground in uncontrollable fits of laughter."

Victims of Wild Animals.

Last year, in British India, 3,360 people were killed by wild animals. Tigers being responsible for 1,454 deaths, leopards, 560, wolves 556, bears 69, elephants 70, and hyenas 10. The lives lost from snakebite totalled 19,296. These figures exclude the native states, wherein it is reckoned that the mortality is almost equal. G. K. C. IN AMERICA.

How This Continent Impressed the Famous Englishman.

"I have never managed to lose my old conviction that travel narrows the mind," says Mr. G. K. Chesterton in "What I Saw in America."

"When I had looked at the lights of Broadway by night, I made to my American friends an innocent remark that seemed for some reason to amuse them. I had looked, not without joy, at that long bejewelled cope of colored lights arranged in large letters and spreading trade-marks, advertising everything from pork to pianos, through the agency of the two most vivid and most impotent of the gifts of God—truth and art. I said to them, in my simplicity, What a glorious garden of wonders this would be to any one who was lucky enough to be unable to read.'

"New York, considered in itself, is primarily a place of variety, and those who sincerely love it, as many do, love it for the romance of its restlessness. I do not think the dollar is almighty in America. I fancy many things are mightier, including many ideals and some rather insane ideals.

"The American talks about his work, and the Englishman about his holidays. I went to America with some notion of not discussing politics; but I soon found that well-to-do Americans were only too delighted to discuss it over the nuts and wine. They were even willing, if necessary, to dispense with the nuts.

"Now prohibition, whether as a proposal in England or a pretence in America, simply means that the man who has drunk less shall have no drink, and the man who has drunk more shall have all the drink. It means that the old gentleman shall be carried home in the cab drunker than ever; but that, in order to make it safe for him to drink to excess, the man who drives him shall be forbidden to drink even in moderation. That is what it means; that is all it means, that is all it ever will mean.

"English farce describes a man as being in a hole. American fantasy, in its more manly spirit, describes a man as being up a tree. The chief difference between the humorum English business man is that the hustling American business man is always late. It is not so much that Englishmen are stupid as that they are afraid of being clever; and it is not so much that Americans are clever as that they do not try to be any stupider than they are."

Dreco Took Hold of His Troubles

Splendid Results in the Way of Improved Health Accrue to Toronto Man, Although he Has Taken But One Bottle.

Dreco has come to the aid of another Toronto family. Here is Mrs. Lyons' story of the help it gave her husband, Mr. G. Lyons, of 100 Preston Road South, Toronto.

"My husband had pains all over the body and every joint would ache. He had taken a good many remedies, but Dreco has taken hold of his troubles and is giving him great relief. His appetite was very poor and he seemed to lose all strength.

"He has taken but one bottle of Dreco, but feels like a different man altogether. He has ceased the pains through the body and his food digests properly, giving him plenty of nourishment and strength. Dizzy spells that formerly bothered him have ceased and his bowels act regularly. He can now go out his work in comfort and without that distressing, tired out feeling. He tells me he feels like a new man."

"Mr. Lyons is continuing the treatment, so that his entire system and every organ will be brought back to normal condition".

All the organs of digestion benefit from the medicinal herb, root, bark and leaf juice contained in Dreco. It tones and regulates and quickly restores them to normal functioning. Stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys may all be helped with this reliable corrective. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Napanee by Wallace & Co., and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

The Oil For The Farmer.—A bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the farm house will save many a journey for the doctor. It is not only good for the children when taken with colds and croup, and for the mature who suffer from pains and aches, but there are directions for its use on sick cattle. There should always be a bottle of it in the house.

WEAK, RUN DOWN AND AILING

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Brought Relief When Other Medicines Failed

Port Mann, B. C.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was tired and run-down. I had headaches and no appetite and was troubled for two years with sleeplessness. I tried many medicines, but nothing did me any real good. While I was living in Washington I was recommended by a stranger to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am strong and feel fine since then and can do my housework. I am willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. C. GREAVES, Port Mann, B. C.

Feels New Life and Strength

Keene, N. H.—"I was weak and run-down and had backache and all sorts of trouble which women have. I found great relief when taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I also used Lydia E. HAMMOND, 72 Carpenter Street, Keene, N.H.

THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA
ESTD 1873
Fifty Years of Commercial Banking
THE year 1923 marks the entry of the Standard Bank upon its fiftieth year of service to the Dominion.
Since its inception the policy of this Bank has been to give the maximum of banking service while constantly exercising the utmost vigilance for the safety of its patrons' interests. This policy has been adhered to through periods of prosperity and depression. As a consequence the Bank has enjoyed steady, sound and substantial growth, today having 161 branches throughout the whole Dominion. These are supplemented by affiliations with strong financial institutions in foreign countries, enabling it to render comprehensive banking service for the promotion of Canadian enterprise both at home and abroad.
The STANDARD BANK OF CANADA
Banking for Fifty Years

They Had No Banks
IN pioneer days the general merchant often kept the money in his customers for them — there were no banks. Buying and selling were largely by barter only.
The coming of the branch bank filled an important need in every community, and to-day the wide farmer, business man or private individual keeps his money in the bank and makes full use of the many services it has to offer.

Controlling Odessa Fires.

Wednesday afternoon reports from Odessa stated that while the bush fires had not been extinguished, the fire fighters were "holding their own" and that it was believed they would be able to keep them in check. There was a most exciting time Wednesday morning, as it was feared that the fire would make its way into the village, but the work of the fire-fighters prevented this. All the men engaged in road building near Odessa were called out on Wednesday to assist in fighting fires.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. Peter Marion and Mr. John Curle and families wish to express their most grateful thanks to the men, women and children of the village and surrounding neighborhood for their appreciated help to fight the terrible fire on Tuesday caused by the traing and great credit and thanks is due to the brave men who were working on our road, for their speedy and helpful assistance, which had it not been for their teams and water tanks would have gotten the start of all help, owing to such a dry time and the wind. 33a

Scouts Have Trip to Kingston.

Travelling from Napanee by motor truck, about thirty members of No. 1 Boy Scout Troop motored to Kingston Sunday morning. They left Napanee about 2 a.m. They attended service at St. George's Cathedral, where they were welcomed by Dean Starr. In the afternoon they were taken to the Royal Military College by Scout Master Percy Hall, and there, through the kindness of Sir Archibald Macdonell, they were shown through Currie Hall and Fort Frederick. The boys enjoyed the visit to the R.M.C. very much, particularly the interesting museum in the fort. Monday morning they were taken to Fort Henry, through the kindness of Ordnance Officer Cartner. They returned to Napanee Monday night.

A Narrow Escape.

Mrs. H. Sherman, of Sherman's Point, Bay of Quinte, had a narrow escape from drowning at 8 o'clock on Friday morning. She had rowed out to the Quinte Lady to see her brother-in-law, and in reaching over to get aboard the launch, the punt she was in slid from under her and she was plunged into the bay. Luckily Mr. Fred. Cummings, the engineer, saw the accident, ran back to the gangway and was just in time to catch Mrs. Sherman as she rose to the surface. The lady had, with great presence of mind, kept her hands above her head, and Mr. Cummings was able to take hold of a finger on which was a ring, and but for the ring he could not have held on. Mrs. Sherman was taken aboard, a little frightened, but otherwise not much the worse for her misadventure.

House and Barn Destroyed.

Mr. Menzo Grooms, who lives on the Slash Road, in Richmond, had the misfortune to lose his house and barn by fire on Sunday morning, August 5th. Mr. Grooms was out milking when he discovered the fire, which originated in the barn. From the barn the fire spread to the dwelling, and in a short time nothing remained of the barn save a few of the foundations and some smoking ashes. The fire burned so rapidly that it was impossible to save anything from the barn and but a small quantity of household goods from the house. A large quantity of hay was stored in the barn, and though Mr. Grooms carries some insurance, the loss will be large. Willing hands were quickly on hand to render all possible assistance, but the heat of the fire prevented the workers from getting near enough to either building to save anything.

LENNOX AND ADDINGTON BASEBALL LEAGUE.

A largely attended meeting of the Lennox and Addington group of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association was held in the Town Hall, Napanee, on Friday evening last. The meeting was called by the President, Mr. M. P. Graham, with the object in view of settling some matters that were in dispute.

Tamworth had protested to the O. B.A.A. against the Dunn brothers, Richardson and Huffman playing with the Yarker team, and President Graham asked the meeting to deal with one at a time and settle the business with despatch.

Mr. S. D. Wagar was pleased with the splendid showings made by the Lennox and Addington groups, and was not in favor of stepping down hard on any little error that may have occurred in this, the baby league of the O.B.A.A.

After considerable discussion and explanation, it was moved and seconded that the games in the Addington group stand as played. Carried.

The matter of a protest against Harry McNeill playing with the Napanee team was next taken up.

The protest was placed with the O. B. A. A. by the Adolphustown Club, and Mr. Ray Allison, captain of the team, explained the reason for the complaint, inasmuch as McNeill had played hockey in Brockville last winter.

Manager Adams did not believe that the player in question had broken the residence rule, and it finally came out in discussion that McNeill did not play hockey in the Brockville City League, as he could not establish his residence there. He, however, did play a couple of games of O. H. A. hockey.

On motion the games as played in the Lennox group were allowed to stand, Napanee being awarded the custody of the Wagar Cup for the ensuing year.

On motion a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the President, Mr. M. P. Graham, and the Secretary, Mr. Wm. McLaughlin, for the work they have done during the season on behalf of baseball in Lennox and Addington.

Messrs. Graham and McLaughlin thanked the executive for their splendid co-operation during the season.

On motion the meeting adjourned at the call of the President and Secretary.

The following was the standing of the different teams at the close of the season:—

ACCEPTS WITH PLEASURE

Hon. Sir Alan Aylesworth, Senator, who was Minister of Justice in the Laurier Cabinet, and was also British Commissioner in the Behring Sea Arbitration, has joined the U. E. L. Celebration Corporation, 1924, and accepted the office of Vice-President. This will be a great help to the celebration of the 140th anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada to be held next year at Belleville, as Sir Alan is a member of one of the old U. E. L. families who settled in the Bay of Quinte District. The following letter from Sir Alan shows that notwithstanding his many honors conferred upon him, he esteems the Vice-Presidency of this organization a "great honor".

W. C. Mikel, Esq., K.C.
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Mikel,—I have your kind letter proposing that my name should appear as one of the Vice-Presidents of the U. E. L. Celebration Corporation, 1924. I should esteem this position a great honor and I thank you for having suggested it. I need scarcely say that I am quite willing and that I accept with great pleasure.

Yours faithfully,
A. B. AYLESWORTH.

NEWBURGH.

Changing events and unusual conditions often bring to the front some particular class of people. The dry weather and the many fires that have prevailed during the past summer have brought smokers into notice, and the charge of starting many of the fires is laid at their door. If there is any comfort derived from smoking it would seem selfish to force people to forego the luxury. All the same, when the habit leads to the destruction of property, possibly of lives, its devotees cannot wonder if they fall into blame. There is no doubt that the origin of many fires could be traced to cigarette smoking. One day last week while Mr. Frank Tomkins, who lives just out of Newburgh, was walking home an automobile passed him, and just as it passed one of the occupants threw out a cigarette stub, which landed in the dry grass on the side of the road. Mr. Tomkins waited for a minute to see the effect, and saw a fire start which in five minutes would have got beyond control had it not been promptly stamped out. The smoker, in this case, not only showed carelessness, but indifference, and indifference is a good running mate to criminality. No person should be smoke under the conditions that have prevailed this summer unless they have someone or something to certify to their common sense.

Mr. Morris Paul, who is employed by the C. P. R. as traffic policeman at Dauphin, Man., has been here visiting his old home village, after an absence of seventeen years.

Sir Robert and Lady Falconer, who motored all the way from Halifax with their two boys, Gilbert and Robert, stopped here to visit Lady Falconer's father, Rev. Mr. Gardner, and other members of the family. Sir Robert, who looks much the better of rest, reports that they found evidence of drouth from Lake Megantic west, but beyond that there had been an abundance of rain.

Doctors who have been located at Newburgh seem to be following each other's trail. Dr. Walwin, who bought out the practice and real estate of Dr. Hoxtable, has sold out to Dr. Mounce, afterwards locating in Bruce County. Now Dr. Huxtable has bought Dr. Walwin's practice and it is said the latter is going to make a try to buy from Dr. Mounce. In the meantime Dr. Mounce is on the job here and seems quite content.

Mr. Bavis, Principal of the High School, arrived here from Toronto with a new car. This may seem a small item, but it may be of great significance.

The play-off for the championship between Wilton and Strathcona girls, which took place on Wednesday in Newburgh, was certainly the liveliest game of the season. It drew a large crowd, and any person who could not howl lustily was at a d scount. The umpire was the only one who could not be heard. He gave his decisions in some way, and the score stood 29 to 21 in favor of Wilton. The fathers, mothers, husbands and grandparents of the contestants were all there and the excitement that prevailed beggars description. There is nothing we can compare it to unless the scene that prevailed when Eamonn De Valera was arrested at Ennis, in Ireland.

NOTICE.

The Council of Camden Township will not meet until Tuesday, September 4th, 1923.

Sgd. T. E. McGILL,
34a Clerk.

WITH THE 1st NAPANEE TROOP.

The local Scout Troop, after holding a council of war, decided to spend the week end of August 12th and 13th in Kingston. After various arrangements the boys went to bed early Saturday night at their camping ground at Springside Park, knowing that the Big Chief was going to call them out very early Sunday morning.

The Scoutmaster and three other Scouts went down to Springside camp about 12.30 Saturday night, and after holding a meeting, decided that it would be easier on all to get them up at this early hour, drive to Kingston, and there go to bed for about four hours' sleep. This being decided on, the four Scouts and Scoutmaster got the blankets, etc., on the truck, then went from tent to tent calling the boys out. As all were anxious to go, it just took eighteen minutes from the time the first boy was called till the truck started off.

Our first mishap occurred while at Springside Park, the lights napoosed out. And not to be stuck, we lit the lantern, and this served as a light all the way there.

The detour at Odessa held us up for some time, as we had to go very slow. Otherwise, our journey was made to Barrifield Heights without any other mishap.

Here we pulled in off the road, the boys piled out. Blankets and rubber sheets were issued and all were soon away in slumber land, tired but glad that they were at their journey's end. It was a beautiful sight to see the various bivouacs made from two rubber sheets, going up here and there.

About 8 a.m. the bugle was sounded and all got up, although they thought it being Sunday they should lay in. Each one had his own grub, so many fires were lit to cook their breakfast on.

After breakfast was ended, and all felt better, they were lined up and the boys looked around the heights they were on, the Scoutmaster pointing out to them the various sites where different battalions were camped, and spoke to them of so many of their fellow-scouts who were camped on these Heights who now were resting in Flanders.

From the roadside he marched them to the old swimming pool at Dead Man's Bay. Here some had a swim and all had their morning clean up.

While cleaning up the boys were told the tale of Dead Man's Bay It was now getting late, so they all went to the one time model trenches not far from their bivouacs. Here the Scoutmaster explained to them what the different trenches were meant for, the system of communicating from the back areas to the front line, the system of advanced dug-outs, the trench blockades to hinder the enemy taking trenches, the advance machine gun posts, and also how the wire entanglements were placed, and where. Why the trenches were built in bays, why certain sections were built different from others. This lecture was listened to by the boys and all taking every word in. Many funny questions had to be answered as well.

Then bivouacs were struck and all left for the city to attend St. George's Cathedral. We were about two minutes late arriving, as our fires were not all out, and we had to bury some of them with dirt.

Not making any arrangements with the Kingston Scouts, the members were surprised to see a strange troop march into their midst. Just before starting his wonderful sermon, Dean Starr heartily welcomed the 1st Napanee Troop to their midst, and assuring us that the St. George's troop would do all possible to make our stay there a pleasant one.

After the service, Scoutmaster Percy Hall of the St. George's Troop, welcomed our boys himself, and asked us what our programme was for the day. Hearing that we were anxious to go through the R. M. C., he said he would phone General Sir Archibald Macdonell and meet us at Macdonell Pa

We went to Macdonell's Pa for lunch. There Mr. Hall met us and we went over to the Royal Military College. Here the Troop had the honor of meeting one of Canada's greatest soldiers, the Commandant himself. And many were the kind remarks passed by the boys about him after wards,—Gee, but he is a fine man; why he is just like anybody else; he must have been a great soldier, and many other remarks.

On entering the College the boys saw many war trophies. From this main hall entrance, they went into Carry Hall. Here they saw some wonderful workmanship, every battalion crest of the Canadian Army being displayed here. On the walls of the gallery the paintings of the Canadian Generals were seen.

After viewing this hall we were shown through the different classrooms of the College, also the main dining room. In the mess room we saw many silver trophies which the College teams had won in the past.

The Scouts were given a treat by the Commandant when he showed them through Fort Frederick. This stronghold helps to guard the mouth of the St. Lawrence. The boys wondered at the work done by perhaps some of their forefathers, the winding stairs, the loop-holes for protection, the old time cannons. They wondered at the space inside the tower. The door of the museum was opened and the General showed the boys some old time war trophies and present; he explained to them the advantages of the present war materials. He also showed them a German sword bayonet, explaining that the Germans had given their word of honor that no such bayonet was used. But there it was in the General's hand; this was evidence enough for the boys. Other articles, such as German helmets, bayonets, rifles, machine guns, bombs, swords, Royal North West Mounted Police helmets, and many other interesting things.

From this tower Scoutmaster Hall took us to another room where the

John Perry Vrooman, M.D., M.P.P.

A gloom was cast over the community on Monday last when a message was received from the Kingston General Hospital that Dr. Vrooman had passed away. The fact that he was seriously ill was not generally known throughout the county, as he had been attending to his professional duties until Tuesday of last week, when he was taken suddenly ill. Conscious of the seriousness of his condition he went to the General Hospital at Kingston on Thursday, where he received all the care and attention that the best medical skill of the city could furnish. He was found to be in a most critical condition, but hopes of his recovery were held out until Sunday morning, when pneumonia set in and he gradually sank and passed away on Monday forenoon.

No death in the county for years has called forth such genuine expressions of deep and heartfelt sorrow. The doctor was one of the most eminent physicians of Eastern Ontario and for a number of years has been an examiner for the Medical Council. He was a man of superior intellectual qualities who kept in close touch with the advances made in medical science. He possessed a keen sense of humor, was quick at repartee, but of such an amiable disposition that he was ever careful not to give offence. To the sick room he brought his extensive professional knowledge and, what counted just as much with many patients, a tender sympathetic heart.

As a citizen he took a deep interest in all patriotic and philanthropic measures, and was ever ready to lend a helping hand to any undertaking that had in view the advancement of the public welfare.

He was a Liberal in politics, and at the last general election was elected to the Provincial Legislature as the representative for Lennox, and, although he had no experience as a legislator, those who knew him best had no misgivings as to his business ability and felt confident that, had he been spared, he would have rendered splendid service to the province.

Socially he was a general favorite and his presence in any company contributed to the pleasure of all, as he was a brilliant conversationalist and entertainer

The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon and was preceded by many the largest ever witnessed in Napanee. Being the weekly summer half-holiday many were permitted to shew respect to his memory who otherwise would have been unable to do so. Every available space in St. Mary Magdalene Church was filled and hundreds were unable to gain admittance. Representatives were in attendance from the Dominion and Provincial Governments, the County Council and the Town Council. The esteem in which he was held by the members of his profession was manifested by the large number of physicians present from Kingston and the surrounding country. The impressive service of the English Church was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. Mr. Coleman, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Kidd and other members of the clergy. As the last sad rites were concluded and the remains were borne from the crowded church many a moistened eye and quivering lip bore eloquent testimony of the affectionate regard in which he was held by all classes of the community. The Masonic Order, of which he was a member, turned out in full force, and at the house and grave side performed the funeral ceremony accorded to members of the Craft.

The floral tributes were very numerous, including many beautiful designs from relatives and friends and one from the Provincial Cabinet.

Dr. Vrooman will long be remembered as a good-living exemplary citizen, a true and devoted friend of the poor and a worthy member of an honorable profession, whose highest ideals he endeavored to maintain in his daily practice. To the bereaved family this heavy blow falls with double force, as only a little over a year ago the doctor's elder daughter died after a brief illness. A host of sorrowing friends join with them in mourning the loss of one whose friendship was esteemed so highly.

FIRES BURNED FOR TWO MONTHS.

Resident Near Westbrook Almost Lost His Life When He Sank Into Bed of Hot Coals.

Amazing to the extreme has been the discovery near Westbrook of fires which have been burning unbeknown to the residents for over two months, and which recently almost claimed the life of a well-known farmer of that place.

It appears that in the month of June bad bush fires were burning about Westbrook, but the residents of that neighborhood extinguished them, or believed they did. The other day a resident walking along the place where the fires were suddenly sank into the ground up to his waist, and was greatly alarmed to find that he had fallen into a bed of live coals. It was not without losing his trousers by burning, and almost being burned to death, that he was able to extricate himself from his most perilous position. The ground is of a peaty nature, and the fire had steadily smouldered under the surface and run under the ground for a considerable distance. Nothing but a steady and long downpour will extinguish the fires it is now thought.

Commenting on the condition of the ground at that point, and the remarkable manner in which the fire burned for over two months, The Standard, in conversation with Capt. Leslie, learned that ten or twelve years ago he sank piles about that point and had to sink five 35-foot piles on top of each other before getting to a solid foundation. This shows the nature of the ground in that vicinity, and residents are hoping for heavy pours to extinguish the smouldering fires.

TAMWORTH.

A. B. Carscallen has added another addition to his mill. It will be used as an engine room.

CAMP LE NID.

Camp Le Nid has this year maintained its reputation as an international meeting place. Forty-two have answered to the roll call so far. Of this number two were from the Old Country, and the remainder equally divided between the United States and Canada. Mr. C. T. Gould, the pioneer from Baltimore, was the first to arrive in June, and remained until last week. This was his thirty-eighth year at Ruttan's Point, or as it is now entered upon the government charts, Point Le Nid.

The successful re-opening of Glen Island under its present management, has been a source of much pleasure to the campers who have taken full advantage of the privileges extended by the proprietors. The camp was en fete on Friday last in extending a welcome home to Mrs. Herrington and Mrs. Sneath.

The greatest tribute paid to Laura Secord Candy is that over twenty "imitation" Chocolates have been copied from them. But there is only one "Laura Secord". These for sale in Napanee, only at Wallace's.

trenches were seen on a very small model.

It now began to cloud up and rain a bit, so bidding Scoutmaster Hall farewell for the day, the Troop left for the Heights again. This time they got there the rain was over.

Bivouacs were pitched again for the night, supper eaten, after which the Big Chief held a voluntary Sunday School, which was attended by only four Scouts and two Cubs. Scouts Deane, Empey, Douglas, Dennison, and Cubs G. Howitt and Frink attending.

Lights out was blown and soon all was silent for the boys were sure tired.

NEWBURGH.

Changing events and unusual conditions often bring to the front some particular class of people. The dry weather and the many fires that have prevailed during the past summer have brought smokers into notice, and the charge of starting many of the fires is laid at their door. If there is any comfort derived from smoking it would seem selfish to force people to forego the luxury. And the same, when the habit leads to the destruction of property, possibly of lives, its devotees cannot wonder if they fall into blame. There is no doubt that the origin of many fires could be traced to cigarette smoking. One day last week while Mr. Frank Tomkins, who lives just out of Newburgh, was walking home an automobile passed him, and just as it passed one of the occupants threw out a cigarette stub, which landed in the dry grass on the side of the road. Mr. Tomkins waited for a minute to see the effect, and saw a fire start which in five minutes would have got beyond control had it not been promptly stamped out. The smoker, in this case, not only showed carelessness, but indifference, and, indifference is a good running mate to criminality. No person should smoke under the conditions that have prevailed this summer unless they have someone or something to certify to their common sense.

Mr. Morris Paul, who is employed by the C. P. R. as traffic policeman at Dauphin, Man., has been here visiting his old home village, after an absence of seventeen years.

Sir Robert and Lady Falconer, who motored all the way from Halifax with their two boys, Gilbert and Robert, stopped here to visit Lady Falconer's father, Rev. Mr. Gandier, and other members of the family.

Sir Robert, who looks much the better for rest, reports that they found evidence of drouth from Lake Megantic west, but beyond that there had been an abundance of rain.

Doctors who have been located at Newburgh seem to be following each other's trail. Dr. Walwin, who bought out the practice and real estate of Dr. Huxtable here, sold out to Dr. Mounce, afterwards locating in Bruce County. Now Dr. Huxtable has bought Dr. Walwin's practice and it is said that he is going to make a try to rebuy from Dr. Mounce. In the meantime Dr. Mounce is on the job here and seems quite content.

Mr. Andrews, Principal of the High School, arrived here from Toronto with a new car. This may seem a small item, but it may be of great significance.

The play-off for the championship between Wilton and Strathcona girls, which took place on Wednesday in Newburgh, was certainly the wildest game of the season. It drew a large crowd, and any person who could not howl lustily was at a discount. The umpire was the only one who could not be heard. He got his decisions in some way, and the score stood 29 to 21 in favor of Wilton. The fathers, mothers, husbands and grandparents of the contestants were all there and the excitement that prevailed beggars description. There is nothing we can compare it to unless the scene that prevailed when Eamonn De Valera was arrested at Ennis, in Ireland.

WITH THE 1st NAPANEE TROOP.

The local Scout Troop, after holding a council of war, decided to spend the week end of August 12th and 13th in Kingston. After various arrangements the boys went to bed early Saturday night at their camping ground at Springside Park, knowing that the Big Chief was going to call them out very early Sunday morning.

The Scoutmaster and three other Scouts went down to Springside camp about 12.30 Saturday night, and after holding a meeting, decided that it would be easier on all to get them up at this early hour, drive to Kingston and there go to bed for about four hours' sleep. This being decided on, the four Scouts and Scoutmaster got the blankets, etc., on the truck, then went from tent to tent calling the boys out. As all were anxious to go, it just took eighteen minutes from the time the first boy was called till the truck started off.

Our first mishap occurred while at Springside Park, the lights napoosed out. And not to be stuck, we lit the lantern, and this served as a light all the way there.

The detour at Odessa held us up for some time, as we had to go very slow. Otherwise, our journey was made to Barrifield Heights without any other mishap.

Here we pulled in off the road, the boys piled out. Blankets and rubber sheets were issued and all were now away in slumber land, tired but glad that they were at their journey's end. It was a beautiful sight to see the various bivouacs made from two rubber sheets, going up here and there.

About 8 a.m. the bugle was sounded and all got up, although they thought it being Sunday they should lay in. Each one had his own grub, so many fires were lit to cook their breakfast on.

After breakfast was ended, and all felt better, they were lined up and the boys looked around the heights they were on, the Scoutmaster pointing out to them the various sites where different battalions were camped, and spoke to them of so many of their fellow-scouts who were camped on these Heights who now were resting in Flanders.

From the roadside he marched them to the old swimming pool at Dead Man's Bay. Here some had a swim and all had their morning clean up.

While cleaning up the boys were told the tale of Dead Man's Bay It was now getting late, so they all went to the one time model trenches not far from their bivouacs. Here the Scoutmaster explained to them what the different trenches were meant for, the system of communicating from back areas to the front line, the system of advanced dug-outs, the trench blockades to hinder the enemy taking trenches, the advance machine gun posts, and also how the wire entanglements were placed, and where. Why the trenches were built in bays, why certain sections were built different from others. This lecture was listened to by the boys and all taking every word in. Many funny questions had to be answered as well.

Then bivouacs were struck and all left for the city to attend St. George's Cathedral. We were about two minutes late arriving, as our fires were all out, and we had to bury some of them with dirt.

Not making any arrangements with the Kingston Scouts, the members were surprised to see a strange troop march into their midst. Just before starting his wonderful sermon, Dean Starr heartily welcomed the 1st Napanee Troop to their midst, and assuring us that the St. George's troop would do all possible to make our stay here a pleasant one.

After the service, Scoutmaster Percy Hall of the St. George's Troop, welcomed our boys himself, and asked us what our programme was for the day. Hearing that we were anxious to go through the R. M. C., he said he would phone General Sir Archibald Macdonell and meet us at Macdonell's home.

We went to Macdonell's Park for lunch. There Mr. Hall met us and we went over to the Royal Military College. Here the Troop had the honor of meeting one of Canada's greatest soldiers, the Commandant himself. And many were the kind remarks passed by him after shaking hands,—Gee, but he is a fine man; why he is just like anybody else; he must have been a great soldier, and many other remarks.

On entering the College the boys saw many war trophies. From this main hall entrance, they went into Curry Hall. Here they saw some wonderful workmanship, every battalion crest of the Canadian Army being displayed here. On the walls of the gallery the paintings of the Canadian Generals were seen.

After viewing this hall we were shown through the different classrooms of the College, also the main dining room. In the mess room we saw many silver trophies which the different battalions had won in the past.

The Scouts were given a treat by the Commandant when he showed them through Fort Frederick. This stronghold helps to guard the mouth of the St. Lawrence. The boys wondered at the work done by perhaps some of their forefathers, the winding stairs, the loop-holes for protection, the old time cannons. They wondered at the space inside the tower. The door of the museum was opened and the General showed the boys some old time war trophies and present; he explained to them the advantages of the present war materials. He also showed them a German sword bayonet, explaining that the Germans had given their word of honor that no such bayonet was used. But there it was in the General's hand; this was evidence enough for the boys. Other articles, such as German helmets, bayonets, rifles, machine guns, bombs, swords, Royal North West Mounted Police helmets, and many other interesting things.

From this tower Scoutmaster Hall took us to another room where the trenches were seen on a very small model.

It is now began to cloud up and rain a bit, so bidding Scoutmaster Hall farewell for the day, the Troop left for the Heights again. By the time they got there the rain was over.

Bivouacs were pitched again for the night, supper eaten, after which the Big Chief held a voluntary Sunday School, which was attended by only four Scouts and two Cubs, Scouts Deane, Empey, Douglas, Dennison, and Cubs G. Howitt and Frink attending.

Lights out was blown and soon all was silent for the boys were sure tired.

FIRES BURNED FOR TWO MONTHS.

Resident Near Westbrook Almost Lost His Life When He Sank Into Bed of Hot Coals.

Amazing to the extreme has been the discovery near Westbrook of fires which have been burning unbeknown to the residents for over two months, and which recently almost claimed the life of a well-known farmer of that place.

It appears that in the month of June bad bush fires were burning about Westbrook, but the residents of that neighborhood extinguished them, or believed they did. The other day a resident walking along the place where the fires were suddenly sank into the ground up to his waist, and was greatly alarmed to find that he had fallen into a bed of live coals. At was not without losing his trousers by burning, and almost being burned to death, that he was able to extricate himself from his most perilous position. The ground is of a peaty nature, and the fire had steadily smouldered under the surface and run under the ground for a considerable distance. Nothing but a steady and long downpour will extinguish the fires it is now thought.

Commenting on the condition of the ground at that point, and the remarkable manner in which the fire burned for over two months, The Standard, in conversation with Capt. Leslie, learned that ten or twelve years ago he sank piles about that point and had to sink five 35-foot piles on top of each other before getting to a solid foundation. This shows the nature of the ground in that vicinity, and residents are hoping for heavy pours to extinguish the smouldering fires.

CAMP LE NID.

Camp Le Nid has this year maintained its reputation as an international meeting place. Forty-two have answered to the roll call so far. Of this number two were from the Old Country, and the remainder equally divided between the United States and Canada. Mr. C. I. T. Gould, the pioneer from Baltimore, was the first to arrive in June, and remained until last week. This was his thirty-eighth year at Ruttan's Point, or as it is now marked upon the government charts, Point Le Nid.

The successful re-opening of Gibraltar Island under its present management, has been a source of much pleasure to the campers who have taken full advantage of the privileges extended by the proprietors. The camp was en fete on Friday last in extending a welcome home to Mrs. Herrington and Mrs. Sneath.

The greatest tribute paid to Laura Secord Candy is that over twenty "visitation" Chocolates have been copied from them. But there is only one "Laura Secord". These for sale in Napanee, only at Wallace's.

John Perry Vrooman, M.D., M.P.P.

A gloom was cast over the community on Monday last when a message was received from the Kingston General Hospital that Dr. Vrooman had passed away. The fact that he was seriously ill was not generally known throughout the county, as he had been at and to his professional duties until Tuesday of last week, when he was taken suddenly ill. Conscious of the seriousness of his condition he went to the General Hospital at Kingston on Thursday, where he received all the care and attention that the best medical skill of the city could furnish. He was found to be in a most critical condition, but hopes of his recovery were held out until Sunday morning, when pneumonia set in and he gradually sank and passed away on Monday forenoon.

No death in the county for years has called forth such genuine expressions of deep and heartfelt sorrow. The doctor was one of the most eminent physicians of Eastern Ontario and for a number of years has been an examiner for the Medical Council. He was a man of superior intellectual qualities who kept in close touch with the advances made in medical science. He possessed a keen sense of humor, was quick at repartee, full of such an amiable disposition that he was ever careful not to give offence. To the sick room he brought his extensive professional knowledge and, what counted just as much with many patients, a tender sympathetic heart.

As a citizen he took a deep interest in all patriotic and philanthropic measures, and was ever ready to lend a helping hand to any undertaking that had in view the advancement of the public welfare.

He was a Liberal in politics, and at the last general election was elected to the Provincial Legislature as the representative for Lennox, and, although he had no experience as a legislator, those who knew him best had no misgivings as to his business ability and felt confident that, had he been spared, he would have rendered splendid service to the province.

Socially he was a general favorite and his presence in any company contributed to the pleasure of all, as he was a brilliant conversationalist and entertainer

The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon and was pronounced by many the largest ever witnessed in Napanee. Being the weekly summer half-holiday many were permitted to shew respect to his memory who otherwise would have been unable to do so. Every available space in St. Mary Magdalene Church was filled and hundreds were unable to gain admittance. Representatives were in attendance from the Dominion and Provincial Governments, the County Council and the Town Council. The esteem in which he was held by the members of his profession was manifested by the large number of physicians present from Kingston and the surrounding country. The impressive service of the English Church was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. Mr. Coleman, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Kidd and other members of the clergy. As the last sad rites were concluded and the remains were borne from the crowded church many a moistened eye and quivering lip bore eloquent testimony of the affection-ate regard in which he was held by all classes of the community. The Masonic Order, of which he was a member, turned out in full force, and at the house and grave side performed the fanerial ceremony accorded to members of the Craft. The floral tributes were very numerous, including many beautiful designs from relatives and friends and one from the Provincial Cabinet.

Dr. Vrooman will be long remembered as a good-living exemplary citizen, a true and devoted friend of the poor and a worthy member of an honorable profession, whose highest ideals he endeavored to maintain in his daily practice. To the bereaved family this heavy blow falls with double force, as only a little over a year ago the doctor's elder daughter died after a brief illness. A host of sorrowing friends join with them in mourning the loss of one whose friendship was esteemed so highly.

Make the Rinso liquid first

Do not put Rinso direct from the package into the tub. Mix half a package of Rinso in a little cool water until it is like cream. Then add two quarts of boiling water, and when the froth subsides, you will have a clean amber-coloured liquid.

Add this liquid to the wash tub, until you get the big lasting Rinso suds. Then soak the clothes clean.

Rinso is as splendid for the regular family washing as it is for fine fabrics.

Battleship, Submarine, Tank and Long Range Gun Are Merely Toys.

Aircraft Rapidly Reaching Point of Efficiency as Offensive Weapon Which Will Reduce Older Implements of Warfare to Insignificance.

London, August 17th.—War scares are bound to arise from time to time considering the condition Europe is in, and considering also, the very distinct hope of improvement. People may find themselves forced by the inflammation of public opinion to make up their minds on the issue of peace or war with this nation or that nation. It is just as well, therefore, that everyone should realize exactly what war means.

The next war will resemble as little the last war as the last war resembled any previous war. There will be more difference between the next war and any other war than there was between the war when gun-powder was first invented and the war before it when there was hand to hand fighting.

The new element, the new form of armament, which is to upset all our calculations, is the air service.

As an offensive weapon, aircraft is rapidly reaching a degree of destructiveness which reduces the battleship, the tank, the long range gun and even the submarine to toys. At the same time it must be remembered that aeroplanes are comparatively cheap and can be rapidly constructed. How will they operate?

In future, instead of aiming at some particular center, zones will be marked out for general demolition. Over the first zone a hundred squadrons will operate; 1,200 machines will be able to make three raids in 24 hours, carrying and dropping 900 tons of explosives and gases. In three days, 2,700 tons of bombs will fall on the area in question, while other squadrons will be free to fly over more distant zones.

No city, village, building or railway will be safe. The rain of explosives, well aimed and highly destructive, will spare nothing above ground, while the gas bombs will cover the whole district with a pall of heavy gas, which will make life above ground impossible for days. Railway lines will be torn up, so that escape for the inhabitants who are not crushed under the ruins of their houses will be impossible.

Driven under ground, if they can find such a refuge, the panic-stricken population will remain cowering in terror, lest on emerging they may succumb to poison gas, or again become the target for another shower of bombs.

Bomb-Proof Shelters.

This is no fantastic picture. To carry out this work of universal annihilation is a perfectly easy task for modern aircraft and it will require the construction of vast bomb-proof shelters if any appreciable number of people are to be saved from a ridiculous death. The civil population, including women and children, who were the last to be reached in former wars, will be the first, defenceless as they will be, to be sacrificed in the warfare of the future.

There will be no time for making defenses or devising protection. A declaration of war will no longer be followed by a few days of delay while troops mass and battleships take up their strategic positions. Within a couple of hours of the declaration, this diabolical rain from the sky will begin.

The people will be as capable of resistance as ants in an ant heap when boiling water is poured over them. Terror-stricken, they will dive under the ground wherever they can, and where they cannot they will be asphyxiated or blown to atoms. The one consolation which will be offered to them, if consolation it be, will be that the nation which has been selected as their enemy is being treated in the same way.

This is the point which Christian civilization has reached in the twentieth century. These are the plans which are being worked out and perfected in the war offices of the powers of the western world. This is the new method which man in his wisdom has devised with a view to settling international disputes.

'SPANISH PRISONER' RESUMES ACTIVITY.

OLD-TIME SWINDLE NOW TRIED IN CANADA.

The old "Spanish Prisoner Story," that colorful tale of an unfortunate in a deep dungeon in old Barcelona and an immense fortune in a banking institution in the United States, which was making its rounds about the time grandfather began wearing long trousers, has been revived in different parts of Canada. The revival was tried out unsuccessfully on W. J. Normile, of Napanee, a few days ago, an important looking letter coming to Mr. Normile through the mail. The writer said he was the prisoner in the Spanish calaboose. He had been incarcerated by political enemies and was much the victim of circumstance. He sought Mr. Normile's assistance. On deposit in the United States was a fortune of $360,000. If Mr. Normile would wire him a few hundred dollars, a comparatively trivial amount, he would receive as a reward one-third of the fortune. A cheque was awaiting him as soon as he responded and assisted the Spanish prisoner in gaining his liberty.

Following is the letter :—

Barcelone, 5-7, 1923.

Dear Sir,—Being imprisoned here by bankruptcy, I beseech you to help me to obtain a sum of 360,000 dollars I have in America being necessary to come here to raise the seizure of my baggage paying to the Register of the Court the expenses of my trial and recover my portmanteau containing a secret pocket where I have hidden two cheques payable to bearer for that sum.

As reward I will give up to you the third part, viz. 120,000 dollars. I cannot receive your answer in the prison but you can send a cablegram to a person of my confidence who will deliver it to me addressed as follows :

Senor Pulls
Llats Cerrera
Farragona (Spain).

Awaiting your answer to instruct you all my secret now am only

DIED OF INJURIES FROM A RUNAWAY

John E. Freebern Passed Away in Hospital After Four Weeks' Suffering.

Badly injured in a runaway accident four weeks ago when several bones in his body were broken, John Elden Freebern, of Maple Avenue, Wilton, died Monday morning, in the Kingston General Hospital, where everything which was done to save his life.

Mr. Freebern was driving a load of hay and was accompanied by his hired man, Fred Sweet, when suddenly the horses ran away. Mr. Freebern was thrown from the top of the load onto the whiffletree, and was dragged for some distance before thrown to the ground, sustaining several broken bones in his body. The hired man had escaped from the load by the back, and immediately ran to the rescue of Mr. Freebern, who was rushed to the General Hospital. Dr. I. G. Bogart attended him, but the injuries and shock were too much for him and he passed away Monday morning.

Deceased was aged 51 years, and was a well-known farmer of Wilton, where he had resided for the past four years, going there from Bethel. In religion he was an Anglican, and was a Conservative in politics. He is survived by his widow, two brothers, Rev. George L. Freebern, of Albion, Nels, and Seymour Freebern, of Sydenham, and one sister, Mrs. Ellen Footen, of Sydenham. The funeral will be held on Monday from his late residence at 1.30, standard time.

DEHORNING OF CATTLE

Both Beef and Dairy Animals Are the Better for It.

Renders Bulls More Tractable—Caustic Potash or a Sharp Knife for Calves—The Saw or Special Shears for Older Cattle.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

It is generally realized that horns on cattle are a disadvantage, and that both feeding and dairy cattle are improved by dehorning, in that they are prevented to a great extent thereafter from causing each other injury. Dehorned cattle also mingle together more quietly and annoy and disturb each other less while feeding and drinking, and as a result make better gains. Another advantage of dehorning is that in shipping fat cattle to market the danger of injuring and bruising each other is lessened and consequently reduces the waste incidental to the removal of bruised parts from the carcasses after slaughter. The economic waste and loss though bruises inflicted by horn thrusts before slaughter is much greater than is generally realized. Bruises from this cause are known to incur a wastage in some shipments of about one per cent. of the dressed carcasses, incidental to the trimming and removal of the bruised parts.

The dehorning of bulls renders them more tractable and easily managed, and removes the menace of goring and seriously injuring attendants and others. The practice of preventing horn growth in young cattle overcomes the objections of those having sentiments against the operation of dehorning adult cattle. This procedure is becoming generally popular and is being practiced to an increasing extent in calves.

Caustic Potash Treatment for Calves.

The development of horn growth can be effectively prevented in calves by the use of caustics applied to the "horn buttons or nubbins" soon after birth. To be successful the operation should be done when the calf is two or three days old and, at least, before it is a week old. Before applying the caustic it is best to clip the hair from around the little "horn buttons" on the head. The little "horn buttons" are then moistened slightly and rubbed thoroughly for a few seconds with either caustic potash or caustic soda. After a short time has been allowed for the caustic to dry, a second application is given as before. The caustic can be obtained in small white sticks, about the size of a pencil, and one end should be wrapped in paper or cloth to protect the fingers while applying it. Two or three applications of the caustic, properly done, are sufficient to destroy and prevent the horns from ever developing. The skin around the treated spots should be smeared with a little vaseline, and the calf should be protected from rain for a day or more after treatment. This is to prevent the caustic being washed off the treated spots and spreading to the surrounding skin and into the eyes.

Cutting With Knives.

When calves are allowed to go without treatment until they are several weeks old, and the "horn buttons" have developed into projecting knobs, the caustic treatment is not sufficient to entirely destroy growth, and may permit an irregular growth of horn to develop. At this age, the best method is to remove the projecting horn knobs by cutting them off at their base, close up to the head, with a sharp knife or with a pair of calf dehorners. In the case of male calves intended to be kept as bulls, many prefer to defer the dehorning operation until about the age of two or three years, or at a time when the horns are almost fully developed. The deferring of the operation to this time in the case of bulls generally makes them still more tractable than if deprived of their horns while young. In the case of steers and heifers not deprived of their horns while calves, they should be dehorned before they reach the age of three years. In dehorning grown animals, it is essential that they are properly secured and restrained for the operation. For this purpose the animal to be dehorned should be securely fastened in a rack or chute or a solid stanchion. Once the animal is securely fastened, the horns should be removed with as little bungling as possible.

Using Saws or Strong Shears.

For removing the horns, either a sharp meat saw or a pair of Keystone dehorning shears may be used. The dehorning shears are most commonly used, nevertheless the saw is quite satisfactory and serviceable for small numbers. The main feature is to do the operation as quickly as possible and to remove the horn close up to the head, about half an inch below the hair line, thus removing that much of the skin with the horn. If this is not done there is a likelihood of a secondary growth of irregular horn taking place, forming projecting horn stubs which are undesirable and spoil the animal's appearance. After the horns are removed, no further treatment is, as a rule, required, unless there is severe bleeding. In cases of severe bleeding, the core can be smeared with tar and the opening packed with a piece of absorbent cotton, or with a piece of clean cheese cloth. This dressing can be allowed to remain for a day and then removed and the parts washed off with antiseptic solution, such as a two per cent. solution of cresolis or lysol. With regard to the best time of the year for dehorning adult cattle, it may be done at any time other than during fly time in summer and during zero weather in the case of cattle wintering outside.—C. SPEND MORE ON FOREST PROTECTION, FLAVELLE URGES.

Specially written by Sir Joseph Flavelle, Bart.

That we, the Canadian people, who own eighty-five per cent of all our forest area, should open wide the gates to unrestrained forest destruction is a spectacle quite unworthy of a nation that lays claim to shrewdness and foresight.

Unfortunately, most of us—shift along under the belief that the forests of Canada are privately owned. This is not true. The governments are not alone the owners of the bulk of forested lands, but they are obviously the natural protectors. As long as we look to private companies of lumbermen and paper makers we are missing the main point. The people themselves must take on the job of protecting and perpetuating a resource that belongs to the next generation quite as much as to the people of 1923.

Do we fully realize that every square mile of standing timber is on a rising market and that vandalism, represented by burning forest fires, enforces a higher penalty to-day than at any previous time? We cannot carry on the business of Canada and pay out forests. Let us face that fact and all that it connotes. There is hardly any price that we cannot afford to pay for the enforcement of forest protection. I do not think it is at all unreasonable to say that no government has any right to extract revenues from the forests to be spent on ordinary civil purposes until every effort has been made, and every dollar spent, that will make the forest secure and self perpetuating.

A Scottish minister who was indefatigable in looking up his folk one day called upon a parishioner.

"Richard," he said, "I hae no seen ye at the kirk for some time, and wad like to know the reason."

"Weel, sir," answered Richard, "I hae three decided objections to goin'. Firstly, I dinna believe in being whaur ye dona a' the talkin'; secondly, I dinna believe in sittin' muckle singin', an', thirdly, an' in conclusion, 'twas there I got my wife."

AN UP-TO-DATE PIGGERY

Established on a Kingston Junction Farm by Frank Briceland.

An up-to-date piggery has been established on a farm at Kingston Junction by Frank Briceland, an enterprising young farmer, who makes extensive use of the garbage collected from hotels, restaurants and large boarding houses in the city.

Mr. Briceland has at the present time 124 pigs in various stages of development for the bacon trade and he is giving particular attention to the raising and feeding of the bacon hog, or Yorkshire, declared to be the breed that meets all the requirements of the English market. In this way his plant will have the effect of stimulating interest in the farmers of the district from whom he buys young pigs from time to time. His stocks are so selected that he always has a large number of hogs available for the market while the animals range from a few weeks old to six months. He has accommodation for 150 hogs, and his plant, which has been inspected by Dr. William Nicholls, Kingston, and Dr. J. W. Purdue, veterinary inspector of the dominion department of agriculture, is declared to be first-class in every respect.

A representative of the press visited Mr. Briceland's establishment on Wednesday, in company with Dr. Nicholls, and he found that pigs there are regarded as requiring the cleanest quarters to keep them in good health. It was at one time thought that the pig's natural element was dirt and filth, but nothing could be further from the truth. "If they are given clean quarters and good food properly cooked they will not get disease, and will develop rapidly," said Mr. Briceland as he explained the system he carried out.

The building has been recently built and has a concrete floor with proper drainage, and the sleeping space is so constructed as to be absolutely dry and clean. All food is cooked in vats by live steam supplied from a steam boiler in a separate building. Water is pumped to the building by a gasoline engine. The food is placed hot in pens off feeding troughs so arranged that the animals cannot get at it until it is sufficiently cooled. After the vats have been filled with food steam pipes are placed in it and the cooking is completely done. There is also a mill, cut to which steam is applied in the same way, completely pasteurizing it.

Off the main corridor is located a weighing room fitted up by the Fairbanks Scale Company and adjusted by F. T. Hunt, dominion inspector of weights and measures. When the pigs are ready for the market they are driven into this room in groups, weighed and registered. They then pass through a loading chute to trucks waiting to convey them to pork packing factories.

Mr. Briceland's farm consists of eighty acres, located just outside the city limits, but near to the Canadian National Railway tracks and convenient for making shipments to either side points. He is a son of Edward Briceland, a prominent dairyman of Wolfe Island, and has been a farmer all his life. He is an expert on hogs and the establishment of his plant is regarded by Dr. Nicholls as a good thing for the farmers of the district. They always have a surplus of young pigs and they will be able to dispose of them profitably to Mr. Briceland. While the Yorkshire is the best bacon hog, farmers have their individual preferences. Some breed Tamworths and Chesters, Berkshires and Chester White. None of these, however, produce the fine bacon so much in demand, and Mr. Briceland, while retaining his stocks according to age, has also to trade them again according to breed so that when he has a shipment to make the purchaser knows exactly what he is getting.

The business in hogs is constantly growing, and Mr. Briceland is planning further improvements and extensions in order to be in a position to take care of it. The dominion department of agriculture has for many years been carrying on a campaign to develop the hog industry because of the profit it represented to our farmers, and the establishment of plants like Mr. Briceland's in every county would in a few years make hog breeding one of the great sources of wealth.

MILK PASTEURIZATION

Making Milk Safe for Use in the Family.

Pasteurization Is Not Sterilization—Diseases Transmitted by Milk —Points Charged Against Pasteurization — "Safety First" a Good Practice.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The process applied to milk, that we know as pasteurization, was originally used by Pasteur to prevent the souring of wines and beer, and it is now universally applied in the control of milk supplies of large cities. At first it was intended for the preservation of milk, that is, to prevent souring, but now it is used solely with the idea of destroying disease-producing micro-organisms.

Pasteurization Is Not Sterilization.

Pasteurization is not sterilization. A much greater heat is required to sterilize than is applied in the former process. Pasteurization consists of heating the milk to a temperature of not less than 140 degrees and not more than 150 degs. F., for a period of not less than 20 and not more than 30 minutes, and then rapidly cooling it to 45 degs. F., or under, and keeping it at that temperature until delivered to the consumer. In addition to this, every care must be taken to have a clean product. The process does not remove dirt; therefore those responsible for the supervision of milk supplies insist on a high quality of milk for pasteurization.

No matter how carefully milk is handled and how well cows are inspected there still remains the danger of the carrier, that is, a person harboring the germs of a disease and yet not affected by them; or of the person who is developing an infectious disease, yet is not sick enough to stop working. These people may unwittingly infect the milk by coughing, sneezing, by their soiled hands when milking or washing vessels, or indirectly in many other ways. It is true that if the milk is kept cold these disease-producing bacteria will not multiply, but they may remain alive and fully virulent for a long time and the original number be sufficient to cause infection.

Disease Transmitted by Milk.

Some of the diseases of man that may be transmitted by milk are: Septic sore throat, typhoid, scarlet fever, diphtheria and tuberculosis. Some animal diseases transmissible to man through milk are: Tuberculosis; cow pox, which may cause infection of the digestive tract in young children; mastitis, which may cause gastro-intestinal disturbances; foot and mouth disease; tremtegs; pneumonia and others. Pasteurization destroys the organisms that are the cause of all the foregoing diseases. In regard to bovine tuberculosis it is known that though adults may be relatively immune to infection from a bovine source, children are quite susceptible, and a considerable percentage of cases of tuberculosis in young children can be shown to be of bovine origin. There are certain biological differences in the bacilli from humans and cattle which make it possible to differentiate these infections. A cow may be dangerous even though the udder is not infected, as the germs are passed out with the excreta before any clinical evidence of tuberculosis is present, and owing to the position of the pails it is known that though adults may be relatively immune to infection from a bovine source, children are quite susceptible, and a considerable percentage of cases of tuberculosis in young children can be shown to be of bovine origin. There are certain biological differences in the bacilli from humans and cattle which make it possible to differentiate these infections. A cow may be dangerous even though the udder is not infected, as the germs are passed out with the excreta before any clinical evidence of tuberculosis is present, and owing to the position of the pails it is almost impossible to keep them out of the pail as they fall in with the tiny particles of manure that are on the cow's body and that sift down in the form of dust. Apart from the recognized disease producing bacteria, it is known that large numbers of ordinarily harmless ones in milk may cause a serious and frequently fatal diarrhea in children during the summer months.

Points Charged Against Pasteurization.

Some of the arguments put forward against pasteurization are: That the cream is reduced; that the milk is rendered indigestible; that the milk will not sour, thus doing away with nature's danger signal; and that the vitamines are destroyed. The last is the only argument that now carries any weight. The cream is not reduced in quantity, but by heating the fat globules are broken up smaller and do not rise to the top so easily, thus causing the cream line to appear less. As a matter of fact at 142 degs. F., there is very little reduction even in the appearance. With proper pasteurization the chemical and physical constitution of the milk is not appreciably changed, at least not to an extent that renders it less valuable as a food. The lactic acid bacteria that cause souring of milk are not all destroyed by the heating, and consequently properly pasteurized milk may sour like raw milk, thus indicating its age and condition. Recent work on vitamines shows that the anti-rachitic and anti-neuritic factors are not removed by pasteurization, but that the anti-scorbutic vitamine probably is. It should be replaced by giving daily a teaspoonful of orange or lemon juice diluted with water and sweetened.

"Safety First" Good Practice.

Until methods of milk production are much more perfect than they are at present the only way of maintaining a safe milk supply would appear to be by pasteurization, in which the rapid cooling and keeping is given as much attention as the maintenance of the correct temperature for the proper length of time.—Ronald Gwatkin, D.V.S.c., Ontario Veterinary College, Guelph.

The most profitable use is made of beet tops when they are siloed and fed with alfalfa hay or other forage and possibly supplemented with grain or concentrate feeds.

The chief value of cowpea hay lies in its high percentage of digestible protein. This has been verified by numerous feeding tests.

ROD AND GUN IN CANADA.

The September issue of Rod and Gun in Canada contains a wealth of information and amusement for the sportsman. "The Clerical Fishing Party" by the Rev. W. A. Bradley is an original account of a real trip, while there is a practical article on making use of the birch-bark. "By Canoe Through the Wilds of Quebec" by Alfred Keator is an interesting account of a novel route, while Bonnycastle Dale, and F. V. Williams have contributed two good stories. The last Close Call of Martin Hunter is contained in this issue while a table showing the Game Seasons for 1923 will prove of interest to all sportsmen. Robert Page Lincoln has a fishing department of interest, while C. S. Landis, W. C. Motley, F. H. Walker and J. W. Wilson have their regular contributions all up to the standard. Guns and Ammunition in the September issue is particularly large and interesting, while an article on the North American Buffalo and a story by H. Mortimer Batten complete a particularly good number.

WHERE LITTLE PIGS GO

Too Many Young Pigs Are Eaten by Their Mothers.

How Bill Smith Overcame the Trouble—Give the Sow a Balanced Ration—Just Practice Intelligent Feeding—Rationing the Sow.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Tom was "blue." Having just returned from the swine pen, where he had gone to inspect a new litter of pigs, he found that five had disappeared. The unnatural mother had eaten them. "The pig must be a strange animal," he reflected. "It must have been pure cussedness that caused her to eat her offspring. She was well fed, too, on corn and wheat shorts; hunger could not be at the bottom of this infanticidal case."

Tom went about his work mumblins to himself as to what could be the matter. Nearly fifty little fat had been lost by such cannibalism during the two preceding years.

Find Out the Weak Spot.

"Where is the weak spot in the system of feeding swine, anyway," he questioned himself. "I will go over and see Bill Smith, the most successful pig man in the district, and see if he can clear up this pig-eating business that is causing me so much loss."

"Good morning, Tom. What makes your face look so long and your nose so blue this morning," quoth Smith, as he looked at his visitor's glum countenance.

"I have had another experience with a pig-eating sow," said Tom. "Five more pigs gone this morning, and I can't make it out. The sow was liberally fed on corn and shorts. I want to get at the bottom of this trouble, so I have come over to ask you your experience, as I suppose you have had losses the same as I have."

How Smith Overcame the Trouble.

"Well, Tom, I would be glad to give you my experience in this some tough luck. I used to lose a lot of pigs in this same way up to about two years ago, when I suddenly tumbled to what the cause of it all was, and applied a remedy that has proven a success in stopping the sows eating their young pigs."

Tom brightened up and became very much interested. "What's the secret?" he asked.

"Well, you see, it's like this: Pigs in the wild state or running in the woods usually get what their systems demand, in the variety of food supplied by the great range of living things on which the pigs feed naturally. Pigs penned up have to take what we give them, and if we neglect to supply a sufficient variety of food containing all the essentials necessary to satisfy the demands of the pig, trouble will follow. And that trouble is usually manifested in the eating of the young pigs to satisfy the craving for meat or protein food."

"That all seems reasonable enough," said Tom. "But tell me, how do you satisfy the pig's demand for meat or protein foods?"

Give the Sow a Balanced Feed.

"Simply this. Balance up the sow's feed from the start, using alfalfa hay, meat meal or digester tankage as the source of protein and phosphates. Feed alfalfa hay whatever the pigs will take. Feed tankage or meat meal, going one pound to each ten pounds of grain feed, either mixed with the grain or fed at will, from a self-feeder. If the sow eats her babies, Tom, it's your fault. Do as I have done, you see. Supply the demands of her body in the food you give her, and then she will be normal and the pigs safe."

Just Practice Intelligent Feeding.

"Thousands of young pigs are lost every spring through the neglect to feed intelligently. Nobody ever saw a slaughter-house fed sow destroy her young. Meat or protein in some form must be fed to mother pigs or there will be trouble."

"I see it, Bill, and I'll do it, too, from now on, and save the youngsters for bacon," said the new thoroughly enlightened and delighted Tom.—L. Stevenson, Secy Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Australia's Wild Tropical Coasts.

Australia's wild northwest is Australia's tropical country, where the temperature often reaches 158 degrees. Huge tides sweep the shores, some of them as high as forty feet. Millions of crabs swarm on the beaches, and the waters are filled with strange creatures, including tremendous turtles and ungainly sea-cows, who suckle their young. The northwest region comprises a territory of about 400,000 square miles, in which not more than 7,000 white people live. Several times as many black aborigines are in the country. Some of these men are seven feet in height.

Mme. Patti and the Snob.

Adelina Patti had a good memory, and hated snobbishness. In her youth she attracted colder by a certain London matron, at whose home she sang. A number of year afterwards she met the matron at a friend's country house. They were discussing the odd uniform of the matron's footman. Patti admired it. "It's such an original idea," she said, "how did you discover it?" "Oh," the matron replied confidentially, "it wates from my great-great-grandfather." "Indeed," explained Patti, "and whose service was he in, pray?"

Doughty Dean Fry.

The Very Rev. Thomas Charles Fry, Dean of Lincoln, is a man who tries to commemorate his own personality in that very ancient and distinguished corporation, Lincoln Cathedral. He lives on the cathedral and the town and is able from his high towers to take within his purview the great stretches of country which makes up the diocese. But he is himself too interesting and virile a character to be so lost to view.

Dr. Fry has come to this continent to visit of the needs of his great church. Since 1910, when he became dean, he has seen its main walls cracking and bending, its towers losing their durability, its very fabric under threat. Prior to the war he had hopes of raising enough money in the diocese to restore the building to safety. But Lincoln gave so much to the war that no thought or effort could be given it during those fateful years. Then it was found that the loyal people of town, shire and see had not the necessary resources. Dean Fry appealed to England and now in person to Canada and the United States.

Born in 1846, the dean is no mere youth. In fact, he was warned against an ocean voyage at his advanced age, but he has insisted on coming and his distinguished appearance has made an appeal second only to his mission. The dean is the grandson of the rectory, and has been pastor and schoolmaster, church reformer and author and select preacher to Cambridge University.

Mystery of Bird Migration.

The smallest of British birds, the gold-crested wren, displays great powers of endurance in the performance of its migration to the south. The birds arrive on the island of Heligoland, according to Herr Gatke, a German observer, in uncountable numbers and make only a very brief stay. On reaching the island, we are told by Sir Henry Maxwell in "Memories of the Months," these tiny birds are "too weary to seek anything but rest. Even if food were available for the multitude, they would be too much exhausted to search for it." It is one of the mysteries of migration, how birds can perform these long flights without nourishment. They tuck their heads back among their feathers and go to sleep at once.

The butcher suggested a saddle of mutton.

"Saddle?" said the man who was doing the marketing for his wife. "No, make it a bridle; I'll stand a better chance of getting a bit in my mouth."

Asthma Cannot Last when the greatest of all asthma specifics is used. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy assuredly deserves this exalted title. It has to its credit thousands of cases which other preparations had failed to benefit. It brings help to even the most severe cases and brings the patient to a condition of blessed relief. Surely suffering from asthma is needless when a remedy like this is so easily secured.

"Well, yes," answered B., "considering that it's a Scottish game."

Doughty Dean Fry.

The Very Rev. Thomas Charles Fry, Dean of Lincoln, is a man who tries to commemorate his own personality in that very ancient and distinguished corporation, Lincoln Cathedral. He lives on the cathedral and the town and is able from his high towers to take within his purview the great stretches of country which makes up the diocese. But he is himself too interesting and virile a character to be so lost to view.

Dr. Fry has come to this continent to visit of the needs of his great church. Since 1910, when he became dean, he has seen its main walls cracking and bending, its towers losing their durability, its very fabric under threat. Prior to the war he had hopes of raising enough money in the diocese to restore the building to safety. But Lincoln gave so much to the war that no thought or effort could be given it during those fateful years. Then it was found that the loyal people of town, shire and see had not the necessary resources. Dean Fry appealed to England and now in person to Canada and the United States.

Born in 1846, the dean is no mere youth. In fact, he was warned against an ocean voyage at his advanced age, but he has insisted on coming and his distinguished appearance has made an appeal second only to his mission. The dean is the grandson of the rectory, and has been pastor and schoolmaster, church reformer and author and select preacher to Cambridge University.

Mystery of Bird Migration.

The smallest of British birds, the gold-crested wren, displays great powers of endurance in the performance of its migration to the south. The birds arrive on the island of Heligoland, according to Herr Gatke, a German observer, in uncountable numbers and make only a very brief stay. On reaching the island, we are told by Sir Henry Maxwell in "Memories of the Months," these tiny birds are "too weary to seek anything but rest. Even if food were available for the multitude, they would be too much exhausted to search for it." It is one of the mysteries of migration, how birds can perform these long flights without nourishment. They tuck their heads back among their feathers and go to sleep at once.

The butcher suggested a saddle of mutton.

"Saddle?" said the man who was doing the marketing for his wife. "No, make it a bridle; I'll stand a better chance of getting a bit in my mouth."

Asthma Cannot Last when the greatest of all asthma specifics is used. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy assuredly deserves this exalted title. It has to its credit thousands of cases which other preparations had failed to benefit. It brings help to even the most severe cases and brings the patient to a condition of blessed relief. Surely suffering from asthma is needless when a remedy like this is so easily secured.

Critic Writes About Novels

Mr. J. Middleton Murray, editor of the London Athenaeum, is both a novelist and a critic. He has written a book on Dostoevsky. He has written at least one novel after the Dostoevskyan manner. So the weary but insatiable tribe of novel-addicts turns with hope to Murray, to his article in the Yale Review, "The Break-Up of the Novel." It is encouraging for some of us to hear that the novel is breaking up, says the New York Times. Many contemporary novels threaten that novel-readers will break up or break down. In the name of the innumerable choir of poets we protest against Mr. Murray's assertion that "prose fiction is the only vital and comprehensive literary form left." But that is a digression; and of the comprehensiveness of some prevailing manifestations of the novel there is no doubt. The modern expert novelist, it seems, "annihilates the story." That, we gather, was for children of all ages, for pickers of mere amusement or distraction. A novel of the proper sort is tremendously serious. Reading it is hard work to suit Camel puffers.

"Exasperation," says Mr. Murray, "is continually manifest as a disturbing influence in the work of such writers of English as Mr. Lawrence, Mr. Dowson (or Ezra), Mr. Joyce, Mr. Wyndham Lewis, and, above all, Mr. Joyce." Well, exasperation is a condition natural to a good many of their readers. The philosopher, however, outwardly and outwitted it, finds it a fine thing to be exasperated by. For a time a desperate small order upon the reader, no matter how unreasonable, is great and good to impose. In time it is deadening to the sensibilities. There comes a moment when we see that this is one of the greatest works of humor that was ever written, and the passage piled and piled on some simple mental conditions is being led through to madness in which the most extraordinary and exercise and accurate machinery are cut and revolve with a bewildering velocity, and [illegible] such fantastic tricks as to make the onlooker gasp.

As Mr. Hoeffer said in the Yale Review last summer, appraising "A Handful Dust" by novelist:

The characters of Mr. Lawrence are always in pairs, in fields of asphodel, talk pathologic nonsense, every word of which Mr. Lawrence records as if he had been sitting on the edge of the bed with a stenographer's tablet. But as for interplay of personality for personality's sake, the works of Mr. Lawrence there is none. Absolutely none. Lawrence's men and women discuss love and discuss sex, but they never were looking up those words in the dictionary. Brimming over with the notion that there they found, with a profound solemnity and unrinking perspicuousness.

Or take Mr. Herrschaimer's "Cythere." He is an author whose "authority" is undisputed. Some thin lean, too much bored by that book until the Knickerbocker lady, whose inhibitions melt so suddenly and strangely, swims into your ken. Then the springs of horror overflow, and you are enslaved. In a translation of a French story published by an international magazine somebody thinks his revolver at the eye of a mysterious person and fires. Whereupon "a hole appeared where there had been an eye and milk spurted forth abundantly, turning a long white course on the dinner jacket which the man wore."

Take this piece of bizarre seriously, and you have penetrated the mystery of many contemporary novelists, no matter which of "the two insignificant methods in the most modern fiction," as Mr. Murray says, they use, "on the one hand, the presentation of a consciousness; on the other, the presentation of the vivid moments of a consciousness." The first recipe for a great novel of today is to take the right master, usually Russian. Dostoevsky read Walter Scott, we remember, in his prison, unknowing youth, and Victor Hugo and George Sand later. His romantic studies didn't affect his method. His genius for infinite pity, his sufferings, made the epileptic write those strange and powerful books. Sixty years ago Turgenev in "Fathers and Sons," with its portrait of Bazarrov, the Nihilist, held up the mirror to the Russian intellectuals of his own generation, and they misunderstood and fell upon him. The present day novelists, many of them, set down with wearisome detail one corner of chaos, subjective or objective, and it is everybody's duty to fall down and worship.

How can we or they be sure of the right "masters?" "For many years the novelist has believed that the nineteenth century was Flaubert and Turgenev; now it turns out to be Dostoevsky and Sandfair, Nietzsche, Dostoevsky, Tolstoi and Chekov, and heaven knows what in science besides." Most of us have supped full on these gentlemen. It is amusing to be informed by Mr. Murray that an article by Mr. Arnold Bennett in 1912 revealed to English novelists and critics that Thomas Hardy "was the only English novelist of a magnitude remotely comparable with that of the Russians." "The Return of the Native" was published three years before Mr. Murray was born. Critics and novelists of to-day are not very apt to discover any author not French or Russian who was influencing them to live before their time. Besides every day a contemporary "masterpiece" is thrust upon us.

Raleigh's Pipe.

The pipe which Sir Walter Raleigh smoked on the scaffold in 1618 is now in the private museum belonging to a London firm of tobacconists.

Mrs. Quiverfull—Forty years old, Mr. Singleton, and never been married? It's remarkable. But surely you have not given up hope?

Singleton—Oh, no, indeed. I hope I am safe for another forty years, anyway.

Former Prison Chaplain Tells About the Comedies He Found Among Convicts

For many year Rev. Benjamin Reed, rector of the Hertfordshire village of Datchworth, England, has made a hobby of collecting humorous stories and anecdotes. Some of the best of these had their origin in the days when Mr. Reed, as a young man, served as chaplain at a notorious convict establishment in Australia. He tells of an amusing conspiracy among the convicts to evade two clear days' work a week.

The superintendent of the settlement asked Mr. Reed whether he was aware that the Jews among the prisoners were carrying on an active propaganda, sampling in the interests of their faith. As proof of this, the superintendent explained that nearly every other man now stated himself to be a Jew, after having previously registered himself a member of the Church of England or a Roman Catholic.

Following the interview with the superintendent, Mr. Reed approached the chief warder on the question.

"What! You want to tell me that the Jews has been drawn by that wheeze?" said the warder, chuckling. "Why, that's an old plan—you can't make a Jew work on Saturday, and, of course, no one works on Sunday."

When a convict under his first appearance at the settlement, he was asked: "Are you Church of England, Presbyterian, Roman Catholic, or Jewish?"—these religions alone being represented in the penal establishments. If no replied to each in the negative, the superintendent invariably ordered him to be put down in Church for England.

Says Mr. Reed: "Every Christmas, every Easter, every Whitsun—and there were many of each—at first, every nondescript of strange nationality was registered as Church man, and my Sunday congregation of several hundreds was undoubtedly the most cosmopolitan in the world."

For thirty years Mr. Reed was vicar of a large parish in Lancashire. Soon after his arrival he was asked by a widow to sanction an inscription for her late husband's tombstone. The good woman, in making the request, handed Mr. Reed a slip of paper bearing the proposed line—

"Years cannot restore him, therefore I weep."

It was with the greatest difficulty that she was made to appreciate the need for a revision of the inscription.

A curate in an adjoining parish possessed the gift of ultra-brevity. Preaching on one occasion on the regeneration of mill hands and colliers and their womenfolk, he wound up an eloquent peroration with: "In fact, the Incarnation is the adequate realization of the impassioned yearning of the human heart."

The next morning the vicar said to a wizened collier, "Well, Ben, what do you think of what the curate said last evening about the Incarnation being the adequate realization," etc.

"Didn't 'ear a word, Parson," said Ah'm sure—but 'appen as tha might get it at the Co-op."

The following year was approaching, his home at a late hour one night when he came upon a drunken mill hand reclining at a dangerous angle against the vicarage wall. The parson leaned him severely, and attempted to raise him to a vertical position, his efforts meeting with the unrated comment: "You're a darned fool!"

Losing patience, the vicar retorted, warmly: "Well, I'd rather be a darned fool than turn myself into a pig like you!"

"Would tha, though?" was the reply. "Well, Ah wouldna—Ah'll be a'reet in t' morn, whereas tha'll be a darned fool as long as tha live!"

The Duck-Billed Platypus.

A fine male specimen of the duck-billed platypus, the chief zoological treasure of Australia, has recently been added to the collection of curiosities in the New York Zoological Gardens. The platypus is one-third bird and two-third mammal; it has a bill like a duck, and a long, furry tail. While the Australian platypus is so rare as to require new and special attention in America, its prototype, the duck-billed platypus Americanus, has long commanded the interest of psycho-zoologists. The Australian platypus feeds on anelweorms, very small shrimps, and weed-growth, his diet and that in which the variety Americanus feeds being much the same, metaphorically speaking. The scarcity of wood-grubs has caused the New York Zoo authorities to appeal to the public to aid in supplying them with sufficient to keep their pet alive.

Election Fights.

Long records in the House of Commons do not of necessity involve a very large vote of confidence. Gladstone, for example, spent 63 years in politics, and his elections totalled 25, 14 contested and 11 uncontested. Except that he has had a fair percentage of opponents it does not seem to incline to give the palm, among our statesmen of to-day, to the Earl Balfour, whose parliamentary service goes back to 1874, neither Mr. Lloyd George nor Mr. Asquith being able to equal him in the "tale of the years."

A Mavourneen Loan.

An Irishman sued another for a loan.

"It was a Kathleen Mavourneen loan, yer honor, an' Paddy Kane knew it was at the time he gave it to me," said the plaintiff.

"A Kathleen Mavourneen loan?" said the puzzled Judge. "What sort of a loan is that?"

"That's what we call one kind of a loan, yer honor, down in our part of the country. It may be for years and it may be forever."

Overheard at a directors' meeting: "While we are sitting here let us see how we stand on running expenses."

Visitor (admiringly)—What a picture of a progressive little wife is!

Mother—I hadn't noticed it. Dorothy, what have you been doing?

THESE SHIPS ARE GHOSTS.

They Are Supposed to Bring Bad Luck to Other Vessels.

Many years ago an American vessel, the Charles Haskell, ran down and sank a schooner off Newfoundland in 1869. Ever after that schooner haunted the Charles Haskell.

Though the crew of the latter vessel was changed four times, on every occasion that she put to sea she was followed by the spectre of the ship she had sunk. At last no one would sail on the Charles Haskell.

Another queer sea ghost is that of the Flying Dutchman which has often been seen in the Pacific Ocean, and sometimes in the South Atlantic. The vessels that see her are doomed.

In the sixteenth century a Dutch captain swore to bring his ship round Cape Horn in the teeth of a terrible gale. He said he would sail 'till Judgment Day to get round the Cape.

In vain the crew implored him to give up the rash idea. The mate interfered and was struck down and thrown overboard by the skipper.

Just at that moment a flash of lightning struck the ship, killed the captain, and sunk the vessel with all hands. But the vow of the captain held, and to-day she is still struggling to round Cape Horn in face of an awful gale.

All ships that have seen her agree on certain points. The Flying Dutchman is seen plunging and rolling, though the sea round about may be quite calm. A flash of lightning lights up the topmast, and her crew is seen rushing frantically about, in obedience to the orders of her choleric captain.

The east coast of England is haunted by the ghost of a large sailing ship of modern build. Her masts, rigging, sails and hull are enemisted with ice and she is seen ploughing a lonely way through ice-floes.

Spectres of the old-time buccaneers have been seen off Cornwall, but the strangest of all spectres is that which is seen off the east coast of Scotland.

This is the Black Lugger. Outwardly she is like the ordinary fishing craft, but her sails are black as night. She pursues her ghostly passage through the fleet, and her coming presages death or disaster.

Esquire.

The word "esquire" comes from two Latin words meaning "Shield Bearer."

Originally the esquire was the youth of "gentle" parentage who bore his knight's shield when the latter rode to battle. He was, as it were, a sort of apprentice to his master the knight.

With the end of the Middle Ages and the abolition of the actual shield-bearing, the title became definitely fixed, and only sons of peers, baronets and knights were, with a few exceptions, legally entitled to be called esquires.

Later the margin became further enlarged, and from time to time the holders of certain positions were officially recognized as esquires, university graduates, with a good many others, are legally esquires — that is, members of an officially recognized social rank.

Gradually however many others acquired the title by custom. The principal landowner of a village would be called an esquire—or squire —and so new classes of professional men sprang up, they, too, took a sort of honorary unofficial rank as esquire. Nowadays all professional men and most of those who are not actual manual workers are addressed as "esquire" as a mere courtesy.

Famous Authors' Schooldays.

Mr. Rudyard Kipling was in the habit of selling his old school books to a dame who kept a curiosity shop at Bideford. In recent years many people have visited the shop, hoping to pick up a volume with an early composition of the great man scrawled in the margin. They have been disgusted to hear that the old dame rubbed out everything of the kind.

"No," she said, on one occasion, "Master Kipling was always fair to me, and he may have written things not so good as those he has sold here, but I won't [illegible] to have them poking fun at him." Which showed the popularity Mr. Kipling enjoyed in his schooldays.

Another great writer, Sir James Barrie, has a good story to tell of his young days. It was at the time of his first success, and an old townswoman of Kirriemuir, Barrie's native place, was asked what she thought of it.

"Weel," she replied, cautiously, "it's a gude thing the laddie can mak something at his writin'; he could never have made a leevin' at the mills!"

Sheffield Plate.

"Sheffield Plate" was originally a sheet of copper to which a silver plate was fused on each side, and took its name from the English town where it was made. Electro-plating having superseded the fusing process, the trade used the term, recklessly, even applying it to thin-coated hollow ware. A recent conference of manufacturers resumed the practice and defined the word as meaning "an article well plated on a base metal of nickel silver of not less than ten per cent. nickel content." The manufacturers agreed to abide by that definition.

Giant Bamboo.

The giant bamboo of India blossoms at the age of thirty years and then dies. It produces large numbers of seeds which the natives gather for food if they can live until the crop matures.

Corpuscle.

Lecturer (in a small town): "Of course, you all know what the —— of a corpuscle is like."

Chairman of meeting (interrupting): "Most of us do, but you had better explain it for the benefit of them as have never been inside one."

An Oil Without Alcohol.—Some oils and many medicines have alcohol as a prominent ingredient. A judicious mingling of six essential oils compose Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and there is no alcohol in it, so that its effects are lasting.

The Oil of Power.—It is not claimed for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil that it will remedy every ill, but its uses are so various that it may be looked upon as a general pain killer. It has received that greatness for itself and its excellence is known to all who have tested its virtues and learned by experience.

Asthma Cannot Last when the greatest of all asthma specifics is used. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy assuredly deserves this exalted title. It has to its credit thousands of cases which other preparations had failed to benefit. It brings help to even the most severe cases and brings the patient to a condition of blessed relief. Surely suffering from asthma is needless when a remedy like this is so easily secured.

So the golf players at Franklin Park must in future pay a fee of $10 a season. Golf is getting expensiver and expensiver. We are reminded, by the way, of something we overheard recently. "Don't you think golf is rather expensive?" asked Ed A.

"Children admitted to front seats if accompanied by parent or guardian. These may be had at shops in the village."

Peculiarly enough, in one of the shops another large window ticket says, "Families, Supplied".

INFORMATION FOR SPORTSMEN.

Changes in the Regulations under the Migratory Birds Convention Act affecting the shooting of migratory game birds in certain provinces have recently been authorized by Order in Council.

Under the Order a further closed season throughout the Dominion has been provided for Wood Duck, extending until January 1st, 1924. A similar closed season has been provided for Eider Ducks, except that Eider may be shot in the Yukon and Northwest Territories during the regular open season provided for ducks in those localities.

The open seasons provided by the Regulations under the Migratory Birds Convention Act for the season 1923-1924 for Ontario and Quebec are as follows:—

Ducks, Geese, Brant and Rails.

In Quebec: September 1st to December 14th, both dates inclusive.

Shorebirds or Waders, including only the following: Woodcock, Wilson or Jack Snipe, Black-bellied and Golden Plovers and the Greater and Lesser Yellowlegs.

In Quebec: September 1st to December 14th, both dates inclusive.

In Ontario: September 1st to December 15th, both dates inclusive, except that on Woodcock the open season shall be from September 15th to October 15th, both dates inclusive.

Eattoning the Sow.

Rationing the sow is the surest way to forestall trouble. Overfeeding at farrowing time makes her feverish and nervous; more likely to trample her offspring and less able, often, to secrete milk properly.

Don't feed the sow at all during the twenty-four hours before farrowing, and during the week prior to that keep corn out of the ration. Corn is an especially heating feed. Instead, feed ground oats, barley or bran, any one or two of these, or all three if you like.

And don't feed the sow at all for from twelve to eighteen hours after farrowing. After that, even, go slow, taking from a week to ten days to get the animal back on full feed.

Sore mouth in young pigs is one of the troublesome conditions which arise from faulty feeding of the mother. Never is importance to rationing comes condition of the pen. Clean, dry pens do much to prevent digestive disorders and rheumatism in both the sow and the pigs.

Warts on Horses.

Warts are very difficult to eradicate, especially situated near the mouth or eyes. The exact cause of such growths is unknown, but no doubt indicates abnormal nutrition of the affected skin. Irritation of the skin may be a contributory cause. The warts with small necks can be twisted off or hacked with a silk thread, when they will drop off. Masses of small warts will disappear in time if smothered daily with a thick paste of equal quantities of cold-pressed castor oil, salt and flowers of sulphur.

THEY TELL THEIR NEIGHBORS

Women Tell Each Other How They Were Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Woodbridge, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles. I would have backaches, backaches, pains between my shoulders and under my shoulder blades and cramping down feelings in each side. I was sometimes unable to do my work and felt very bodily. My mother-in-law told me about the Vegetable Compound and I got some right away. It has done me more good than any other medicine I ever took and I recommend it to my neighbors. You are quite welcome to use this letter as a testimonial if you think it will help some poor sufferer."—Mrs. EDGAR SIMMONS, R. R. 2, Woodbridge, Ont.

In nearly every neighborhood in every town and city in the country there are women who have been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the treatment of ailments peculiar to their sex, and they take pleasure in passing the good word along to other women. Therefore, if you are troubled in this way, why not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from roots and herbs, has for forty years proved its value in such cases. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. G

TEST YOUR SEED CORN

It Is More Uncertain Than That of Cereals.

Seed Tests Will Repay Corn Growers —The Sawdust Germination Box Method — Allow Eight or Ten Days for Germination—A Ute for Old Fruit Jar Rubbers.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Without good seed satisfactory crop production is impossible. Good crops of wheat, oats, and barley are grown each year without a seed test before seeding. "Why can we not get the same condition in corn?" is frequently asked. Corn is different in many ways from the cereals mentioned, and we cannot expect the high germination common to well ripened before harvest grains. Corn ripens later in the season when damp days and nights are common. The grain is attached to an open pithy cob that is frequently slower in drying out than the grain is in ripening. The corn grain contains a large percentage of oil, and the grain oils are also noted as preservatives if subjected to many changes. The corn germ is not as well protected by coverings as is the germ in the other farm grains. The fact that wheat, oats and barley can generally be sown without a test and relied on to germinate has led many farmers to believe that the same holds good for corn, and they hesitate to do the necessary careful work and prove to themselves the dependableness of the seed corn before planting.

Seed Tests Will Repay Corn Growers.

A few hours devoted to corn testing during the slack season in February or March will frequently prove of greater value in providing corn with which to fill the corn crib the next autumn than many days of hard work in the field during the season of growth. With the seed carefully tested, and proven capable of producing strong vigorous plants, the risk is removed from the most important of all the factors involved in corn-growing. Various methods of making a germination test have been devised, and different measures of success in operation obtained. The elimination that follows experience has caused a discard of many methods and centered on the usefulness and simplicity of the Sawdust Corn Germination Box.

The Sawdust Germination Box.

This method requires a minimum of attention, it is easy to prepare, and it is sure. The box used as a container for the sawdust can be of any convenient size, easy to handle or store in. Boxes 20 x 30 inches and 5 inches deep are very satisfactory and are large enough to test the seed corn required to plant five or six acres. The seed bed is prepared as follows: Pack moist sawdust to the depth of three inches in the box (old or dry sawdust, hardwood sawdust is to be desired). Mark off in squares 2½ x 2½ inches with pencil a piece of cotton sheeting, checkerboard fashion, number the squares. Lay this sheet over the sawdust, press down and moisten. Take six grains of corn from the ears to be tested, five from near the butt, two from the center and two from near the tip, and place these in each square, number the ear to correspond with the number of the square in which the six grains are placed. Using a piece of cotton of the same dimension as the box, lay it over the seed and press down gently, do not disturb the corn in the numbered spaces. Take a second cloth large enough to fold both ways or about twice the size of the box; lay this largest cloth over the box in such a way that it extends all around, cover the box area with warm, moist sawdust, piling directly on the last applied large cloth, pack the sawdust down well, by treading or stamping with a brick or heavy block of wood. This layer of sawdust should be two inches thick when firmed. Fold the extending portions of the cloth over the sawdust forming as it were a large pillow pad.

Allow Eight or Ten Days for Results.

When this has been done, the box or boxes should be set away in a stable or room where the temperature is always above freezing and generally maintained at 60 to 70 degrees. If nice should cover the box with a wire screen. After eight or ten days examine the germination for results, lift off the sawdust pad and then very carefully roll back the cloth that is in direct contact with the corn. Take note of the germination of the kernels in each numbered square, and save or discard according to the strength of germination. Every ear that has given dead, mouldy or weak germinating kernels should be thrown into the feed bin, and only those showing great vigor and freedom from mould should be used. At the end of ten days the sprout and roots should be at least two inches long. The box, sawdust and cloth should not be used a second time without thorough scalding; this is done to destroy fungus spores that may be present. The outside two inches of space should not be used, as it may dry out and check the germination of the seed placed near the edge of the box.—L. Stevenson, Sec., Dept. of Agriculture.

Use for Old Fruit Jar Rubbers.

Old fruit jar rubbers came in handily last winter when the snow was on the ground. My boy stepped on an axe and cut a big gash in his rubber. I melted a fruit jar rubber to the consistency of wax, poured it into the gash and stuck it back in place. When it became cold the rubber was as good as new.

No Time Was Lost In This Case

Mrs. Luckhurst Quickly Discovered That Dreco Possessed Remarkable Health-giving Qualities.

Every woman should read the following statement from Mrs. J. Luckhurst, of 265 Dufie Street, Toronto, Ont. It portrays convincingly the true merit of Dreco, especially emphasizing the quickness of its beneficial action.

"For several years I have suffered from indigestion," says Mrs. Luckhurst. "I had gas on the stomach, acid risings and smothering spells. The pains were very severe across my back and I felt tired out all the time. My liver was sluggish and I was chronically constipated. Had constantly to take a laxative, which gave me only temporary relief. I didn't rest well and my appetite was very poor. The food I did eat gave me no nourishment because it was not properly digested.

"No remedy ever gave me the amount of good results that Dreco has and I have only taken a half bottle. I had only taken a few doses when I could feel the difference and it seems to act so differently from any other medicine. It has gone to the root of my troubles I am sure, and I feel positive that by continuing the treatment I will get real good results. I haven't been having these terrible bloating spells and shortness of breath, nor have I any pains through my limbs and back. I eat well and sleep soundly and am indeed happy that I can recommend Dreco."

Dreco acts quickly and with sure helpful results, because it is made from Nature's own remedies.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Napanee by Wallace & Co., and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

Stop ! Look ! Listen !

Who said the Wilton Imps were dead? The Strathcona Orioles? Wilton and Strathcona played their second league game at Wilton, August 11th, the score being 24-20, in favour of the Imps. The Orioles were ten in the lead in the first half of the game, but the little Imps certainly walked over them in the last half. The Orioles' motto is "Follow us". That is what we are doing, only "two steps ahead". We must contradict our friends, the Birds, in their misstatement in their number of years of playing and being beaten before, as this is only our third year (not our fourth), and we must say, Camden East had the honor of being the first to beat the Imps, which happened two years ago, (not Strathcona). The line-up :—

Imps—H. Frink, c.; H. Asselstine, p.; D. Neilson, 3b.; I. Burt, 2b.; L. Peters, 3b.; A. Babcock, s.s.; E. Emberley, s.s.; R. Newman, l.f.; L. Babcock, r.f.

Orioles—J. Finlay, c.; M. Toner, p.; E. Toner, 1b.; M. McGuire, 2b.; B. Grogan, 3b.; L. McGuire, s.s.; C. Murphy, c.f.; C. Sweet, l.f.; B. McGuire, r.f.

SYDENHAM DEFEATS NAPANEE IN O.B.A.A. SEMI-FINAL.

Sydenham defeated Napanee in both games of the O. B. A. A. semi-finals, and have earned the right to meet the winners of the Kingston-Picton series.

The first game was played at Sydenham on Friday afternoon last, the home team winning by a score of 20-9. Ten errors at Sydenham and seven here clears up the mystery of the double defeat. H. Johnston, at short stop, contributed six in Sydenham, all being very costly. The Stewart brothers added five here, several runs being made after Jack's fumble at third, when the third out was forced and all he had to do was touch the bag.

The Game at Sydenham.

Without going into details of a weird exhibition, we print the box score, which tells the tale :

Pictorial Review for September, 15c.

MRS. A. M. DICKINSON WILL BE MOURNED.

After a long illness, with nearly a year's confinement in bed, which she bore with the utmost patience and courage, Joanna Neld Dickson, wife of Albert M. Dickinson, passed away at 8.20 o'clock Monday morning, Aug. 6th, at her home, 7 Prospect Street.

She was in all her devotions, particularly with her children, humble and self-sacrificing, taking her rewards in quiet gratitude. A splendid, high sincerity and keen understanding, with the strong, quiet spirit of an old type of womanhood, were qualities for which those who knew her best, loved and admired her. Devoted to reading, her mind had a clarity that to the end was pure and stalwart, a clarity that seems now to surpass her life on earth.

Mrs. Dickinson was born in Belleville, Canada, daughter of the late George Dickson and Letitia Martin Dickson. She was a home-loving woman, devoted to her family. She was a member of the Central M. E. Church and a sincere and confident Christian.

Besides her husband, to mourn her loss, she leaves three daughters, Miss Alberta J. Dickinson and Miss Dorothy A. Dickinson, of Utica, and Mrs. Nelson H. Henderson, of Syracuse; also two little granddaughters, Mary Lima and Jean Letitia. George Fred Dickson, of Little York, Ill.; Robert James Dickson and John W. Dickson, of Stillsville, Ontario, are brothers.

The funeral will be held privately from her late residence, at 10.30 Wednesday, and interment will be made in the family plot in New Forest cemetery,—Utica Observer-Dispatch, Aug. 6th, 1923.

ANDERSON JUBILEE ANNIVERSARY.

Great preparations have been made for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of this time-honored church. The people, who have ever been loyal to their church, decided that their house of worship should be re-decorated and made a place of beauty and attraction, such as the House of God should ever be.

Thanks, a thousand times, to the Ladies' Aid, under the resourceful leadership of Mrs. J. Card, a large proportion of the funds were raised, and at a duly constituted meeting of the Trustee Board, the contract was placed in Mr. E. R. McCabe's hands, of Napanee, to carry out this work.

The opinion of all, after careful survey, was unanimous, that Mr. McCabe had done a very creditable job indeed, who had by the skilful blending of colours, changed the appearance of the interior to a very bright and pleasing aspect.

The work being done, Sunday last was the day set apart for the re-opening of the church.

The Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson, now of Belleville, who was the special preacher, informed his audience in the morning that seventy-four years ago he was born in the vicinity of this church and outlined the unique place the church occupies in the history and development of Methodism in Canada.

He referred very touchingly to the officials of this church and their self-sacrificing devotion to the work of God for the past fifty years. He appealed to those present to do as much for their own and the rising generation about them, as others had done for them. The subject introduced was Service and Sacrifice and every word of the preacher seemed to catch on for everybody went away feeling that obligation was upon them to keep unsullied the banner handed down to them, and to pass it on with all the spirit of sacred challenge that was meant by it.

The evening service was, of course, the climax to a real good day. The Dr. spoke to a very large audience on "Love". Everything in his message made the service a great success.

On the Tuesday following, an old-fashion supper was provided and was served from 6 to 8 o'clock, to an ever coming crowd of people. The tables were generously loaded with a varied supply of good things and everybody was in good trim to fall in.

At a few minutes past eight the entertainment was started, when Mr. Weiss led off with a beautiful solo, which he rendered in very fine form. Mrs. (Dr.) Wilson gave some of her famous violin selections, which appealed to the audience in a marked degree.

Trio selections were rendered by Mrs. C. and Mr. C. Black and Mr. B. Black, which, of course, were greeted very enthusiastically.

Interspersed between the foregoing were a number of popular items by Mr. Ralph Gordon, of Toronto. Mr. Gordon is a very clever cartoonist and gave great satisfaction in each number, to the people. Thus came to an end one of the most delightful festivals ever held in the history of this church. It is impossible to exhaust the meaning of the word "credit" when applied to the people of this church, for as in the days of Nehemiah of old so can it be said of the Anderson people, they had a mind to work.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Bell and Clayton.—We, your friends and neighbours have met here to-night to bid you farewell prior to your departure to your new home near Bath.

Even though a shade of sorrow should come into our hearts at the thought of losing you from our midst, still we are indeed glad that you will always be near us, but that we may sometimes have the joy of a visit in your new home, and you may always be sure of a warm welcome in our homes. We feel that although your removal from this, your old home, is a loss to us, it will be a gain to those in and near your new home. OBITUARY.

Andrew Russel.

We regret to announce the sudden death of William Andrew Russel, who passed peacefully away on August 8th, in Camden, at the age of 67 years and 4 months. He had been ailing for some time but had only kept his bed for eight days, heart trouble being the disease. All medical aid and faithful nursing proved of no avail.

The deceased was a kind and obliging neighbour, beloved by all who knew him, was honest and upright in all his dealings, and will be greatly missed in this vicinity as a friend and neighbour, as he was ever ready and willing to lend a helping hand in time of need.

In religion he was a Presbyterian. The funeral service was held at his home, and the remains were laid to rest in the family plot at Camden V. cemetery. He leaves to mourn his loss, one sister, Mrs. Joan Rook, of Napanee.

Mrs. John Finn.

A gloom was cast over the community when the news spread that Mrs. John Finn had passed away at the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, on Sunday, August 19th. Mrs. Finn was removed to the Hotel Dieu on Thursday night, suffering from appendicitis. Owing to her serious condition an immediate operation was found necessary. She stood her operation well, but on Saturday pneumonia set in, and on Sunday her spirit fled to be with her Jesus. She leaves her aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cade, Bath; her husband, Bath; four children, John, Walter, and twin daughters, Dora and Dorothy, scarce two years of age, living near Bath; two sisters, Mrs. Ella Thompson, Bath, and Mrs. Luke Godfrey, Arden, and two brothers, William and Stanley. In religion she was a staunch Methodist, a noble friend and loving wife and mother. Here is a loss hard to realize, a small family left motherless, and a host of friends left mourning a kind neighbor and friend. She was born at Tamworth 39 years ago. Her marriage to John Finn took place at Watertown, twenty-one years ago. It may well be said of her, "Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep, from which none ever wakes to weep."

School re-opens next week. You will need School Boots for the children. Let us show you the good kind, at Wilson's Shoe Store. 32a

No Headache

WITH THE 1st NAPANEE TROOP.

The Big Chief was one of the first to be awakened by Old Sol, and looking around saw the majority of the boys still sound asleep, tired from their Sunday's experiences. The bugle was blown and most of the boys got right up. But some sure hated to get out of the blankets. One boy had to have the bugle blown about three feet from him before he came to life,—he sure is some sleeper any time.

As all the boys knew that the Chief was taking them to old Fort Henry, they hurried, and blankets were folded first, then breakfast was eaten, and after roll call the truck was loaded and taken nearer to town, as we did not intend to climb the Heights again for some time.

We lined up on the road leading to the Fort, and headed by the bugle band, the 1st Napanee Troop took full possession of the Fort.

The first thing of interest we saw was on our way up to the Fort,—the old stockade, which was built years ago, to be used in case the city was besieged, by Indians or hostile troops. At that time it would hold the members of the city, but it is doubtful if it would now. Passing this we went up the steep hill, passed over a bridge that one time could be lowered down to cut off the enemy if they were by any chance pursuing our own troops. To the right of this bridge, dried up the water, was a high tower with a cannon on the top. This tower was connected to the main Fort by a very, very deep and wide moat.. It is also believed that this tower connected with Fort Frederick that we saw the day before.

This tower to look at would make one wonder of what importance it is to the Fort. The part this tower could have played in the old days was such that if the enemy did succeed in driving our own troops back to the bridge and over it to the Fort, this cannon could be swung around and brought into action upon the attacking enemy, firing into their right from the flank. This would cause heavy losses to the enemy, and at the same time save the bridge.

Over the bridge the troop went up to the entrance of the Fort. Here they saw huge doors, which were well bolted and very thick. The keeper, Mr. McIntosh, welcomed the boys, and when the Chief handed him the pass for the Fort, he at once got his lantern and started to show the boys the sights.

Passing from this first section of the Fort we passed through another gate which was balanced in such a manner that any one of the boys could handle it. From this gate we could see the North, West and Eastern buildings, which surround any large fort. These buildings are built inside of the moat, all facing the main court or drill ground. We were able to see only the three walls standing, as the south wall has been demolished.

From this gate Mr. McIntosh took us to the centre of the court and showed us many walls all around the court. These were to be used by the inmates when the enemy were shelling the Fort. The water could be let out of these walls and the people take shelter in them. After the shelling ceased the walls were filled up again.

Proceeding on, Mr. McIntosh took us to the various rooms the German prisoners were kept in during the recent war. The last room proved to be a very interesting one, for from this room an attempt was made to escape. This room was right over a secret passage which led to the outer fort, by going under the moat. Before the German prisoners were brought to the Fort all such passages were sealed up by brick or cement, so that they would have no chance to escape.

The room the Huns were in directly over this passage, must have contained some real spys, for upon tapping the floor, which was of stone, they discovered that on the East side of the room, the floor gave all signs of a passage underneath. So this likely roused a meeting, and soon work was begun. It wasn't long before they were through the floor. An innocent looking box near one of the beds in the corner covered the hole they were making. Getting into the passage, which was level with the court yard, they found a foot and a half brick wall which they had to go through. This was accomplished by a nail and stone. Getting through this wall they had to go down several stone steps, and there they found the passage was sealed by cement. They started to work for they knew that through this wall meant freedom, for it went under the moat to the outer fort. Two men worked at one time. They started to chop away the cement, trying to make just room enough to crawl through. Although having cloth on the heads of the nails, they only succeeded in cutting a strip out about eight inches long, one inch wide and one inch deep. They were discovered by the stable man above them. He heard the tap, tap, tap of the nail and stone. They were brought up and placed into the dungeon for several days, living on bread and water.

Now that this tale was finished, all were anxious to see the dark room. So to it we were taken, and was it dark? The keeper closed the door on us and you couldn't see one thing. Also we saw the one cup they had to drink out of. Then to a small room where all were given a group shot as a souvenir of their trip. In this room we saw many things that we saw in Fort Frederick.

We went down the moat to a small bridge, entering the outer wall by crawling through a window which had swinging iron bars attached on the inside. In this place we discovered a room about fifteen feet square, each side having a door which entered to the next room. Only about six rooms were connected like this. From each of these rooms a cannon was able to be placed into such a position to protect the moat in case the enemy got over the outer walls. The passage the Huns were trying to get through would have led them to this very room we were in.

Coming out of this room we went with Mr. McIntosh to the main gate and watched him fire the twelve o'clock gun. This being over we went again into the Fort, and up on the top of the walls, seeing several old time cannons dating away back to 1796 and 1812-37.

After our walk around the walls we lined up in front of the main entrance and gave Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh three rousing cheers for their kindness. We marched back to our truck, going then to Macdonald's Park for dinner.

After dinner the boys were given the afternoon off to shop and go to the show. The Woolworth Store had a raid that afternoon.

The troop formed up at 5, p.m., in front of the postoffice, and giving Scoutmaster Hall three rousing cheers we marched along Wellington to Princess and up to where the truck was. Getting on board the old truck we started our homeward journey, stopping at Odessa for supper. After supper we started our last lap home. Running out of gas about four miles from town, it delayed us for some time.

We arrived at Springside Park about 9.45 p.m., tired, but a happy bunch, and all were soon under cover in their tents.

Starting soon our experiences at Thompson's Point.

THE "ORIGINALS" IN "RAPID FIRE".

Canada's premiere and world famous theatrical Company, now known as the "Originals", and which created a sensation in every city from coast to coast for the past four years will again delight their thousands of admirers here with a brand new and entirely different revue of surprises at the Grand Opera House, Kingston, on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 7th and 8th, with special Matinee Saturday, at 2.30 sharp.

"Rapid Fire" is the title of their latest and greatest offering which includes fifteen former artists of the cast of "Biff, Bing, Bang", the "Dumbells Revue of 1922", and the entire cast of "Full O' Pep", with such old favorites as "Red" Newman, Arthur (Jock) Holland, Jimmie Goode, Alan Murray, Charlie McLean, Bill Tennent, Tom Young, Bertram Langley, Ted Charter, Bob Anderson, Fred Fenwick, Jerry Brayford, Ivor Ayre, Percy Campbell and Leonard Young. A new and highly talented female impersonator, Gene Pearson, is with the Company this season.

Among the scores of brand new surprises, to say nothing of the many new and unique scenic and lighting effects, may be mentioned a rollicking Mountie number written specially for Arthur Holland and the chorus, entitled "Mommy of the Mounties", the bright costumes and dazzling electrical effects in this number are particularly beautiful. A spectacular Oriental number in which the entire Company takes part is something entirely different from anything of its kind ever seen in Canada before. "Rapid Fire" is bigger and better than the previous shows, and more beautiful and peppier than "Full O' Pep".

CARE FOR THE BINDER

Proper Attention Is Both Necessary and Profitable.

See That the Reel is Properly Adjusted—Study the Length of the Grain—Keep a Watch on the Knotter—Don't Forget the Oiling.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The grain binder or modern harvester is a complicated machine with many moving parts, requiring careful adjustment and constant care if it is to give the best service and last. Perfect sheaf or bundle making begins with the delivery of the standing grain to the knife and platform. In this the reel plays an important part; if properly adjusted for height and distance forward, the grain will fall evenly and will be carried in like condition to the packers and binding attachment. With the reel improperly adjusted, the grain may fall forward or it may be scattered on the platform. Once scattered, it is impossible for the conveyors or packers to straighten it out, to the degree necessary for perfect sheaves. Careful watch should, therefore, be kept on the reel and adjustment made while the machine is in motion to meet the conditions caused by lack of uniformity in the crop. The grain passing from the conveyors or elevator is next adjusted by the butting attachment and the packers.

Meeting the Needs of Long or Short Grain.

The binder table or the butting attachment can be shifted to meet the needs of long or short grain, and the binder operator must be alert to the making of the necessary adjustments or the bundles will not be of a desirable shape and tightness. The binding attachment with its twine box needle and knotter will give highly efficient service if given reasonable attention by way of oiling and proper adjustment. The binding attachment parts rust very easily during periods of idleness, so liberal applications of a heavy mineral oil or grease to all parts not protected by paint will save the machines, will save time, labor, and temper. Rust can be removed by sandpaper, but harvesting machines were never intended for such treatment. The wooden slats that form an important part of the canvas conveyors will sometimes tear loose. This is caused by the frame and rollers not being in proper alignment or square. This difficulty is overcome by adjusting the cross braces of the frame until it is square and the rollers in alignment.

The Transmission of Power.

The power for operating the various parts of the grain binder is transmitted by chain and sprocket, the various units being provided with tighteners. If the various chains are not run at proper tension, trouble will follow. If too tight the links will break, or if draft will be heavy. If too loose the machine will be driven with a jerky motion, the chains are just slack enough so each can not be taken off by hand when the machine is not running, they will usually be satisfactory, warm in motion. Chain links and sprockets should be well oiled at all points of contact. Missing sprocks or failure to tie the bundle is a common trouble, usually due to the operator's failure to make the adjustments necessary to give full efficiency to the tying mechanism. If the needle fails to carry the twine far enough over that it may be grasped by the twine disc, a knot will not be tied, since but one end is held. This condition is generally easily recognized by the twine being knotted in a loop at one end, the other end being free. When the twine disc is held on tight by the clamp and spring, it will in turn hold the twine as tight as to pinch it off and cause a failure to tie. This condition is generally indicated by one end of the band being frayed. The loosening of the spring that holds the twine disc will remedy this fault. If the twine disc is loosened too much, the knot can not be tied, this condition is generally indicated by both ends of the twine band being frayed.

Keep a Careful Eye on the Knotter.

Another cause of failure to tie is often found in the knotter spring which holds the finger down upon the knotter hook being so loose as not to hold the ends of the twine while the knot is pulled over the billhook, resulting in a band with clean cut ends but no knot. Lack of adjustment through wear or lack of adjustment through shaking loose of the bolt, holding the twine cutting knife, causing the severing of the twine before the knotter finger or billhook has closed over it. A bent rusty needle or shaft, or needle, billhook, twine disc or twine runs will cause no end of trouble early in the harvest through loose, untied or rifled sheaves.

Pay Attention to Oiling.

Oiling the grain binder takes considerable time with fifty or more oil holes to keep clear and supplied with oil. There are bearing surfaces other than oil holes that must receive attention also, such as the reel standard, various chains and sprockets, sliding parts of the binding attachment and the bundle carrier. All bearings subject to heavy friction and speed should be oiled every hour if the binder is run as long as a binder should. Every bearing should receive lubrication at least twice a day no matter how little the work the bearing does. The main drive bearings, the pitman, and the knott binding attachment require the closest attention.—I. Stevenson, Sec., Dept. of Agriculture.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. John Deline.

Nancy M. Denison, wife of John Deline, is dead. It did not take long for the sad news to circulate all over the northern portion of Richmond Township, and universal and heartfelt regret was expressed that one so popular and useful should be cut down in the prime of life. Practically her whole life was spent in this community and she was highly esteemed by all, who had the privilege of an acquaintanceship; of a kindly, cheerful disposition, ever ready to help others, a good neighbour, and faithful in the performance of the arduous duties of home life.

About two years ago indications of disease appeared, but a fatal termination of her illness was not anticipated. Recently her sufferings were intense and on the advice of her physician she entered Hotel Dieu, Kingston, for treatment. An operation was performed on July 26th, and another on July 30th. For a few hours after the second operation increasing weakness ensued until death brought relief. She was conscious during the fateful hours and conversed with the persons around her bedside. There was no fear of death before her eyes for she had freely confessed her faith in Christ as her Saviour.

She was a daughter of George and the late Mary Ellen Denison, and was born in Richmond Township on February 3rd, 1875, thus having attained the age of 48 years and 5 months. The more immediate sorrowing relatives are her father and only brother, Theodore, of Marlbank; her husband, and five children, Ray W.; Carmaleta, wife of W. J. McFarland, and Beldrom, aged 14 years. The funeral service was conducted by her Pastor, Rev. C. J. Wilson, on Thursday, August 2nd. After a service at the family residence on the 9th Concession of Richmond, a large funeral procession was formed, proceeding to Roblin Methodist Church, where a capacity congregation listened to an appropriate sermon from Luke 12:40, and well rendered selections by the choir in perfect accord with the theme and the occasion. The interment in Roblin cemetery followed, and was witnessed by a large crowd of sympathetic friends.

WORKING THE MOWER

Practical Instructions on Runing This Useful Mach'ne.

Give the Cutting Bar and Steel Plate Attention—Keep the Knife Sharp —Go Over the Machine Daily— Returns From Bees.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

This machine has given splendid service to the farmers of the past and present generations. Fifty years ago the mower was a perfected machine, and the improvements since that date have not been of a revolutionary nature.

Watch the Cutting Bar.

This machine is subjected to a number of abuses, traceable to the carelessness of the average farm hand, lack of attention in oiling, dull ledger plates and knife operated over rough or stony ground. With the knife running close to the soil surface, injury from contact with gravel, sand and small stones is frequent. The watchfulness of the operator to avoid subjecting the cutter bar to injury is the best protection when the mower is in use on rough ground. The cutter bar with its numerous guards can be elevated or tilted quickly by an experienced operator and obstructions avoided. The guards should be kept tight and in perfect alignment.

Give the Steel Plate Attention.

The small steel plate that is rivet ed to the guard at the point where the knife edge performs the scissor movement should be kept sharp or at least not permitted to wear round. These plates, commonly known as ledger plates, become dull with use, a condition that greatly reduces the efficiency of the mower and increases the draft. A mower with dull or rounded ledger plates will stick in heavy cutting or damp grass. A sharp knife and sharp edged ledger plates means light draft for the team and clean, free cutting of the crop.

The Knife Must Be Kept Sharp.

Too much attention cannot be given to the cutter bar with its attached guards and quick moving knife. If the mower sticks at every mouse-nest or tuft of grass, the place to look for the trouble is in the dull knife, the ledger plates, the wood guards, or the keepers that hold the knife down in place. With the new mower it will be noted that the cutting edges are sharp, that there is but little play for the knife other than as intended. In the past too little attention has been given to keeping the ledger plates sharp. With these dull, no matter how good the knife is, tough material will be drawn beneath the knife instead of being cut, forcing the blade up against the guard causing wear that gives a loose fitting knife, poor work and greatly increased draft.

Why the New Mower Cuts Best.

The experience of all is that the mower cuts better the first season than ever after. This experience is largely due to the fact that too little attention is paid to the parts that are responsible for the cutting. The wear on the section points of the mower knife is greatest near the point. This wear, together with the grinding necessary to keep the knife sharp, changes the shape of the section considerably, and in such a way as to reduce its efficiency as a cutting implement. The man doing the grinding should endeavor to keep the original shape of the section in so far as possible. Many of the emery grinders used in sharpening mower knives grind away the points of the section to a serious extent without doing very much sharpening. A specially shaped emery or carborundum stone or file should be used and the work done in the farm shop. A spare knife should always be at hand in the field.

Go Over the Machine Daily.

The mower should be gone over carefully twice each day and all bolts tightened. The main bearings should be oiled at least once each hour, and the pitman bearings at least every half hour. When the mower is not in use the knife should be removed. The cutter bar should be elevated to the vertical position when the machine is not in use. A little heavy mineral oil should be brushed over all parts that are likely to rust. Don't use paint oils. The mower, like the binder, to give its best service, should be given good care.—L. Stevenson Sec., Dept. of Agriculture.

Returns From Bees.

Good returns are obtained from keeping bees in Canada, the conditions in many parts of the country being particularly favorable for honey production. Yet much uncertainty exists, and misconceptions have arisen as to the returns to be expected. One sometimes hears that a colony of bees has produced in one season four or five hundred pounds of honey. Such yields, however, are exceptional, and are the result of a combination of fortunate circumstances, abundant flowers of alsike and white clover, brewood, or other important honey plants, a particularly industrious colony, a well trained and experienced beekeeper, and, above all, favorable weather. They cannot be obtained from every hive, nor can they be repeated year after year. Sometimes a year of failure follows a year of plenty.

To give reliable figures it is necessary to average the returns from the colonies in the apiary for a number of years. The latest figures show that the average annual yield of honey has varied from 18 pounds per colony in the least profitable apiary to 132 pounds per colony in the most profitable apiary. The average annual production for all the apiaries was 63 pounds per colony, which is high enough to make a satisfactory profit. These figures indicate the importance of good management, the returns of only 18 pounds having been due to inexperience.

The butcher suggested a saddle of mutton.

"Saddle?" said the man who was doing the marketing for his wife. "No, make it a bridle; I'll stand a better chance of getting a bit in my mouth."

Cleopatra's Beauty Secret

Cleopatra knew that to have a fresh fine skin, thorough cleansing was necessary. She knew that the gentlest means must be employed. She used Palm and Olive oils.

The crude combination of these oils which was the best even royalty could command, is today brought to perfection in Palmolive.

Every girl can have the radiant healthy skin which is the foundation of all beauty. Intelligent care is the secret — thorough cleansing the basis.

Unless thoroughly cleansed with soap and water, the skin becomes sluggish and inactive. The tiny pores clog with dirt, oil secretions, perspiration, rouge and powder, and blackheads and other blemishes result.

A pure mild soap causes no irritation.

Women who fear it have been using the wrong soap.

Palmolive, with its creamy mild lather is lotion-like in its action. It soothes while it cleanses. It freshens, revives and stimulates and leaves the skin delightfully fresh and rosy.

You can buy Palmolive Soap at all first-class dealers.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. M. Johnston, who died August 22nd, 1922.

The month of August again is here,
The saddest one of all the year;
Just one year ago to-day
Our dear mother passed away.
Forget her, no, we never will,
For in our hearts she liveth still;
We miss a mother, kind and true,
We miss her voice, her smiling face,
No one can fill a mother's place.
Sadly missed by daughters and son.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Archie Hartwick, age 27, who passed away Sept. 1st, 1922.

Just when his day was bright,
Just when his day was best,
He was called from a world of sorrow,
Unto eternal rest.
We do not know the pain he bore,
We could not see him die;
We only know he passed away,
And could not say good-bye.
—From his Mother and Father,
Sisters and Brothers.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Allan Stewart, who was accidentally drowned at Camden East, on Friday, September 1st, 1922.

Just when the days seemed brightest,
Just when his hopes were best,
God called him home to Heaven,
To sweet, eternal rest.
He has gone across the river
To the land of fadeless light,
Where the darkness never deepens,
Neither falls the shades of night.
For the Saviour in His glory,
Lights the streets of shining gold,
We shall meet you, dearest Allan,
When the pearly gates unfold.
Lovingly remembered by Father, Mother, Sisters and Brothers. 35ap

Since mother dear has gone;
She was so precious to us all,
We loved her, every one.
Of all the flowers that ever bloom,
We know will die away,
Just as the one who left from here
A year ago to-day.

In loving memory of Maude Vincent, wife of O. J. Vincent, who died August 24th, 1915.

In the grave softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we love so dearly,

Never will her memory fade;
Loving thoughts will always linger
Around the grave where Maude is laid.

STYLES AND FABRICS THAT CONSTITUTE THE VOGUE FOR FALL WILL BE EXHIBITED IN ALL THEIR RICHNESS AND SPLENDOR AT OUR FALL OPENINGS WHICH ARE BEING HELD IN OUR STORE ON THURSDAY, FRIDAY, AND SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6th, 7th AND 8th, 1923

The Fall Silhouette

Realizing that present styles in Women's attire are highly pleasing and extremely satisfactory, style creators, designers and manufacturers have made but few changes in general style lines for Autumn.

You will find, however, that the season possesses some wonderful individual characteristics which are artistically expressed in the various garments that will be exhibited at our Openings.

The Fall and Winter Materials

Summed up, the one word, "Luxurious" about adequately describes the new fabrics for Autumn. Never have cloths possessed so much richness in appearance. In coatings, the heavy pile fabrics, known as Marvellas, Bolivias, French Duventyns and Truvenellas, are most correct. (To garments manufactured from these beautiful fabrics have been added rich, long-haired furs in various hues for collars and cuffs. Large, elegantly designed ornaments are used for fastenings, while linings are as interesting as one could possibly imagine.

Each Department will be specially decorated for Openings. Displays of new fabrics will greet you at every turn on both floors. We know of no better way whereby you can become acquainted with the Fashionable New Things for Autumn, than by coming to our Openings. Accept this as your invitation.

Thursday evening our store will be open from 7.30 to 9. An Orchestra will furnish music throughout the evening. To effectively portray the styles in wearing apparel, we have engaged the services of a mannequin, who will parade during certain intervals throughout the store, on Thursday afternoon and evening, Friday afternoon, Saturday afternoon and evening. All merchandise displayed will be for sale.

On Monday, September 3rd, (Labor Day), our Store Will be Open, Regular Store Hours. From 8.30 a.m. to 5.30 p.m., Will Prevail.

The Autumn Styles in Millinery Will Be Presented for the First Time During Opening Days

During the past few days, the express-man has been bringing in box after box of new Autumn Millinery. To these exclusive creations, known as "Pattern" Hats, we have added a wonderfully fine assortment of "Robinson-made" Hats. The perfectly round out our initial showing, we have introduced a rare showing of smart models which blend so beautifully with tailored coats and sport suits.

Generally speaking, styles are determined to go their own way, hence every model is individual looking. There is also a pleasing variation in size, ranging from snug-fitting berets and tricornes to larger droop-brimmed chapeaux.

Brims are irregular, while crowns are indented. Split feathers, mounts and ornaments are used for trimmings.

Fashion still sponsors "Brown" for color this season, and you will find it ranging all the way from light sand to deepest seal. Of course, other shades as green, red, turquoise blue, navy and black are obtainable. Make it a point to choose your Hat during Opening Days.

We have been very careful in buying these Suits, Overcoats, etc., for Fall and Winter. We had not only your boy in mind, but we had the mothers and fathers in mind and their pocket-books. Lonely Lundy.

Lundy Island, which stands at the mouth of the Bristol Channel, has a population of about forty, and until quite recently, when the Rev. Henry Heckin Lee was inducted as rector of the Church of St. Helena, it had been without a rector since pre-Reformation days. The island, which has a romantic history, was purchased by Mr. W. Heaven in 1834. His son, Rev. H.G.Heaven, who succeeded as lord of the island, was an ordained Church of England minister. For many years he conducted services there, but was never instituted as rector. When he died the vicar of Appledore was given spiritual oversight and paid visits to the island three of four times a year. Of late services have been conducted by Mr. Allday, postmaster of the island. Mr. Allday recently paid his second visit to the mainland for about a quarter of a century, and enjoyed his first ride in a motor-car. The stipend originally offered was £60 a year, but this has been augmented by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

Scottish Dogs.

Scottish dogs are remarkably intelligent. The other day a man who owns one was describing to a friend how every evening he gave a penny to the dog, and the dog carried it off to a confectioner's and came back with a bun. To prove his words, it being about the right time, he gave the dog a penny. A few minutes later back came the dog, but brought no bun. "There's something strange about this," said the master; "we'd better investigate. Let us go to the shop." They went, and when they arrived before the shop window the dog leaped joyfully to and fro, inviting their attention to the pile of buns, on which stood a little notice saying, "1 penny each—four for 3 pence."—Manchester Guardian.

J. L. Boyes & Son

London Loved Jesuit Priest

Father Bernard Vaughan, who died recently, was one of the most picturesque figures of his time. He was a Jesuit priest, and yet there was no clergyman of whatever faith more generally respected and honored in Protestant London. A member of one of the great old English families, there was no society, however brilliant, in which he could not and did not shine as a distinctive figure. Yet his work was among the poorest. Not in a generation have any sermons created such a sensation as those in which he castigated Mayfair, its rakish men and worldly women. But even when he castigated them they crowded to his church as they might crowd to Covent Garden. He was no sensationalist. His was far too big an intellect for that, but he was fearless whom he offended. Because of this, London sought to make him a pet, a lion of many seasons. He was to be found at court receptions, and in the drawing rooms of the most exclusive. He had the entree everywhere. Britain had no more loyal son during the war. On one occasion he made a statement that was sent round the world. It was made at a time when many felt that the Pope had a leaning toward the Central Powers. Father Vaughan solemnly and publicly warned any Pope who dared to come between him and his king.

Chelton Reach tells about a couple of interviews he had with Father Vaughan when he was sub-editor-reporter on a London magazine. He went to him to get a Christmas sermon. He found the famous Jesuit engrossed in his breviary in his barely furnished office. Before him was the most untidy desk he had ever seen, littered with papers and books. He made known his mission and the priest told him to write the sermon himself. For himself he was not used to writing sermons and had no faith in them. He said sermons ought to be preached hot and strong with the tongue of a man who believed what he said, and not written at a desk by a man who was feeling his way among paragraphs and commas. Mr. Reach offered to make shorthand notes of the sermon if he would preach it. He was agreeable to this, and said he would let the writer know when he was about to deliver it. When it was explained to him that the Christmas numbers of magazines were made up several weeks before Christmas, he gave the general outline of what a Christmas sermon should be. The interviewer said this was the very thing he wanted, and Father Vaughan replied, "Well, it's yours. Go away and write it."

But Mr. Reach stuck to his point. At last Father Vaughan sighed and, rising from his seat, began to rummage in the litter on his desk. The interviewer thought that he was about to produce the ready-made sermon. Instead he dug up a battered-looking cigar, borrowed a match, lit the cigar, and then sat down to sketch on the backs of envelopes the sermon that was wanted. Before the editor left he had secured the promise of the sermon when he called again, and in return Father Vaughan was promised a good cheque for the poor among whom he labored. But when his chief editor heard the result of the interview, he determined to go for the sermon himself. He had never been a Jesuit priest and the opportunity of talking to such a famous one was something he would not miss for worlds. They got on famously together, perhaps because the editor was a North Countryman and could easily assume the dialect of the county that Father Vaughan loved best of all England, for Lancashire is the most Catholic district in the country.

Writing in the Philadelphia Ledger, Mr. Reach says:

Part of the catechism as it was recounted to me later was as follows: "How is your order governed?" "We are not an order, my dear sir; we are a society. But we are governed, as you call it, by our Father Superior here, and then by the Grand Provincial at Rome." "Not by the Archbishop of Westminster?" "Oh, dear, no," and as the brother of one of the greatest cardinals that Westminster has had, Father Vaughan smiled. "But how is the society constituted?" "Oh, that was all settled by our founder, St. Ignatius, four hundred years ago." "And how and when do reforms?" persisted the catechist, who felt he was getting on. "Sir," replied Father Vaughan, in a voice of chilling finality, "We never reform!" And, as the narrator said afterward, he felt the gulfs of history yawning under him.

One result of the interview was an invitation for the editors to accompany Father Vaughan upon the rounds of his mission. It was in the slums that he worked. It was a rainy night, and preceded by an Irish laborer, carrying a tall crucifix, and with the priest following him ringing a hand-bell, the little procession wended its way through streets and alleys. As it proceeded, men, women and children followed. When a few score had thus been collected, Father Vaughan stopped, mounted a soap box and delivered a sermon. By this time, perhaps a couple of hundred had gathered, and in the dim, silent Father Vaughan preached to them as fine a sermon as he would have preached in Westminster. At the close of it he told them not to kneel on the muddy flagstones, but many of them did. After this he took the two editors to an upstairs room in a humble tenement, which he rented, and there cooked his supper with his own hands, having bought the ingredients at some of the little shops on the way. The fare was frugal, but Mr. Reach reports that the talk that followed it was one of the finest he had ever listened to.

TREATING RINGWORM

A Parasite Skin Disease Affecting Calves.

Easily Spread by Contact—Symptoms Described — Treatment Recommended—Strict Isolation of Affected Animals Necessary.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The term "Ringworm" is applied to a skin disease of animals which is caused by a parasite of a fungus nature, and the disease results only by an animal becoming affected with this parasitic fungus or ringworm parasite.

The vitality of the ringworm parasite is very great, and often, after removal from an animal, it will live and remain active for a great length of time in a stable.

Ringworm may be conveyed or spread either by direct contact with affected animals, or indirectly by various intermediate agencies, such as infected bedding, blankets, curry combs and brushes, which have been in use.

Calves and young cattle are most commonly affected, although they are more especially when kept confined in close, damp, winter quarters, which are predisposing factors.

Adult cattle and horses are less commonly affected, although they are also liable to be attacked.

On certain premises, where ringworm occurs among calves, the parasite may remain on the walls, stalls, posts of the building and fences, and the disease may be continued on the premises and conveyed to the calves from year to year, each winter.

Symptoms of Ringworm.

The parasites attack and destroy the hair, so that the disease becomes manifested by the formation of circular bare patches of skin. The affected parts of the skin become scaly in appearance and encrusted with scabs of a silvery gray color, and when the scabs are removed a raw bleeding surface is exposed.

Among yearlings and calves the disease occurs most frequently, and is noticed to affect the regions around the eyes, ears, neck and shoulders, and, in some cases in calves, may chiefly affect the skin around the mouth and lips.

In horses, ringworm is chiefly seen affecting foals and young horses, and, in them, is noticed to more often affect the upper parts of the body, such as over the shoulders, the back, loins and croup, and along the side of the neck and head.

Ringworm is also transmissable from affected animals to human beings, so that a person should guard against this possibility.

Treatment of Ringworm.

Animals affected with ringworm should be separated from non-affected animals until they have been cured from the disease, in order to prevent its spread.

The first steps in treatment should be to remove all of the bedding and litter from the stalls each day, and have it burnt and replaced with fresh clean bedding. The curry combs, scrubbers, blankets and other articles in use with affected animals should be disinfected either by boiling or soaking in a strong antiseptic solution, such as a 3% solution of carbolic acid or creolin, made by adding three parts of the drug to 100 parts of warm water.

Stables occupied by the affected animals should be cleaned and disinfected with limewash and carbolic acid. If these precautions are followed out, the affected animals can then be readily cured of the disease by thoroughly washing the affected parts with warm water and soap to remove all the encrusted scabs and matted hair. The hair around the margins of the affected parts should be closely clipped. After washing the affected parts they should be allowed to dry, and then dressed with tincture of iodine. In using the tincture of iodine, it should be mixed in an equal amount of clean water and applied to the affected parts once a day by means of a small brush, or a cotton swab, until all of the affected parts are completely coated over. The iodine treatment should be applied daily until all of the affected parts are healed.

Another good preparation for the treatment of ringworm is a mixture composed of equal parts of tincture of iodine, carbolic acid and water, and which is applied in the same manner as the iodine itself.

Another useful remedy for the treatment of ringworm is sulphur ointment. This is made by mixing one part of sulphur and two parts of lard together, to form an ointment. The ointment is then smeared over the affected parts each day until a cure is affected.

While the affected animals are under treatment they should be kept separate from non-affected animals on the premises until they are completely cured of the disease.—C. D. McGilvray, M.D.V., Ont. Vet. College, Guelph.

Horse Stamps Foot.

Q.: I have a horse that stamps his hind feet as if they were itchy. What will cure him?

Reply: The stamping is a sign of itching. Clip the hair off and wash the limbs with warm water and castile soap, using a stiff brush for the purpose. Then rub well with a thoroughly apply a mixture composed of sublimed sulphur 1 ounce, oil of tar, 2 drams, raw linseed oil, 4 ounces; mix. Shake well and apply. The dressing should be repeated 4 days later. Two or three applications are usually sufficient.

HUGH WALPOLE.

An English Writer Praises American Literature.

Hugh Walpole, latest Englishman of letters to come to America to do a "Marzot" on the lecture platform circuit, qualifies himself neither as materialist nor visionary, but conceives his mission to be to elevate the heroic in the spirit of man.

When he speaks of spirit, it is to be understood in the ordinary sense, not with special signification attached to the term by either Conan Doyle or Volstead.

Walpole has a vigorous frame, a scholar's ample forehead, dreaming, humorous eyes void of irony, and a contradictory mouth, both tender and aggressive.

American readers are familiar with his magical delineations of common place people and surroundings. But his two years in the Russian Red Cross, 1914-1916, have added iron to his character and a pathos to his writing.

"Modern American literature is now on its own," said Mr. Walpole. "The older school was but a branch of English letters. Your recent writers, such as Herzscheimer, Sinclair, Lewis and Don Marquis are writing literature that is alive, expressive and purely American."

Referring to the subject of literary censorship which has recently caused a stir in the news, he said:

"I am not in sympathy with the position of H. G. Wells, who, addressing a press society in London, said that the novel claimed everything for its field. This theory falls short of true art. For instance, 'Ulysses,' by James Joice, is in many ways a note book in which events and impressions are set down pell-mell.

"English is so downright a language that the material must enter directly in your artistic conceptions. You can't say things that offend good taste. The continental languages are a different medium.

"As to my lecture program, I shall discuss 'The English Novel of the Twentieth Century,' based on my personal acquaintance with the Older Men, the Realists and the Younger Generation. Then I shall present my prophecy for the Future of English Letters."

FOR SALE — 1 Cow, 2 Years Old, 1 Horse Pung, nearly new; 1 Cultivator, 1 Iron Drag, 1 Harrow, set Wagon Wheels, 1 set Double Single Harness, 1 Horse, 2 Garden Rakes, 1 Spade, 1 Hoe, 2 Wagon Grays, 1 Scythe, 1 Chains, 1 loaded room for the male and female staff respectively. The letters are delivered in this way four times a day.

The contents of each mail-bag opened at the court post office are counted three times, and the number of the letters it contains entered in a book labelled "Mails in." When the letters are made up for delivery to the different departments in the household, the total number of outgoing letters is then entered in a "delivery" book, and the number, of course, entered in each book must be the same.

The out-going mails are posted in the palace in the pillar-boxes provided for each of the chief departments in the household. These boxes are cleared six times a day, and the whole mail is then dealt with at the King's post office, when it is made up in sealed bags and despatched by the General Post Office. Letters on state business, and all his Majesty's personal correspondence are marked "On His Majesty's Service," and need not be stamped; but all members of the household writing on their private affairs must stamp their letters in the ordinary way.

In addition to the ordinary postal business, a large number of special despatches are handled by the King's post office staff. There are usually four messengers on duty throughout the day at the King's post office when the court is in London, two of whom must be ready at a moment's notice to start for any part of the United Kingdom. The other two deliver despatches in London only, chiefly to the Government offices.

Urgent despatches for delivery abroad are sent to the Foreign Office, whence they are sent to their destination by a King's Messenger.

An enormous telegraphic business is under the control and supervision of the King's postmaster. Three operators are on duty in the telegraphic department at Buckingham Palace when the King is in London, and two usually travel with the court.

There is, of course, a telegraph office attached to all the royal residences, and if the King stays at any private house, it is always connected by wire with the nearest telegraph office.

A telegraph clerk in the King's private service must be a highly skilled operator. The great bulk of the traffic passing through the King's post office is in code, which must be transcribed with the greatest accuracy, for the slightest error in the description of a word, even a letter, might completely alter the meaning of a despatch.

Singers From Many Occupations.

The careers of many singers in a London opera company are real life stories. Miss Ethel Austin, for instance, was not many years ago a typistin Liverpool. She got tired of her work and applied for a place in the opera company's chorus. To her astonishment, the management offered her an engagement as a principal, and she launched out on a successful operatic career.

One of Miss Austen's fellow-singers, Mr. Booth Hitchen, was a professional footballer before he made his debut in opera, while of the other members of the company, Mr. Appleton Moore was a highly skilled motor, Mr. Ben Williams a miner, Mr. Gwynne Davies a farm boy, and Miss Olive Gilbert a school teacher.

Douglas Hogg Fulfils Prophecy.

The inclusion of Mr. Douglas Hogg, K.C., in the British Cabinet as Attorney-General was in the nature of a fulfilment of a prophecy made of him when he was leaving Eton.

So struck was Dr. Warre, the head master, by the boy's ability that he observed to Mr. Quintin Hogg, his father, that if Douglas were put into the law he would undertake to say the boy would eventually become Lord Chancellor.

Young Conservatory.

Archibald Marshall, the British novelist, discussing children's politics, said: "Most children like to be on the popular side. A little girl of my acquaintance, brought up in the Liberal fold, went to a children's party at election time and returned from it with a decidedly Tory color.

"I got so tired of being asked if I was a Liberal," she explained, "that I just said I was a Conservatory."

The King's Correspondence

Handled by Special Staff

How Organization Works

One of the least heard of, yet one of the most important, departments in the royal household is the private postal establishment attached to the court.

The court post office is under the control of Mr. Hiley, who was formerly at the Central Post Office, and is a passed first-class telegraph clerk. The headquarters are at Buckingham Palace, but a temporary office is established wherever His Majesty may be staying, under the direction of Mr. Hiley, who always travels with the court.

The letters for the king and the royal household are delivered in sealed bags to the Buckingham Palace sorting office four times a day, and at other royal residences three times. The first delivery is made at 7 a.m. Directly the mail is delivered the bags are opened and the contents sorted by the postal staff, consisting of four male and two female clerks, and they are then given to the palace postmen for delivery.

Letters for their Majesties and members of the royal family are delivered to the equerries' morning room, and placed in the rooms of their Majesties' secretaries by an equerry.

The letters for members of the royal household are delivered to their respective apartments, and the "servants' mail" to the palace steward's room and the head housekeeper's room for the male and female staff respectively. The letters are delivered in this way four times a day.

The contents of each mail-bag opened at the court post office are counted three times, and the number of the letters it contains entered in a book labelled "Mails in." When the letters are made up for delivery to the different departments in the household, the total number of outgoing letters is then entered in a "delivery" book, and the number, of course, entered in each book must be the same.

The out-going mails are posted in the palace in the pillar-boxes provided for each of the chief departments in the household. These boxes are cleared six times a day, and the whole mail is then dealt with at the King's post office, when it is made up in sealed bags and despatched by the General Post Office. Letters on state business, and all his Majesty's personal correspondence are marked "On His Majesty's Service," and need not be stamped; but all members of the household writing on their private affairs must stamp their letters in the ordinary way.

In addition to the ordinary postal business, a large number of special despatches are handled by the King's post office staff. There are usually four messengers on duty throughout the day at the King's post office when the court is in London, two of whom must be ready at a moment's notice to start for any part of the United Kingdom. The other two deliver despatches in London only, chiefly to the Government offices.

Urgent despatches for delivery abroad are sent to the Foreign Office, whence they are sent to their destination by a King's Messenger.

An enormous telegraphic business is under the control and supervision of the King's postmaster. Three operators are on duty in the telegraphic department at Buckingham Palace when the King is in London, and two usually travel with the court.

There is, of course, a telegraph office attached to all the royal residences, and if the King stays at any private house, it is always connected by wire with the nearest telegraph office.

A telegraph clerk in the King's private service must be a highly skilled operator. The great bulk of the traffic passing through the King's post office is in code, which must be transcribed with the greatest accuracy, for the slightest error in the description of a word, even a letter, might completely alter the meaning of a despatch.

Singers From Many Occupations.

The careers of many singers in a London opera company are real life stories. Miss Ethel Austin, for instance, was not many years ago a typistin Liverpool. She got tired of her work and applied for a place in the opera company's chorus. To her astonishment, the management offered her an engagement as a principal, and she launched out on a successful operatic career.

One of Miss Austen's fellow-singers, Mr. Booth Hitchen, was a professional footballer before he made his debut in opera, while of the other members of the company, Mr. Appleton Moore was a highly skilled motor, Mr. Ben Williams a miner, Mr. Gwynne Davies a farm boy, and Miss Olive Gilbert a school teacher.

Douglas Hogg Fulfils Prophecy.

The inclusion of Mr. Douglas Hogg, K.C., in the British Cabinet as Attorney-General was in the nature of a fulfilment of a prophecy made of him when he was leaving Eton.

So struck was Dr. Warre, the head master, by the boy's ability that he observed to Mr. Quintin Hogg, his father, that if Douglas were put into the law he would undertake to say the boy would eventually become Lord Chancellor.

Young Conservatory.

Archibald Marshall, the British novelist, discussing children's politics, said: "Most children like to be on the popular side. A little girl of my acquaintance, brought up in the Liberal fold, went to a children's party at election time and returned from it with a decidedly Tory color.

"I got so tired of being asked if I was a Liberal," she explained, "that I just said I was a Conservatory."

Oversold—Why?

The demand for the new Martha Jane Chocolates has been so great that it has been with some effort that the manufacturers have filled the orders. You get them fresh every week at Hooper's Drug Store.

SPOONERISMS.

A Famous Man Who Used to Get His Words Twisted.

Probably more verbal lapses are credited to Dr. Spooner, the genial and popular head of one of the Oxford colleges, than to any other perpetrator of lingual faux pas.

It was he who once preached from the text, "For now we see through a dark glassly," and transmuted the "Loving Shepherd" into the "Shoving Leopard" in one of his sermons.

On another occasion, when he was pressed by a friend to stay the night in London, he answered with decision, "No, thank you! I must return to Oxford by the 5.50 town-drain."

It was not Dr. Spooner, however, but a learned dean of an Oxford college, who once gave a severe lecture to a lazy undergraduate, finishing with these crushing words:—

"I am sorry to have to speak so severely to you, but I am credibly informed that you have broken many rules of the college; you have been incorrigibly lazy; and, to crown all, you have willfully tasted two worms."

Of course, he meant "wasted two terms"; and the delinquent was under no delusion as to his meaning.

The same dean once kept a friend waiting a long time for him outside his house, and then, emerging in a resplendent silk hat, apologized thus: "So sorry to have kept you. The fact is, I have been brushing my black brat."

Once when Dr. Spooner was staying in town he was asked by a friend to meet him at a certain hostelry in a London suburb. On the day appointed Dr. Spooner took train to Greenwich, and spent some hours in vain attempts to discover an inn of the name of "The Dull Man," finally returning to town without catching a glimpse of his friend or the rendezvous.

All the time the friend had been awaiting him, as arranged, at "The Green Man, Dulwich."

But perhaps the best story of all is one which Dr. Spooner himself tells. "I was returning the other evening along the Witney road, when as I neared the station, owing to my indifferent sight, I ran into a man who was crouching at the edge of the footpath; we rolled over together, and were both somewhat bruised. 'It was my fault,' said the stranger to me, on recovering his breath. 'But I was only stooping to boil my sickle.'"

Tobacco and the Plague.

While the great plague raged in London tobacco was recommended by the faculty and generally taken as a preventative against infection. Pepys records the following on June 7, 1665: "The hottest day that I ever felt in my life. This day, much against my will, I did in Drury lane see two or three houses marked with a red cross upon the doors, and 'Lord have mercy upon us!' write there; which was a sign to me, and so true first of the king, to my remembrance, I ever saw. It put me into an ill consumption of mind, for they are afraid that I was forced to buy some roll tobacco to smell and chew, which hath made me ill hitherto. To-day, also, it was popularly reported that no tobacconists or their people were touched by the plague. Physicians who visited the sick took tobacco very freely; the men who dyest round with the dead carts had their pipes continually alight. This gave tobacco a new popularity, and it took the high medical position accorded to it by the physicians of the French court.—N. Y. Sun.

Began as Newsboy.

Another eligible for the newsboys' hall of fame is John Cournos, the Russian author, who claims Philadelphia as his home. Mr. Cournos, whose trilogy, "The Mask," "The Wall," and "Babel" has placed him in the front rank of living novelists, began his newspaper career as a newsie thirty years ago, a scene of which have been passed on the Philadelphia Record. When he left that paper a decade ago to go to London he was assistant Sunday editor—a fact that is more resounding when one remembers Mr. Cournos' humble origin. He was in London at the outbreak of the war, and in Russia at the beginning of the revolution, where he had been sent on the Anglo-Russian commission by the British Government. Mr. Cournos was born in Kieff, Russia, in 1881 and is unmarried.

The daughter of a viscount recently fell in love with and married a bank assistant. The bride is the young widow of Capt. Allan Keith MacKenzie, and only daughter of Viscount Knollys, formerly private secretary to King George and Lord-in-Waiting to Queen Alexandra.

The bridegroom is Richard Henry Checkley, the son of a macer (usher) in the Court of Session, Edinburgh. Until February, 1922, he was an assistant salesman, serving behind the counter in a London shop.

The romance began in a war-time meeting while the bride was working as a hospital nurse. The bride, by the way, is a god-daughter of Queen Alexandra.

Diplomatist Buys Castle.

Richard Edmunds Pennoyer of California, a first secretary of the American Embassy, Berlin, and Lady Winifred Pennoyer have bought the remarkable St. Donat's Castle on the Glamorgan coast, near Llanwit, Wales, and are taking up residence there about the middle of October.

The building is a sixteenth century structure. It stands in 120 acres of ground.

WALNUT INVESTMENT

It Pays to Plant Walnuts and Wait Fifty Years.

No Better Legacy for the Farm Lad—The Government Forestry Branch Will Assist—Tree-Growing Requires Little Labor—Black Walnut Trees As Memorials—How to Treat Poison Ivy.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

"Say, Mr. Forester, if a boy of my age were to plant an acre of black walnut this spring would I live to see the trees large enough to be used for the building of a house to shelter me in my old age?"

"Yes, my lad, you could plant the trees to-day, and in fifty years time the trees would be large enough to cut into interior finishing lumber for your house."

There is some satisfaction in planting a tree and watching it grow to merchantable size.

A Walnut Tree Grows for Many Years.

A walnut tree will keep growing long after it has passed the half century mark, and keeps on making lumber until it is one hundred and fifty years old. However, a very nice tree can be grown in fifty years on good soil; yes, large enough to make all the finishing lumber for the interior of a house. Ten acres of land planted under sane forestry methods with walnut will make, in time, a fine tract of valuable timber, which when ready to harvest, would at present prices be worth $1,000 per acre.

No Better Legacy Could Be Left.

A man could leave no better legacy for his heirs than a block of good timber. The long time between seedtime and harvest in forestry frightens the average mortal, and deters him from planting forest trees. But people should not take the long time view seriously. Generations of humans are yet to be born to live in this country, and since the present generation has largely destroyed the original timber, it is only just and fair that we should provide for the wood and lumber requirements of the future. On nearly every farm there is some waste land or else remnant of a wood lot. It may be odd, rough spots or sandy hills, areas that have not produced profitable grain or grass crops and which could well be used for the growing of wood.

The Government Forestry Branch Will Help.

The Forestry Branch of the Lands and Forestry Department is co-operating with four hundred Ontario farmers in which the Forestry officials try to point the way to success in wood lot management. As a result of such co-operation, many walnut, green ash, and red oak seedlings have been given a start toward useful production. A small seed will grow into a big tree. Nature does nearly all the work; man simply plants the seed or the little seedling tree and waits. The young forest is established by planting a tree every six feet, crowding the trees together to force them to grow tall, straight stems. As the crowding becomes too great for thrift, alternate trees are taken out. These thinnings can be used as fence poles, rails, gate material, small lumber, such as chair and table legs, lamp stands, curtain poles, etc. So there is a source of revenue after the trees have been planted twenty years but that will take care of the overhead expenses incidental to maintenance.

Very Little Labor Required in Tree-Growing.

With the farm labor situation never satisfactory, and many farmers trying to crop twice as much land as they can handle properly, forest planting should show the way out. If the people of Ontario are to use wood in the house-building of the future, if we are to have fuel for the hearth, a lot of land owners must do some forest planting very soon.—L. Stevenson, Sec. Dept. of Agriculture.

Black Walnut Trees As Memorials.

Planting of black walnut trees as "memorial trees to soldiers is recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. It is pointed out that the black walnut played a valiant part in the World War. The wood was used for gunstocks and propellers, and the nutshells contributed carbon for gas masks, while the kernels were used in many delicacies for the boys in the trenches. Demand for the wood for war purposes depleted the number of fine old trees, and this method is suggested for filling their places.

How to Treat Ivy Poisoning.

In the early stages of ivy poisoning remedies having a fatty or oily base, such as ointments, should not be used, as the grease or oil tends to distribute and spread the poison, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Instead they advise simple remedies such as local applications of solutions of cooking soda or of Epsom salt, one or two heaping teaspoons to a cup of water. Fluid extract of grindelia, diluted with 4 to 8 parts of water, is often used.

Solutions of this king may be applied with light bandages or clean cloths, which should be kept moist, and should be changed and discarded frequently to avoid infection. During the night, or when moist applications can not be used, the poisoned surfaces should be carefully cleaned and dried and left exposed to the air rather than tightly bandaged. In the later stage, after the toxic material has exhausted itself, zinc-oxide ointment and similar mild antiseptic and astringent applications hasten healing.

"I'm afraid," replied her mother gently, "that as long as you have nur to take care of you, you'll have to make up your mind to be washed thoroughly every day."

Marie considered this problem for a moment. Then she faced her mother with determination.

"Very well," she said, "then I shall marry young."

THIS ARISTOCRAT TUSTS.

Curzon Is of Blue Blood But Burns Midnight Oil.

Lord Curzon has made his success in politics, and, in doing so, has displayed every rule of the politician. Politicians are supposed to be good handshakers. Curzon does not know that hands are for this purpose. They are supposed to be good mixers. He never mixed with anybody. They are supposed to be democratic. Curzon is not only a conservative in politics, but an ultra-conservative in real life. Born of a line of ancestors coming over with William the Conqueror, who have always distinguished themselves in the nation's affairs since that time, he has never associated with the "ordinary" man. Even in his Oxford days he was unpopular because of his aloofness.

Reasons for his success are: Preparedness, reliability and unflagging energy.

Curzon prepared himself for this work. His backsround and early training was of the best. His father was a rector, so he was raised in an educated family. He received educational advantages. As a boy he attended Eton, which has turned out so many distinguished Englishmen. Then he entered Balliol College, Oxford, where he stood at the head of his classes. He was elected a fellow at All Souls in 1882, an honor coming as a result of his scholarship. He also won the Arnold historical prize in 1884 with an essay on Sir Thomas Moore. His university career was a brilliant success.

He determined, during his school days, on a political career and set the Viceroyship of India as his aim. Consequently, after leaving school, he traveled in the East in order to familiarize himself with the countries over which Britain exercised a protectorate or had a sphere of influence. He continued his Eastern travels during his Parliamentary days, so that he now knows Asia better than most Englishmen. He made friends with the Shah of Persia, the Ameer of Afghanistan and other Eastern potentates. He became a reporter on the London Times, and "covered" Far Eastern countries, which gave him an opportunity thoroughly to study their condition.

His school and university days were brilliant because he burned the midnight oil. He succeeded because he worked while the other students were at play.

HANDLING LAYING HENS

Feeding and Housing Must Both Be Considered.

Give the Birds a Good Run—Dry Mash Hoppers Save Waste—Suggested Ration—Forage Crops—Don'ts for the Layers.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Following are results of experiments carried on by the writer when connected with the Agricultural Experiment Station for Vancouver Island, Sidney, B.C.

Houses and Yards.

The house in which the birds are kept is provided with a water-proof roof and a floor that is always dry. In preparing the house for the new flock of pullets, everything movable is taken out, cleaned, and then saturated with a mixture of equal parts of creosite and coal oil. The interior of the house is well scraped and swept clean of any foreign material. A coating of lime-wash is then applied, and the movable equipment replaced after the lime-wash has been done. When everything is dry, a 6-inch layer of dry straw is placed on the floor. The house is now ready for the five-month-old pullets, and care is taken to see that only strong, vigorous birds are permitted to occupy house space.

The runs provide ten square yards of surface for one bird. They are in duplicate and are used alternately for feed growing and exercise space. Late-leafing, deciduous trees only are used about poultry yards. The coniferous windbreaks are located far enough away from the poultry yards and buildings to permit of maximum sunlight entering all space occupied by the birds.

Feeding.

A dry mash hopper of such construction as will prevent waste is supplied with the following mash mixture:—

Wheat bran.....	400 pounds
Ground oats.....	200 "
Beef scrap.....	200 "
Wheat shorts.....	200 "
Corn meal.....	100 "
Fine salt.....	4 "

Tain nature is always available for the birds. The whole grain ration is composed of two parts wheat, one part cracked corn, and one part oats, by weight. This is fed on the floor of the house morning and evening. In the daily proportion of five pounds per fifty birds, during the late autumn and winter. When a supply of skimmilk is available, the birds are given all they will take, and the beef scrap is reduced one-half. Shell, grit, and charcoal are always before the birds, being supplied in small metal hoppers which are conveniently placed.

Forage Crops for Poultry.

Small areas of kale, chard, and alfalfa were grown to be used as green feed for poultry. The chard was relished to a greater extent than the other green feeds. Grees alfalfa was most useful during its season from May to November. For winter green feed, kale and mangles were used. For little chicks, chickweed was supplied during the first ten days, then lettuce and chard. A supply of clean water is always available for all the poultry; it is given in fountains placed thirty inches above the floor and surrounded by the narrowest possible platform on which the birds may stand to drink. This method has proved very satisfactory, as it prevents the birds from working dirt and foreign matter into the receptacles.

The laying houses are kept thoroughly clean. Dropping boards are scraped and sanded every morning. All litter and dust is removed every three weeks, the house swept out, and fresh litter again placed on the floor. The perches are sprayed with a creosote and coal oil mixture in equal parts, every three weeks. During the winter period a dust box, four feet square and ten inches deep is provided. The birds are always given the freedom of an outside run, no matter what the weather is. The drawer type of trap nest is used, the birds readily becoming used to its action. Broody hens are confined in slat-bottom crates for the necessary period required for the change of their opinion on the subject.

Don'ts For the Layers.

Don't put pullets into an unclean house.

Don't waste time on unthrifty, deformed, or ailing birds; get an axe and a block of wood.

Don't neglect to clean the dropping boards daily.

Don't forget to clean the house and provide new, clean litter every three weeks.

Don't neglect to keep the dry mash hopper filled with a mash made from clean, wholesome grain, and meat products.

Don't waste your time with wet mashes; feed everything dry.

Don't neglect the drink; supply abundant water and milk.

Don't neglect the supply of shell, grit, and charcoal.

Don't waste time and money feeding tonics; well-cared-for poultry do not need no: are they benefited by such a practice.—L. Stevenson, Sec. Dept. of Agriculture.

The worthlessness of poor quality bulbs lives after them—in their low-producing daughters.

Apples are not very subject to pitch, and if we are careful the apple orchard can be kept clean.

"Agriculture, for an honorable and high minded man," says Xenophon, "is the best of all occupations and tria by which men procure the means of living."

In the morning, sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thy hand; for thou knowest not whether shall prosper either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good.—Ecclesiastes XI, 6.

Human beings are gregarious. The dictum that it is not good for man to be alone is not confined to things connubial. Man by nature is a mixer. Folks will flock. Nothing draws like a crowd. Let it be known that "They're all going to be there," and they all will try to be there to see them all, and if it be a public singsong, to hear them.

The Grange, the Farmers' Institutes, and the U.F.O organizations have already done away with much of the old-time isolation of country life, and the energy shown by those younger in years who have participated in the activities of School Fairs and Boys' and Girls' Clubs has also shown that a new day has arrived for more clubable conditions in rural neighborhoods. Community singing is a social solidifier.

Everybody Enjoys Singing.

As the result of years of experience with Y.M.C.A.'s, men and boys' clubs, and military camps, I have come to the conclusion that people enjoy more than any other music that in which they take part publicly. A community sing-song, no matter where indulged in, always acts as a social tonic. It is a solvent of creed, caste and ultra dignity. It catches all present if they will only catch the tune. It takes the croak out of the throat, the furrows from the worried brow, the hard lines from mouths that have been growing grim, and the crowsfeet from the corner of the eyes. It melts the icy manner. It knocks the starch out of even the so-called superior people. To sing together is to get together.

I have seen hard-headed business and professional men who have been looked upon with awe or fear by their employees, turn up at banquets or club gatherings in the city and drop all their dignity and "front" as they joyously bellowed some popular ditty, or solemnly joined in a sentimental camp song, and doing it as if fate of nations depended upon their being heard. And, with a little coaxing, a farmer can outchant any city chap, because of better chest and lung development.

Music Always Popular in the Country.

Music has always had a leading place in rural entertainment. The "old-fashioned singing" school gave a generation or two of agriculturists an ear for melody, and reflected itself in the volume of congregational singing that obtained forty years ago. To-day in church assemblies that heartiness and volume is very much waning.

Community singing will do much to revive the robustious and not less pleasing vocalism of the good old days. The people who can sing with vim "Keep the Home Fires Burning" or "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag" are likely to be just as hearty in exhorting you to "Count Your Blessings," or to "Brighten the Corner Where You Are."

Community Singing Includes All Present.

Real community singing implies a general participation. Everybody should have at least a whack at the choruses. A capable leader with both taste and gumption can bring hearty and genuine melody out of any rural gathering. Simple methods and a knowledge of human nature are all that are needed. He will first try out the juniors, and children will never refuse to sing. Then the girls will be heard by themselves, followed by the boys. Now we are getting along. The next thing we know the leader has the women caroling along all by themselves; and then, wonder of wonders, he calls upon "men only" to sing, and they get at it like the good sports that they are, so as to show the women folks and the kiddies that music is something that is in the soul of all, and that driving a team in the field is a capital aid toward a rich and megaphonic baritone.

Vary the Program From Grave to Gay.

Then let us have community singing, and plenty of it; but let it be something more than mere sing-song. Anything decent will do to begin with, and the simpler the better, as a sort of limbering up exercise. But let something more ambitious be attempted now and then, such as gipsy, anthems, cantatas, or perhaps oratorios, with big soloists from the cities as stars, but with all hands drilled for the choruses. Some time an easy and clean comic opera might be put on, but with no intention of crowding out the more solid music; for it is well to remember the force and justness of that very practical observation of the elder Pliny (lib iv, cap. xi, 24). "The lemon, as well as the sugar, is needed to make the punch."

Community singing cannot be encouraged. It is a social, physical, mental, and moral tonic. Less public benefactions have been bounded by the state.—Thos. McGillicuddy, Statistics and Publication Branch.

Good tomato land is neither extremely rich nor very poor, but just such land as would grow extra good corn. Land that was manured heavily the previous year will generally grow good tomatoes.

No nation has ever achieved permanent greatness unless this greatness was based on the well-being of a great farmer class, for it is upon the welfare of farmers, material and moral, that the welfare of the nation ultimately rests.—Theodore Roosevelt.

Can You Beat It?

Who said we were beaten? Quite alive yet. The first game of ball the Strathcona Orioles played was on the home grounds on July 27th, defeating the Wilton Imps by a score of 40-13. The following week they played Newburgh on their grounds. "Gotcha" helped bring the score 50-16, but poor "Gotcha" died laughing. On August 11th the Orioles met the Imps on the Wilton grounds. The Orioles were well in the lead when the imps' umpire called in a new rule which they admit was unfortunate, but we say was unfair. The evening of August 15th Newburgh lost to the Strathcona Orioles by a score 34-10. The game which some call the play-off between Strathcona and Wilton, was played on Newburgh grounds August 22nd. Owing to the fact that the Orioles' pitcher sprained her thumb in the first innings and one of their players was absent for the first half of the game, they lost. The score was 29-24; but the Orioles surely held the Imps in the last two or three innings. This is not considered the play off by the Orioles by any means. In a sporting view the league is still a tie on account of the "unfortunate" decisions which were rendered by the manager of the Wilton team who was acting in capacity of umpire. Said unfortunate decisions being direct means of Orioles losing game in Wilton. The rule that unfortunately beat the Orioles is nowhere to be found in the rule book. Why not be a sport, Mr. Secretary, and replay that game? as the public in general feel that it should be played. Yes, our motto is "Follow Us", and according to rules, you are just in step, not two steps ahead.

STRATHCONA.

We are having very changeable weather at the time of writing—A welcome rain came last week, and now the farmers are plowing with might and main.—Threshing is a thing of the past for this year, and all report a very good crop considering the dry season.—The tug-of-war game between Wilton and Strathcona girls was played in Newburgh on Wednesday, August 22nd, at 3 p.m. Good ball was played by both teams, but the Wilton girls were four runs in the lead in the end. Although this game was on neutral ground, it was amusing how many grievances the Newburgh girls seemed to have against the Orioles. We are inclined to believe that the girls of Newburgh are poor sports, but they certainly have a new way of demonstrating. It reminds one of the dog in the manger, although the bark is worse than the bite. It would be as common place to see the tail wagging the dog, as to see Newburgh holding their tempers after being beaten by little Strathcona, so we were not surprised. Another game will be played between Wilton and Strathcona at the Centreville Fall Fair. A liberal prize is offered to the winning team. Come and bring the children. They like to yell. —The paper mill has been running full blast. A cement platform is being constructed, which will add much to the appearance of the mill yard.—Mr. Wilfred Wilson has gone West for the harvest.—Miss Vera MacLean is at home visiting her parents.—Mrs. Joan Rook and daughter, Miss Emma Rook, of Napanee, have been visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity. —Mr. and Mrs. Adam Hamilton, who have been home on a short visit at Mr. William Ballance's, started on the long trip back to Saskatchewan on Monday last.—Mrs. Will Johnston, of Toronto, and daughters, Joy and Evelyn, are visiting under the parental roof at W. Owing to the disagreeable weather, the crowd was small.

Two Centenarics.

Works of reference show that 1922 is the fourth centenary of two of our most valued fruits, the apple and plum. They were introduced into England in 1522, and may be said to have kept close company ever since, the combination of plum and apple in preserved and culinary form being well known, particularly to those on our battle-fronts, who sang of the glories of plum and apple jam in the early stages of the struggle, and gradually became less enamoured of it. The apple came from Syria and the plum from Italy. Apples of a kind were indigenous to England, but the fruit as we know it came in 1522. No doubt we owe the introduction to Richard Harris, fruiterer to Henry VIII., to whom we are indebted for so much in the way of fruit and vegetables. He planted a great part of the original orchards of Kent. In 1688 the number of varieties was placed by Ray at seventy-eight, and now there are over 2,000. Experts in pomology might question, however, whether this could be demonstrated on distinct varieties.

Can You Beat It?

Who said we were beaten? Quite alive yet. The first game of ball the Strathcona Orioles played was on the home grounds on July 27th, defeating the Wilton Imps by a score of 40-13. The following week they played Newburgh on their grounds. "Gotcha" helped bring the score 50-16, but poor "Gotcha" died laughing. On August 11th the Orioles met the Imps on the Wilton grounds. The Orioles were well in the lead when the imps' umpire called in a new rule which they admit was unfortunate, but we say was unfair. The evening of August 15th Newburgh lost to the Strathcona Orioles by a score 34-10. The game which some call the play-off between Strathcona and Wilton, was played on Newburgh grounds August 22nd. Owing to the fact that the Orioles' pitcher sprained her thumb in the first innings and one of their players was absent for the first half of the game, they lost. The score was 29-24; but the Orioles surely held the Imps in the last two or three innings. This is not considered the play off by the Orioles by any means. In a sporting view the league is still a tie on account of the "unfortunate" decisions which were rendered by the manager of the Wilton team who was acting in capacity of umpire. Said unfortunate decisions being direct means of Orioles losing game in Wilton. The rule that unfortunately beat the Orioles is nowhere to be found in the rule book. Why not be a sport, Mr. Secretary, and replay that game? as the public in general feel that it should be played. Yes, our motto is "Follow Us", and according to rules, you are just in step, not two steps ahead.

Strangled with Asthma is the only expression that occurs to convey what is endured from an attack of this trouble. The relief from Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is beyond measure. Where all was suffering there comes comfort and rest. Breathing becomes easy and the bronchial tubes completely cleared. This unequalled remedy is worth many times its price to all who use it.

STRATHCONA.

We are having very changeable weather at the time of writing.—A welcome rain came last week, and now the farmers are planning what might and main.—Threshing is a thing of the past for this year, and all report a very good crop considering the dry season.—The tug-of-war game between Wilton and Strathcona girls was played in Newburgh on Wednesday, August 22nd, at 8 p.m. Good ball was played by both teams, but the Wilton girls were four runs in the lead in the end. Although this game was on neutral ground, it was amusing how many grievances the Newburgh girls seemed to have against the Orioles. We are inclined to believe that the girls of Newburgh are poor sports, but they certainly have a new way of demonstrating. It reminds one of the dog in the manger, although the bark is worse than the bite. It would be as common place to see the tail wagging the dog, as to see Newburgh holding their tempers after being beaten by little Strathcona, so we were not surprised. Another game will be played between Wilton and Strathcona at the Centreville Fall Fair. A liberal prize is offered to the winning team. Come and bring the children. They like to yell. —The paper mill has been running full blast. A cement platform is being constructed, which will add much to the appearance of the mill yard.—Mr. Wilfred Wilson has gone West for the harvest.—Miss Vera MacLean is at home visiting her parents.—Mrs. Jean Rook and daughter, Miss Emma Rook, of Napanee, have been visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity. —Mr. and Mrs. Adam Hamilton, who have been home on a short visit at Mr. William Ballance's, started on the long trip back to Saskatchewan on Monday last.—Mrs. Will Johnston, of Toronto, and daughters, Joy and Evelyn, are visiting under the parental roof at W. J. Finlay's.—A number of youths and maidens from this village expect to attend Newburgh High School this year.—Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Finlay have been home from Varty Lake for some time.—Mrs. W. J. Finlay has returned home from visiting relatives in Toronto.—Mrs. A. Scott, of Gananoque, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. A. H. Hoare.—Mr. Claude Vandervoort and Mr. Donald Huffman of Newburgh, made a flying visit to the mills on Monday with a load of paper.—The open air concert held here last Saturday evening was much enjoyed by those who "listened in". Owing to the disagreeable weather, the crowd was small.

Mail Orders promptly filled at Wallace's Drug Store.

BATH.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kellar and son, Charles, of Buffalo, N.Y., have returned home, after a pleasant visit at John Forester's.—Rev. and Mrs. Murray, who have been visiting at G. W. Cuppage's, have returned to their home at Martintown, Ont.—Mr. E. P. Shephard is attending the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto. — Mrs. Northmore and son, Harold, also Mr. and Mrs. Max Robinson, are visiting friends at Rideau Ferry.—Mr. Wm. Bain and daughter returned to Kitchener, Ont., on Wednesday. Mrs. Bain is remaining in Kingston with her son, who is ill there. — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mellow, of Napanee, spent Sunday at George Davy's.—Mrs. Fred Baker has returned to her home at Guelph after spending some time at Max Robinson's. — Misses Carrie and Mary Davy spent a couple of days in Napanee last week with their sister, Mrs. Frank Mellow.—Mrs. Miller and daughter, of Kingston, are visiting at Chas. Young's.—Mr. E. J. Sexsmith, Rev. Earl Sexsmith and Miss Maude Sexsmith were at Ross Sexsmith's last week. — Miss Hazel Vanalstine, Napanee, spent a few days last week at H. D. Wemp's.—The girls' baseball team played a game with the Sydenham team at Wilton on Thursday, the score being 14 to 9 in favor of the Sydenham team.

Two Centenarits.

Works of reference show that 1922 is the fourth centenary of two of our most valued fruits, the apple and plum. They were introduced into England in 1522, and may be said to have kept close company ever since, the combination of plum and apple in preserved and culinary form being well known, particularly to those on our battle-fronts, who sang of the glories of plum and apple jam in the early stages of the struggle, and gradually became less enamoured of it. The apple came from Syria and the plum from Italy. Apples, of a kind, were indigenous to England, but the fruit as we know it came in 1522. No doubt we owe the introduction to Richard Harris, fruiterer to Henry VIII., to whom we are indebted for so much in the way of fruit and vegetables. He planted a great part of the original orchards of Kent. In 1688 the number of varieties was placed by Ray at seventy-eight, and now there are over 2,000. Experts in pomology might question, however, whether this could be demonstrated on distinct varieties.

Golf In England.

When James VI. of Scotland succeeded Queen Elizabeth as James I. of Great Britain, his Scottish train played golf on the grounds of Blackheath and for 250 years that was the only golf course south of the Tweed.

A Powerful Flame.

A powerful flame, which will burn under water and cut through a steel plate three-quarters of an inch thick at twenty inches a minute, is the invention of a French engineer.

Galsworthy's Looks.

John Galsworthy is said to look more like a family lawyer than a successful novelist. He is clean shaven, precise in his dress, low-voiced, and not effusive.

BANK DEPOSITORS ARE REASSURED.

No Occasion for Uneasiness, Say Frederick Williams-Taylor States

"Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, General Manager of the Bank of Montreal, on being asked last night with regard to the banking situation, stated that as President of the Canadian Bankers' Association and otherwise, he thought there had been too much talk of further banking mergers and this, obviously, had a very unsettling effect. "So far as I know as president of the Association and general manager of the Bank of Montreal, there are no mergers likely in the near future, and in my opinion there is no occasion whatsoever for alarm or uneasiness on the part of depositors in Canadian banks," he added."—From the Montreal "Gazette".

MEMORIAL UNVEILED TO DESERONTO'S SONS.

A most impressive ceremony, which was attended by practically the whole population of Deseronto and the surrounding district, took place Monday afternoon on the occasion of the unveiling of the town's memorial to those of her sons who fell during the great war. The parade which left the town park at 12.30 p.m., headed by the R.C.H.A. Band, was a most impressive one, and composed of the Mayor and Town Council, all city officials, members of the Deseronto and District Returned Men's Club, together with all other returned men of the district and the friends and relatives of those to whom the splendid memorial has been erected.

The memorial itself is a plain and rugged solid block of granite, upon which is fixed a bronze memorial plaque engraved with the names of Deseronto's Fallen. The plaque is of most pleasing design, the roll of honor being surmounted with the intertwined Union Jack and Canadian Ensign effectively designed in bronze, the whole making a beautiful memorial which should stand for practically all time. The committee who had charge of the erection and unveiling of this memorial was composed of the members of the Town Council together with representatives of the D. O. D. R. M. Club. The Rev. Father O'Reilly, President of the Club, was one of the principal speakers at the ceremony.

Major-General Sir A. C. Macdonell, K.C.B., M.C., D.S.O., Commandant of the R.M.C., addressed the huge gathering during the unveiling ceremony, referring to the efforts which had been put forward in the cause of humanity by those members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force who had given their lives during the Great War and now sleep in Flanders Fields. The speaker also commended the idea of erecting suitable memorials throughout the Dominion in order that it might be truly said "Their name liveth for evermore".

NEWBURGH.

The opening of the schools has filled our streets again with young life, and we are reminded of the fact that responsibility rests with those who are supposed to exercise control over this life to see that the best is made of it. This responsibility rests primarily with the parents, while the teachers come in for their share which can only be discharged by perfect cooperation and team work on the part of the staff.

A number have gone from here to the Fair in Toronto, nearly all by motor car. This gives one a little idea of what the railways are up against.

A goodly number also attended the Labor Day celebration at Deseronto.

Miss Marjory Hill has been accepted as nurse-in-training at the Royal Victoria Hospital at Montreal, and assumes her duties October 31st.

Mr. George Ash, of Rochester, has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Toner, and with other friends. He was accompanied by his wife, who is a sister of Mrs. Toner, and also his son, George is a native of Newburgh, and will be remembered as the son of the late Elias Ash.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Yeomans had the following visitors during the week end: Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Brown and daughters, Emily and Eleanor, of Schenectady, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Watson, Messrs. Kenneth and Percy Watson, of Schnectady, and Miss Lillian Watson, of Toronto.

Miss Mabel McNeely, who is in attendance at Kingston Model School, was at home for the week end.

Miss Bernice Bowerman has returned after spending a pleasant holiday with her grandmother, Mrs. Lawlor, South Fredericksburgh.

The following lines will pretty well sum up general life in Newburgh and surroundings:

Holiday time is surely past,
With all its lax and carefree life;
And strenuous days have come full fast,
With work and worry they are rife.

The boatman lays aside his oar,
The fisherman his bamboo rod,
The camper seeks his homestead door,
And all begin life's weary plod.

The school marm dons official garb,
No more the bathing suit will do;
The restful days have brought reward
In quiet nerve and ruddy hue.

But why lament for holidays,
It's work that brings us sure reward;
For duties done for helpful ways,
'Tis these that bring us most regard.

Then let us face with courage bright
The tasks that daily come to hand,
For all things do not yield to sight
There comes a time we'll understand.

TOKIO AND YOKOHAMA ON FIRE. THEIR STREETS HEAPED WITH DEAD

Every City in the Idzu Peninsula Practically Levelled.—What Quake and Flames Did Not Destroy on Land, Tidal Waves are Reported to Have Crushed or Sunk at Sea. — Principal Cities Are Veritable Infernos at the Latest Reports.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 2nd. — Tokio, Yokohama, and neighboring cities to-night were burning ruins, while more than 160,000 persons in the vicinity of these cities were reported dead as a result of Saturday's earthquakes, according to advices received here by the Associated Press from its Shanghai correspondent and by the radio correspondent from its station at Tomioka.

Death and destruction were spread over an area roughly comprised within a radius of fifty miles of Tokio. How extensive the casualties and the material damage outside that zone is, has not been determined, as all communications with Japan are still interrupted except for brief connections by radio with Tomioka and occasional despatches from Japan to Shanghai.

With railroad lines, telephone wires and all other means of communication and travel between Tokio and the remainder of Japan and the outside world cut off, Tokio and the other cities on the central eastern sea coast on the Island of Hondo are isolated in their desolation.

The cities of Tokio and Yokohama were described by the superintendent of the Japanese Government wireless station at Tomioka which operates via radio correspondence, as "Like Hell".

Buildings were falling, fire was spreading everywhere; dead and dying were on all sides; there were explosions and cries of horror and fear by the panic-stricken populace.

What quake and fire did not destroy on land, tidal waves are reported to have crushed or sunk at sea. The fate of the ships in Yokohama Harbor and what ships were there, still remain to be determined.

The best available reports received to-day said hardly a structure was left standing in the Yamanote district which includes the Tokio wards of Honjo, Fukagawa, Akusaka, Shitaya, Nihonbashi, and Kanda.

Thousands are without food and water and no means of getting any at present.

In Yokohama the fire started in the Bund, or foreign section, spreading rapidly to the business district which was wiped out.

Tens of thousands of guests at resorts in the Hakone district near Yokohama in the mountains, were driven from their quarters by quakes and fires. They were panic stricken. The number of casualties are undetermined. The town of Atami was demolished, six or seven thousands being killed. At Ito, on the Izu peninsula, more than 500 houses were washed away by tidal waves. Six hundred persons are reported to have perished when a railway tunnel at Sasako collapsed. The city of Nagoya is virtually destroyed. The Japanese naval station near Yokohama was engulfed by a tidal wave and the imperial palace at Tokio is endangered by fire. Nagoya has a population of 620,000. It is about ninety miles east of Osaka and about 70 miles west of Tokio.

Near earth tremors were reported to-day by various seismographs. The Manila Observatory seismograph recorded shocks to-day at 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. The shocks were violent, but could not be definitely located. The Saturday shock which devastated Tokio and environs, was the greatest the Manila seismograph has recorded in thirty years according to Father Serra, geologist in charge.

TRAVELLING HOTEL ON WHEELS LATEST AUTOMOTIVE TRIUMPH

Moving Parlor, Bedroom, Dining-room, Kitchen and Bathroom, Including Hot and Cold Running Water.

If you have a hobby for highly personalized transportation and can write a cheque running well into five figures, you can now gratify every desire for travelling luxury, distinction and novelty. Thanks to the utility value of the modern motor bus, an outlet has been given to the passion for a house on wheels or "sleeping coach" combining every modern convenience with the composite comforts of home, hotel and Pullman. Such is the motor palace, a White model 50 bus, recently acquired by W. K. Kellogg, breakfast food magnate and world-traveller.

Fond of travel, Mr. Kellogg has toured India, Japan and China, and through virtually all European countries. He has made several trips to South America, has been in Alaska twice, in Hawaii and Egypt and now with his club car creation plans on renewing his acquaintance with America's wonders in a more leisurely and intimate way.

With the automobile home there is no further need to "check your baggage and come back later" for a room and bath. Now you just drive and drive and stop where you please. In the wildest wilderness if you like, without the slightest inconvenience—comfortable sleeping berths, shower baths, ample cooking facilities, cracked ice made as you ride, market news and entertainment by radio. The club car has all these conveniences and more. Innocent looking panels of mahogany here and there conceal scores of unlooked-for appointments.

The motor palace is finished in mahogany and the finest of leathers throughout. Entrance and exit may be made through five doors, three on the right side and two on the left. The driver's compartment is separated by a sliding glass partition. The forward part of the car is equipped with four revolving chairs with adjustable backs, head rests and arms which can be quickly converted into full sized berths for two. The chairs are upholstered in taupe mohair plush with nickel fittings. Heavy adjustable curtains separate the sleeping quarters from the rear compartment as well as the berths. The forward section may readily be transformed into a cozy dining room by the introduction of a folding table which, when not in use is concealed in a panel at the side of the car. Ample light is provided by dome lamps and separate reading lamps at each chair. A dictograph permits communication with the driver without opening windows.

The coach is designed for use in winter as well as summer and passengers need not be concerned by weather conditions. Rotating fans keep the car cool in warm weather while heaters set flush with the floor and connected to the exhaust pipe of the engine keep the car warm on the coldest day.

Further inspection of the rolling home discloses wardrobe and linen closets, oil and electric stoves, sink, faucets for hot and cold water, an ice making plant, iceless refrigerator, a china effect, a nickle hand basin, enclosed chemical toilet, French mirrors and dust-proof screens of fine nickle mesh. Several electrical connections are conveniently located for curling irons, etc.

All kitchen utilities and other appointments are concealed when not in use by mahogany cabinets and closets so that the general effect is of pleasing cabinet work and upholstery.

The water supply system for the entire coach is provided by a 40 gallon tank, pressure being maintained at all times by means of a pump driven by a power take-off on the transmission. An electric power plant in the rear section furnishes current for the lamps, stoves and fans.

Installed outside at the rear of the car is an iron folding frame which can be used to carry light baggage and when extended forms a large bed frame, which with mattress and rain covers offers additional sleeping accommodation.

It is possible a few conveniences a completely appointed home should have, have not been enumerated. If so the mansion of ever-changing location has them.

WOMEN'S WAYS.

Eminent English Novelist Attempts an Explanation.

"All human being are strange, but all can be understood if we will put ourselves in their place," says Mr. W. L. George in the Royal Magazine.

"If women sometimes understand men better than men do women, it is because they make this effort, while most men are too lazy to ask themselves what they would feel if they were in the woman's position. They just shrug their shoulders, say, 'So like a woman!' and leave it at that. It is no wonder, then, that they should fail to see what is passing in the woman's mind.

"When we come to women's attitude to clothes we strike a vital part of their nature. A popular society woman once said to me: 'That woman is badly dressed. She has red hair and wears green. But it is an obvious green. To be well dressed a woman must wear an unobviously obvious color.' Complicated, but all women understand; and perhaps I do a little, too.

"The same woman suggested to me: 'Clothes classify women. Good underclothes show that she aspires to affection; boots and shoes that she desires respect.' Of the one whose clothes are good throughout she said nothing; she must have aspired to paradise. This lady was rather unkind to women, and it was she who made me think: 'Only those women who are not quite women can admire beauty in their own sex.' Indeed, two pretty women must be rivals; if they didn't struggle for us a little (very quietly) life would become very dull.

"It is, however, when we come to love that the investigation of woman becomes most interesting. Sometimes love provides an excitement that cannot be drawn even from a new hat. In many forms I have found myself saying: 'Love is woman's one adventure.' I mean that while men have career, money, or art to pursue, woman concentrates all her energies about the capture of the little god. But the little god is a very dangerous domestic pet.

"It was a man who suggested to me that: 'Love though blind is unfortunately not dumb, and uses speech to conceal the truth.' Women complain equally of his silver tongue, while they can never close their ears when he chooses to sing. I am thinking now of a middle-aged woman, long past the gentle passion, whose chief delight was to make marriages. It is her case I have in mind when I say: 'Romance is woman's compensation for the dullness of life.'

"This naturally does not apply to all women; it does not entirely apply to the energetic girls who are to-day making their own careers. These are as liable to fall in love as the old-fashioned women, but when they do it is not always a success. I am thinking of one who, rather late, married a successful engineer and gave up her own work, a prosperous typewriting office. She is very unhappy, and I sure put up by saying: 'Only a great love can compensate a woman for the loss of a freedom which she has enjoyed.'"

Fireflies.

The statement that the light of fireflies and other phosphorescent insects is produced without any sensible degree of heat has often been repeated, without any information as to the quantity of heat that would be required to produce a similar amount of light by artificial methods. This information is supplied by Prof. MacIntosh. He says that a temperature approaching 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit would be necessary to make a light equivalent to that emitted by an ordinary firefly. The enormous waste of energy in all industrial methods of producing light is a matter of common knowledge, and the example of the firefly remains unimitated by man. The very simplicity of the mechanism employed by nature in phosphorescent insects is baffling.

Effect of Water Shed.

A curious result of a study of the Blue Ridge mountain region in North Carolina and Virginia is the showing that the Atlantic is slowly gaining some of the waters that have hitherto flowed toward the Mississippi. This arises from the fact that the Blue Ridge, instead of being a crest with strong slopes on each side, is an escarpment separating a mountainous upland on the southeast, and the high-level headwaters of the streams that flow toward the Mississippi are continually losing breath by the retreat of the escarpment, through the getrogressive erosion of the low-level headwaters of the Atlantic-seeking streams. From a practical point of view, of course, the change is very slow.

Star Near Earth.

The star Alpha Centauri, one of the nearest to the earth, consists, as the telescope shows, of two suns, one of which is five or six times brighter than the other. But observations by Roberts at the Cape of Good Hope Observatory led to the conclusion that the two components of Alpha Centauri, much as they differ in brightness, are really twice as heavy as our sun. It seems to follow from these facts that one of these twin suns is losing its light and in the course of ages may become only a gigantic opaque planet, while its companion will continue to blaze with solar splendor.

Didn't Need Nerve Tonic.

"You are in a very bad condition," said a physician to a weak-looking patient. "Just take this prescription to the chemist. It will cost you a dollar." "Thanks," said the patient; "but you might lend me the money." The doctor, in amazement, took back the paper, and made out a fresh prescription. "Take this one," he said. "It will cost you a quarter; the other prescription was for your nerves."

Make the Rinso liquid first

Do not put Rinso direct from the package into the tub. Make half a package of Rinso in a little cool water until it is like cream. Then add two quarts of boiling water, and when the froth subsides, you will have a clean amber-coloured liquid.

Add this liquid to the wash tub, until you get the big lasting Rinso suds. Then soak the clothes clean.

Rinso is an splendid for the regular family washing as Lux is for fine fabrics.

THE MEANING OF MEMEL

MORE COMPLICATIONS ARISE IN EASTERN EUROPE.

Lithuanians Started Action to Seize City Just at the Time When France Was Busy Entering the Rich Valley of the Ruhr—Complications Are Increasing as Result of National Ambitions.

After having waited four years for their only outlet to the Baltic, the Lithuanians have started to take by force what they believe is their rightful heritage. The city of Memel and its strip of territory along the Niemen river are actually under the jurisdiction of the Council of Ambassadors, which succeeded the Supreme Council of Premiers, and not under the League of Nations, as has been averred. The title of sovereignty was transferred to the allied and associated powers from Germany, as that to eastern Galicia was transferred from Austria. The Council of Ambassadors now has before it the task of deciding what the future regime at Memel shall be, and a decision has been regarded as imminent for some time. The actual administration of the district has been in the hands of the French, and it is worth noting that the Lithuanian move coincided with the French occupation of Essen.

The problem at Memel is in many respects similar to that of Danzig. There the Poles demanded an outlet to the sea, promised them in Mr. Wilson's fourteen points. But as the city was inhabited by a German majority, the Paris Peace Conference resorted to its favorite expedient of "internationalizing" the city and giving the Poles free use of the harbor. Concerning an outlet to the sea for Lithuanian nothing had been stipulated in the fourteen points; the independence of the country itself was an afterthought. But by Article 99 of the Treaty of Versailles Germany was forced to give up Memel and the land north of the Niemen to the victorious powers, who were to decide its fate later. The territory is about 2,800 square kilometers and the population about 140,000. In majority it is Lithuanian, though in the city itself, as at Danzig, the German element is the largest. Thanks partly to having been under German instead of Russian rule, the population of Memel and its territory is more advanced in culture than that of the remainder of Lithuania.

Originally the western powers may have thought that Lithuania might ultimately consent to become a part of the reconstituted Poland, as it had been a more or less autonomous member of the old kingdom, but the Lithuanians insisted on independence and gained their cause, taking almost for granted that they would be given Memel as their port. On account of the mixed population it was difficult to draw a definite ethnographic border between Poland and Lithuania, and on October 9, 1920, the Polish general, Zeligowski seized by force the Vilna district, which by the Russo-Lithuanian Treaty of July 12, 1920, had been given to the latter country. Vilna morever, is the old capital of Lithuania. Since that time the Poles and the Lithuanians have practically been at war. Until Poland restores Vilna, the Lithuanians declare they will have no friendly relations with her.

In the government of Memel the Poles also claim a share on the ground that it is the natural outlet for part of their commerce. In this demand they probably have the tacit support of France, their ally, who desires as strong a Poland as possible. The Germans of Memel are also represented as favoring an international regime for the city with a view to ultimate reversion to Germany. But if the Poles get established both at Vilna and at Memel, the time of a reincorporation of the remainder of Lithuania with Poland may be hastened, something the present French regime would perhaps be pleased to see happen. At least this would seem to explain why the Lithuanians chose to march on Memel the very day the French were busy entering the Ruhr.

Forestry Pigeons.

The United States forestry service has been experimenting with carrier pigeons. Recently, in an Idaho forest, a carrier pigeon was taken by a packhorse over mountains, kept at its destination overnight and released the next day. It was subsequently found that it took the pigeon exactly thirty minutes to cover the eighteen miles to its home coop. In another recent test the pigeon was sent to headquarters with a message asking for fire-fighting assistance. Soon after, however, it was found that the fire was under control. Word was sent by a second bird that the requested assistance would not be required, and it reached the central camp just in time to prevent the assisting expedition from starting.

Large Forfeits.

Paying up cost unsuccessful candidates at the recent British election something like $15,000. England has a law which requires a man who puts himself forward for Parliament before he has enough popular esteem to get one-eighth of the votes cast in his district or forfeit the sum which amounts to approximately $700 to our money. More than fifty candidates suffered the forfeiture in the November election. — The Nation's Business.

Saving Them for His Son.

"Alfreo," said Mrs. Williams, "I don't believe you smoked one of those cigars I give you on your birthday." "No, my dear," he replied. "I have resolved to keep them until young Reginald wants to learn to smoke.

The Importance of Being Pretty

Many a girl's fortune is determined by her face. A skin which is fresh, smooth and alluring with the radiance of health, predicts a happy future, because this is the greatest of all womanly charms.

Every girl can have a beautiful, attractive skin if she will only learn to give it proper care.

The constant application of cold creams, lotions, powder, and rouge and to make the skin sluggish and inactive. Dirt accumulates and blackheads and other blemishes appear.

Thorough cleansing once a day prevents such a condition and keeps the complexion fresh and smooth. Cold cream is beneficial when applied to a clean skin and rouge and powder are harmless beautifiers—but—start fresh every day on a clean foundation. Keep your skin active and it will be clear, fresh, youthful and attractive.

OUR FALL OPENINGS ARE BEING HELD THIS WEEK END. SPECIAL DISPLAYS HAVE BEEN ARRANGED FOR FRIDAY AND SATURDAY. WE ESPECIALLY INVITE YOU TO OUR STORE TO BECOME ACQUAINTED WITH THE STYLES AND COLORS THAT FASHION COUNTS CORRECT

Simplicity fades into the background before the elaborateness of Winter's on-coming fashions. Seldom have we beheld such a wealth of gorgeous Fabrics, Furs, Laces, Beading and Embroideries.

All the regal splendor of the Old World has been combined with the art and skill of the new world, to conceive and produce fabrics and garments of a practical, serviceable nature.

The Embroideries for this season are carried out in Chinese effects, the lavish use of Fur Bandings recalls Russia, while Laces spell the lure of Spain.

GETTING ACQUAINTED

All our departments are in readiness to greet you on Opening Days. Counters and ledges will be artistically decorated with the fashionable new fabrics for Autumn. This method of display will give you a splendid opportunity to become thoroughly acquainted with the things that are correct. On Friday afternoon, on Saturday afternoon and Saturday evening a Mannequin, wearing the new Dresses, Coats, and Costumes, with Hats to match, will parade throughout our store. These special displays are entirely free and are open to all of our customers.

THE MATERIALS

The new materials for Fall are really fascinating. The new weaves and gorgeous colorings will make an irresistible appeal to all lovers of things beautiful. These truly wonderful fabrics will be seen in their proper colorings at our Openings.

"In Coatings" the various Pile fabrics are used exclusively for better class garments.

"For Suits and Street Frocks", Poiret Twills, Tricotines, Broadcloths, Velours and Serges are very popular.

"For Gowns", the Silken fabrics hold full sway, and many new weaves are being shown for the first time. From an unusually varied list we find these materials worthy of special mention: Satin Canton, Flat Crepe, Vela-Vela, Duchess Satin, Satin Moire, Wonder Crepe, Faille Moire, Satin Faconne, Velvet Brocade, Silk Metalasse and plain Silk Velvet.

THE SILHOUETTE

Marked elaborations characterizes the Fall fashions. For day wear dominating styles employ tiers, flounces, half pleated flounces and knee length tunics to vary the straight line silhouette which stands unshaken for Fall. Interestingly new is the "Ripple" Silhouette which Fashion has launched this season. It is a pleasing study in straight lines and ripple flounces.

For street wear, long sleeves are most important. Evening gowns have no sleeves, while afternoon frocks show a unique variation of sleeve lengths. The "coat" dress is a vogue of much importance. Skirt lenths are no longer than the prevailing lengths of summer, while the left side closing is an outstanding feature.

Feathers and more Feathers characterize the Autumn Hats. These Feathers are applied in diverse ways, around the brim or tacked on the back, while some sweep gracefully across the crown. "Ostrich" Feathers are first choice in trimmings, while Metal ornaments strike the Chinese note in Fall Millinery. "Felt" alone, or combined with Hatters' Plush or Velvet, is one of the most correct materials. "Shapes" take no one directed course, but are extremely individual in character, and come in a wide variety of sizes.

AUTUMNAL COLORS

Colors for the season deserve special attention. Authorities tell us that "Fashion" mixed her colors in Paris to paint the Autumn mode in hues of Black, Brown and Navy. - Petrole or (Bottle Green) is one of the newer shades; thus the color range for Autumn extends from Green and Bronze, through all the shades of Brown to Navy and Black. "Blues" in Royal, Adriatic and the various pastel shades including "London Smoke Grey" are also being featured, while another coloring appearing on the horizon is Purple. Cornelian Red and Emerald Green are being used for trimmings.

DRESSMAKING DEPARTMENT RE-OPENED

Our Dressmaking Department, with Miss McMillan and Miss Vanalstyne in charge, re-opened this week for the Fall season. The new Fall materials are extremely fascinating and are sure to win your approval. Many of the latest novelties are now on display. Choose your fabrics, select your styles, and let us make your costume to order for you.

THE SEPARATE COAT HOLDS FULL SWAY. GRACEFUL IN STYLE AND SUMPTUOUS IN MATERIAL

A slender tube with a band of fur at the top is the way one manufacturer describes the Autumn Coat styles. Lovely ornaments are used to fasten Coats which invariably close on the left side this season. Sectional Embroidery and Silk Stitching are used for trimmings. Sleeves come in a wide range of set-in and kimono styles. Pockets are conspicuous by their absence in most cases. The materials are very rich in appearance.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Jas. A. Wilson.

After a brief illness of about two weeks, Mrs. Minnie Wilson, of Bridge street, passed away, at her home, on Sunday last. The funeral was held from her late home on Bridge street, on Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Foster officiating, assisted by Dr. Shorey, Rev. Mr. Tanton and Rev. Mr. Terrill.

Mrs. Wilson was the wife of J. A. Wilson, the shoe merchant of Napanee, and sister to J. L. Boyes, of Napanee; A. R. Boyes, of Los Angeles; W. E. Boyes, of Montreal, and C. H. Boyes, of Kingston.

Besides these there remain to mourn her loss, Mrs. E. W. Edmonds, of Chung Chow Sze, West China; Mrs. F. R. Todd, of Hamilton; Miss Mary Wilson, Lily, Herbert and Robert A., all children of the deceased.

BOYES'

"Made-in-Napanee" Suits

EXPERIENCE has surely taught you there is a big difference in clothes. The trouble is most of us can't tell the difference between the good values and the poor until we've paid our money and worn the Suit awhile.

There are more than 50 different points in a Suit where material and workmanship can be varied to turn out a GOOD Suit or one "not so good."

Boyes' Tailor-made Suits are good suits, because at every one of these fifty points we use good materials and good workmanship.

We never had as competent workmen as now, and Boyes' Made-in-Napanee Suits are even better than ever. Leave your order and get clothes satisfaction.

WEDDING BELLS.

SPRING—SHARPE.

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, August 29th, 1923, at 11 a.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley P. Sharpe, Bath, Ont., when their only daughter, Gladys Florence, became the bride of G. Wilfred Spring, only son of Mr. and Mrs. George Spring, Bath. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. C. Hoffman. The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Mr. Clayton Bell, and looked charming in a gown of ivory silk Canton crepe caught with seeded pearls, Her veil of silk tulle was draped with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses, and wore the groom's gift, a gold wrist watch. The bridesmaid was Miss Mildred Spring, sister of the groom, who was attired in a dainty frock of alltyme crepe, and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses and carnations. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Lorne Birrell. During the signing of the register, Mr. Clayton Bell played very softly. The groom's gift to the groomsman was a pair of gold cuff links; to the bridesmaid, a handsome gold pin set with pearls; to the pianist, a pair of gold cuff links. Immediately after the ceremony the guests were escorted to the dining-room, where a dainty lunch was served, the guests numbering about forty. After luncheon, amid the showers of confetti, the happy couple left for Toronto and other points. The bride travelled in a suit of navy tricotine, with hat to match. Upon their return they will reside upon a farm near Bath, where the groom is a prosperous young farmer. The beautiful gifts show the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

SAMPSON—CREELMAN

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Walmer Road Baptist Church on Saturday, Sept. 1st, by Rev. Dr. MacNeil, when Albert W. Sampson, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Sampson, Kingsford, was united in marriage to Miss Katherine Creelman, youngest daughter of the late Mr. W. Creelman and Mrs. Creelman, of Truro, N.S.

WHAT IS POETRY?

The Old Definitions May Yet Be Challenged.

"It is a mistake to suppose that poetry must of necessity be metrical language, that there must be rhythm and rhyme associated with it, and that these must be its invariable medium," says Mr. H. G. Purchase, M.P., in the Nineteenth Century.

"It does not depend on mere form. Shelley, in his 'Defence of Poetry,' has drawn attention to Plato's writings, and declares that, although he did not write in verse, he was essentially a poet—the truth and splendor of his imagery, and the melody of his language, are the most intense that it is possible to conceive.

"So Ruskin writes about art, architecture, and especially about social economics in a prose which has rhythm, and which possesses the true essence of poetry. Even the dull, dry science of economics may, therefore, have a poetic licence attached to it. Bacon, whose wisdom has been handed down to us in little essays of surprising worth, writes in prose, but Shelley brings him in under the banner of poets.

"Milton has written for us in stimulating blank verse, and his lines are charged with high moral thought. Here is a man's wisdom set forth in the most permanent form. Take another author, who has given his mind to the elucidation of great political truths in the form of speeches, namely: Burke, and one is similarly struck by the stately march of thought and the poetic medium of expression.

"If poetry is judged not merely by the metre, then the Bible has a claim to be considered poetical which is quite irresistible. There is in all great prose the attractiveness of verse, and it will not, therefore, be assumed that one must limit oneself to that which Shelley calls 'the root and blossom of all other systems of thought,' in considering whether we are entitled to hold that there has been any very considerable progress with this war-stricken world.

"For poetry is something more than mere metre; it is great music in the hands of a master like Shelley or Keats; it is like the sounding of a fine chord of sensation, which takes our aspirations, which are working their way along the valley of depression, and fires them with passionate notes of feeling. It brings light and flame to our thoughts, and raises it will all the vigor of the eagle's pinion."

Why do we lose sales every day on Saurs Second Candy? Because the makers of these famous Chocolates would prefer losing any number of sales rather than sell one box that was not fresh. Therefore we get a shipment on Friday only, direct from the studio. Leave your order at Wallace's Drug Store.

BETTER FORGET PAST

LITTLE GOOD GOING BACK ALONG LANES OF MEMORY.

It Is Wiser to Look the Door Against the Thoughts of the Days That Have Gone—Recollections Only Worry the Nerves and Make a Person Feel Older.

A good title for this article would have been "No Thoroughfare," because I want you, of your own will to erect that notice at the entrance to certain tracks which lie behind you, and which, if you are foolish enough to turn back and enter them, will take you to the past.

With perhaps here and there a rare exception, the past is best left alone declares a London Answers writer. It saddens, it ages, and it is apt to make one dangerously morbid.

The other week I took it into my head to spend a couple of days in the old university city where I was educated. I wish I had not, for I felt—and possibly look—ten years older.

I have had it seared into me that my youth lies a long, long way back. The knowledge has done me no good. It has depressed me.

I went to my old college. The dean was dead. The "gyp" who had been assigned to my rooms was dead. The porter I had known was dead. Mr. "coach"—a brilliant scholar, and only a year or so older than myself—had been dead many years.

It seemed that all the men of my generation had gone.

The sun was shining brightly, but I shivered. I felt old.

I went down to the river, and there, if anywhere, memories should have been happy ones. But they were not. All that came to me was a heartache.

I had lived my life, and I was getting old. Some strange psychological change took place in me. I find it hard to describe, but I know it lowered my vitality.

Is it not wiser to leave the past alone?

A friend of mine has never married because the girl to whom he was engaged died on the eve of the wedding day. Now and again he takes her yellowing letters from the secret drawer in his desk and reads them.

I know now why he looks sad and aged and morbid, although he is still in early middle age. They bring depressing memories. They make him feel that life is empty.

Those lanes in memory which lead to the past should be closed, and labeled: "No Thoroughfare."

If you want to live to a good old age, you need to drift into it quietly and without, in a way, realizing it. Those journeys back along the lanes of memory or—as in my case—to places that hold memories, are bad for us.

For one thing, all emotions take their toll of vitality. For another, we shall live less long if it is forced upon us that we have already lived a long time.

We make fearful mental estimates of our expectation of life, and we pass out, as a consequence, many years before we should.

Let the past alone. The farther you have to go back to it the farther you have travelled. That thought is variably abhorrent to me. I loathe the past alone. Live for the present and do not measure the future by memories of the past.

Again—let the past alone. Forget it. It is wiser.

Birds Rid Cattle of Parasites.

The ox-pecker, a bird inhabiting the dark continent, is so called from its fondness for being around domestic and other cattle, which it rids of various parasites. It is said that it actually eats large holes in the fleshy parts of the backs of cattle often one or two inches deep, and two or three inches in diameter, thus creating bad sores. It does this little by little, and day by day, attacking just that part of the back where the ox cannot swish it off with its tail or dislodge it with its horns. The bird is a pest to the hunter, of whose approach it warns the buffalo and rhinoceros by its loud, harsh note which is perfectly understood by its large friends.

Tarsus.

In apostolic times, the part of what is now Asia Minor, on the northern shore of the Mediterranean sea, where the coast begins to run to the west, and opposite the Island of Cyprus, formed the province of Cilicia—one of the many provinces into which Asia Minor was divided, and all forming parts of the Roman Empire. To the west was Pamphylia, to the north Capadocia, and to the east Syria. Cilicia was, therefore, the highway between Syria and the central and western parts of the empire. Jews formed a considerable part of the population.

Are Screech Owls Ominous?

In some sections of the country people believe that when a screech owl alights and begins to scream in its shivering cry into the night it is a sign of some ill luck which is soon to befall them. Particularly do ignorant people put faith in this sign. Many have been heard to say that it betokens the early death of a loved one. No more utterly false specter of the superstitious was ever created. A screech owl is quite harmless. In fact, they are quite valuable, pretty little night birds.—Our Dumb Animals.

International Date-Line.

The International Date-Line is a hypothetical line, coinciding approximately with the meridian of longitude 150 degrees from Greenwich, and by which navigators correct all dates where each calendar day begins. For practical purposes this line is now strictly followed. It has been run through Alaska and generally through the Pacific ocean as much as possible, of course. East of the International Date-Line the day is dated one day earlier than on the west of the line.

TOBACCO UNDER FIRE.

When prohibition is established throughout the earth or when most people come to the conclusion that it cannot be established, it seems probable that those who have been most zealous in promoting it will direct their attention to tobacco, for it is in the highest degree improbable that people who are fascinated by the task of reforming other people's habits will desist from their labors. At the Anti-Alcoholic Congress at Copenhagen, Professor Martin Hartmann, of Leipsic, made an assault upon the tobacco habit. Among its most distinguished recent victims, he tells us, was Lord Carnarvon. The notion that Lord Carnarvon died as the result of an ancient curse pronounced against those who would violate the Valley of the Kings' Tombs is the one that is generally held, and it is not much more improbable than the Hartmann theory. Actually Lord Carnarvon died as the result of a bite by some germ-bearing insect, and no one has yet contended that a tobacco-laden system is more susceptible to the attacks of insects than one devoid of nicotine. Prof. Hartmann also remarked that tobacco tends to retard growth and has caused a reduction in the average height of Englishmen and Americans in the last century.

This prompts the New York Times to remark ironically:

"Look about in the streets at our dwarfed and shambling race; go out to the tennis courts or the golf links; look over the crowd in the Yale Bowl at a football game. Puny, stunted, anaemic young people—are they fit to breed another generation which by the inevitable law of the smoker's progress must be even worse? Some of our native savants have warned us of the evil effects of the cigarette on the modern girl. Look at her, a shrivelled, bloodless, helpless creature, coughing her life away in sedentary listlessness, fainting from sheer weakness at the slightest excuse—how far degenerated from her mid-Victorian grandmother, who could support the weight of corsets and crinoline because she never snapped her vitality with the cigarette!"

If the average height has been reduced, the average that remains is sufficient for all purposes. Human endurance and manhood were never at a higher pitch in the history of the race than they were proved to be in the years of the Great War. Whatever practises may have interfered with the growth and efficiency of the individuals, they had little effect upon the average man. Races that know nothing of tobacco could produce no finer specimens of manhood than the Leander and Undine crews which Toronto has welcomed this past week. The physical condition of the human race gives no real ground for alarm.

"Why, no," objected Swivel, "that little thing couldn't get away with three pounds of meat. Still, let's weight her and find out."

They did so. The scales registered an even three pounds.

"Yes," he admitted, in puzzled tones, "there's the meat all right, but where's the cat?"

EXCRUCIATING PAINS, CRAMPS

Entirely Remedied by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Eberts, Ont.—"I started with cramps and bearing-down pains at the age of eleven years, and I would get so nervous I could hardly stay in bed, and had such pains that I would scream, and my mother would call the doctor to give me something to take. At eighteen I married, and I have four healthy children, but I still have pains in my right side. I am a farmer's wife with more work than I am able to do. I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I feel that it is helping me to a cure. My mother-in-law who has been taking your medicine for some time and used your Sanative Wash, told me what to do. I feel better than I do now, as I have received great relief from it."—Mrs. Neil Mac Worr, R. R. 1, Eberts, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for ailments common to women. It has been used for such troubles for nearly fifty years, and thousands of women have found relief, as did Mrs. Yott, by taking this splendid medicine.

If you are suffering from irregularity, painful times, nervousness, headache, backache or melancholia, you should at once begin to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is excellent to strengthen the system and help to perform its functions with ease and regularity. G

ESSEN.

Here Is a City That Has Thrived on War.

If Essen is taken over by the French there will be feelings of satisfaction in not a few breasts in allied countries, in view of the relation of that city to the war, as the chief scene of munitions making for the past generation or more. It is a great steel city, thriving on war itself, and epitomizing the very spirit of war making and militarism. When Essen flourished it was a sign that the war lords in one country or another had a big campaign ahead. The measure of its relation to such conflicts may be seen in the growth of its population, which, after several centuries' existence, was but 10,000 in 1854, had risen to 118,000 in 1900, and to 439,000 in 1920.

Coming down the Rhine in one of the palatial steamers of the Netherlands Steamship Co. the sloping banks of the river remind a Canadian of the shores of the St. Lawrence. Dotted all over the landscape are villages and small hamlets, with their church spires silhouetted against the azure sky. The meadows seen from the boat are rectangular patches of an astounding green color set off with white fences. The villages appear with such regularity that the whole scene looks like a pantomime setting in bright colors, waiting for some beneficent ceremony.

The scene changes are the boat approaches Essen. Residential suburbs built on the hills overlooking the Rhine are the first sign of the great industrial center, which, in appearance, resembles, probably more than any other locality in Europe, some of the big American factory cities, for instance, Pittsburg. Over the city itself hangs a dense cloud of smoke. At night flames shoot up through the chimneys of the huge blast furnaces. The roar of the town is audible on the river. Street cars clang and come right to the river's edge. Trailers of the trams are loaded with workmen coming and going to ever-changing shifts of work. Far up the hills in the distance are the residences of the Krupps, the Herders, the Bokers and the other industrial magnates. In the distance there is the incessant boom of big guns as experts workmen and army engineers test the products from the factories.

In the city itself there is a cosmopolitan population as in a large American town — Italian and Austrian laborers, boarding houses and American bars. The outbreak of a new war in Europe was always the signal for a new boom in Essen. In 1904 a representative of the Friedrich Herder Co. was seeking building materials and bricklayers in Holland and Belgium. Asked by a Hollander whether an extensive building program was anticipated in Essen, he answered in the affirmative:

"We need more houses and more workers, for the firm of Herder has received an order for twelve million bayonets, and they are to be sharpened on both sides."

Six months later the Russo-Japanese war broke out.

Prince Needs a Successor.

Japan had a crisis recently. It was not a cabinet affair, for cabinets are not of so much importance in that most monarchistic of all countries. The health of the Prince Regent was in peril. If he had died his younger brother, Prince Yasuhito Atsu-No-Miya would have been the favored of Heaven and of Nippon.

When one has for king or regent a descendant of the sun god, why should one worry about such earthly things as ministries and Diets? The royal family matters in Nippon. And so, when the Prince Regent, who had visited England and had also entertained the Prince of Wales, fell ill with measles, then indeed there was consternation. But it was suddenly remembered that there was a second son of the king, namely the Prince Yasuhito, still with his regiment and a slender, spectacled youth, but none the less a son of the sun and worthy of worship and reverence.

Tourist Printers.

Brooklyn Joe is known all over the United States as the last of the tourist printers. Brooklyn Joe was working in New York when the first linotype machine was manufactured. For thirty years Brooklyn Joe has traveled from coast to coast, setting thousands of these typesetting machines. Long years ago scarcely a week passed that some tourist printer didn't come along who wanted to throw in a case of type; set up a column or two for a dollar, a feed and a bed, and then drifted onward. Most of them are gone now. There was the immortal J. N., Red Doolin, Thin Space Jones, so named because he was so thin, and Fussy Raynolds.

Seeing Our Breath.

As a matter of fact, we don't see "our breath" on a cold day. What we do see is the water vapor with which it is charged and which has become condensed in contact with the cold air. All that happens is this. We breathe in, use a certain amount of air, and expel the rest, charged with moisture picked up from the inside of our bodies.

When the air is warm it can absorb or "hold" the moisture in our breath, but when the air is appreciably colder it condenses this moisture into tiny globules which we see as vapor or mist, exactly as steam from a kettle is condensed on the colder outside air.

An Old Saying.

The expression "a pretty kettle of fish" was originally a "kiddie" of fish, the kiddie being a very old word for a net, and the fish trap were temporarily laid down in a river to catch anything that might be passing. It usually would naturally be a very mixed bag, and so a "pretty kiddie of fish" came to be used as a term for a general mix-up or muddle.

PERSONALITY IN ART.

It Forms an Important Factor In Appreciation.

"To enjoy art intelligently, to recognize the art that we are capable of enjoying," says Mr. S. C. Kainen-Smith in John o' London's Weekly, "we must be able to reconstruct the personal quality which distinguishes the mental or spiritual attitude of the artist both towards life in general and towards the particular aspect of it that his art employs as his medium of self-expression.

"So let me take a painter whose art is more remote from human feeling, more repellent of human sympathy, than that of any other in the world, and yet whose hold upon the memory and the imagination is irresistible and universal; I mean Leonardo da Vinci. Painting was but one of the outlets for his enormous intellectual energy. His whole life was directed by a kind of cold, emotionless passion for knowledge, an insatiable curiosity for truth of every kind, scientific, psychological, artistic. In all his work, in his writings, as in his pictures, we find the same icy detachment, the same absolute lack of prejudice of any kind.

"It is rather in an attitude of submission than of sympathy that we shall derive the most enjoyment from the work of Leonardo. We must not go to his pictures with a preconceived idea of our own as to the kind of enjoyment that we are going to experience, but must regard them with an open mind, taking in every purely aesthetic pleasure that they offer of balanced design and harmony of color, of sweetness and beauty of form, and leave the ultimate impression which it was the aim of the painter to produce to form itself upon our mind unbidden.

"It stands to reason that in the art of one who based himself so entirely upon knowledge, we must not look for the fire of faith, nor for the flame of enthusiasm. There is no mystery in such an art save the mystery of its hold upon ourselves. In respect of one human thing only does Leonardo not only not aim at exact knowledge, but consciously avoids it, because he knew it to be unattainable by the processes of pure reason; and that one thing is the nature of woman.

"There is no love story in the life of Leonardo da Vinci, the love-child. That is why all the women that he paints are inscrutable. Mona Lisa, St. Anne, the Madonna of the Rocks, are all silent questions that no logic can answer; all that logic can do is to establish their unanswerableness. And that is all that Leonardo, faithful to his allegiance to reason, and to reason alone, has tried to express in his painting of women. So, if we like, we may sum up Leonardo's women, and try to guess their secret; but in the end the wisdom of the painter in his knowledge of his fellow-men will triumph once more, for we shall come away admitting that we do not know, and never shall, for he did not know it either, and cannot tell us anything that he does not know."

Shock Turns Hair White.

Yes, either a sudden shock or a prolonged nervous strain can turn the hair white.

In the latter case, the whole system becomes run down and the particles of pigment which color the hair are gradually eaten up by the little white corpuscles in the blood, presumably because the starved body cannot afford to keep up unnecessaries.

The sudden shock, on the other hand, has the effect of violently disturbing the heart. This, of course, upsets the whole system, and one of the effects of the shock is that the hair is slowly robbed of its coloring matter.

There are authentic cases where the whiteness has been sudden, but such are much rarer than is generally supposed, and science is doubtful as to exactly how this "turning in the night" effect is produced.

It is, however, generally thought that violent emotional shock—akin to "shell-shock"—has in some freakish way expelled the color particles from the hair itself.

Scorpion and Spiders.

The repulsive scorpion, which looks something like a lobster, but is really a member of the spider family, is very common in Arizona. The scorpion's sting is in its tail. It stings by throwing the slender part of the abdomen up and forward over the back and striking forcibly with it, the curved spine or sting being driven with sufficient force to make the wound. All spiders are more or less venomous, and some of the smaller ones are more formidable than the larger. Prof. Vochrs, of the University of Arizona, found the greatest number of wounds was caused by a small black spider only an inch long, some times known as "the black widow."

At York Factory.

About the coldest temperature recorded by York Factory or Fort Churchill on the Hudson Bay is 55 degrees below zero. The atmosphere is very raw, and biting winds blow across from the Labrador Sea. Colder temperatures are experienced in the Barren Lands. During the winter months the temperature would range from zero to fifty below zero. One ice has been known to be more than seven feet thick at Hudson Bay.—Reece H. Hague, in Adventure Magazine.

Boat Sank Itself.

The gasoline fishing boat George Rudolph of Newellton, Shelburne county, Nova Scotia, presumably "wound" herself to the bottom of the Bay of Fundy a few weeks ago, when her trailing drag, operated by a gasoline engine, caught on the bottom, and the boat was hauled stern first downward. Her engine was left in the water, and were rescued about twenty minutes later by another fisherman.

PUPPY OR CALF LOVE.

Exziest Thing In World to Laugh at Serious Crisis.

Calf-love is the easiest thing in the world to laugh at.

That it is less easy to endure was revealed by a boy criminal recently in a strange letter to the magistrate who tried him. In that document he described the stages of his downfall from the moment when he realized that his first love could not be reciprocated.

Happily most boys and girls recover from the shock of their first love affair without ruining themselves in the process. Yet no one who has studied the adolescent mind can doubt for a moment that, as a rule, the struggle is a severe one.

The first love affair is far more serious, far more anxious, than people who have grown up are ready to admit.

Nor are its dangers made less, or its burdens lightened, by the attitude commonly adopted towards the victim by those who should be his friends. Almost invariably they laugh and deride when a word of sympathy is most eagerly desired and most urgently needed.

The wretched boy or girl is shamed into silence about an event of the emotional life which, after all, is perfectly natural, and must, in any case, exercise a profound influence on his or her whole attitude to life.

Thousands of marriages are ultimately spoiled by that cynicism which brands first love as a joke or dilates on its grotesque and sadly character. The wild freshness of the dawn is but seldom recovered once it has been lost.

This does not mean, of course, that boys and girls are to be encouraged in sentimentalism.

But their feelings, however exaggerated, must be accepted as genuine for the moment and honored as such. They must be taken, if not seriously, at least respectfully.

If they feel that their strange emotional experience is being understood and regarded sympathetically, their own common sense will come to the rescue. If, on the contrary, they are laughed at, common sense becomes the ally of emotionalism and the enemy of their critics.

Thus, instead of being "laughed out of" their folly, they are very effectually laughed into it. Their best weapon of defence is struck, as it were, from their hands.

France's Birth Rate.

The high cost of living, lack of apartments and homes for newly-married couples, selfishness, too many women employed in industry, and too much pleasure, are the general causes assigned for the alarming decrease of the birth rate in France, now the lowest in Europe.

This is a condition that has been accentuated by the war, which took many men to the front, whence many never returned. The war also created new conditions of living for women, gave them work, made them independent, and disinclined to marry readily, and less inclined to have children.

This situation is set forth at length by the National Alliance for Increasing French Population.

In comparison with 1,780 years ago, each French marriage brings less than two children, instead of four children, whereas England's marriages bring nearly three children instead of nearly five 100 years ago. In Germany in 1841, the average marriage brought four and forty-four hundreds children as compared to two and two-tenths in 1921.

The birth decrease does not result from high mortality, or relatively fewer marriages. France's population of 39,000,000 in 1922, is practically that of 1900. The number of marriages for that year was 299,000, or about the average since then, with the years following the war showing a larger number, which is now returning the average. For 1921, the number of marriages was 454,000, and for 1922 it was a little higher.

Until 1914, the number of births averaged 800,000 yearly. During several of the war years the number dropped to fewer than 400,000. The first six months of 1922 showed 386,726, as compared to 421,180 for the first six months of 1921.

It is argued that if France is to hold her place in the world and send emigrants to her colonies, she must pass laws, as already proposed in Parliament, to give the voting majority to married men, reduce family taxes, and give bonuses for each child born. Already, families enjoy lowe railway fares.

Kuwett.

Kuwett is situated at the head of the Persian Gulf, and is famous as yet only as a proposed terminus of the Bagdad Railway, of which we have heard so much during recent years. It is an ordinary Arab border town, built of mud and plaster, with few houses more than one story high, and only the sheik's palace making any pretensions to elegance. One room in this palace is distinctly bizarre and is a way arabesque. It has a large and beautiful Persian rug on the floor, and a ceiling covered with many chromes of foreign notabilities, in gilt frames, picked up in the Bombay bazars. Only an Arab would have thought of that place for the pictures.

Swedish Carbons.

Carbons of high grade are, it is said, obtained from tar by a Swedish process. The powdered carbon is pressed to form electric light carbons, or larger sizes for electro-chemical work. The method is based on the fact that finely divided carbon makes up a large percentage of the composition of tar and is what gives the black color, this being due to the carbon particles suspended in an otherwise dense and transparent yellowish brown liquid.

Deserts cover twenty-four per cent. of the earth's surface.

Knows the Orient.

One of the best versed of Western diplomats in Oriental affairs is Giacomo de Martino, recently the representative of the Italian Government in London. De Martino has been transferred as ambassador to Japan, probably on the principle that his Oriental training was wasted at St. James. In going to Tokio he is returning to the scenes of his youth, as his father was minister plenipotentiary in that capital and had previously been charge d'affaires at Peking. De Martino spent several years in Egypt as secretary of legation and later as minister during Kitchener's control, when he became a special friend of the British field marshal. During the war of Italy with Turkey and the two Balkan campaigns, which immediately preceded the great international conflagration, De Martino was principal under Secretary of State and chief lieutenant of the then Minister of Foreign Affairs, the Marquis of San Giuliano. He was one of the delegates to the Peace Conference of Versailles and spent eighteen months as ambassador at Berlin before being transferred to London.

Useful Animals.

Every nationality must have its own answer to the question, "What animal is most useful to man?" In some parts of the world the camel is invaluable, in others the reindeer, while even the donkey is an absolute treasure in many countries.

Speaking generally, members of the ox tribe are the most useful animals. They are friends to all sorts of peoples. They give us milk and beef for food, the hides make leather, the horns and hoofs make handles for cutlery, and even the blood is used for many purposes. And in some countries the ox is used as a draught animal.

For centuries, of course, the horse has been the "friend of man," but with the advent of mechanical traction he has largely lost his place as an absolute necessity.

Are We Losing Our Teeth?

There is, unfortunately, little room for doubt on this question. In spite of the fact that our teeth are attended to as never before, they are gradually going, a fact amply proved in the late war, when hardly a recruit in the Old Country came up to the standards of the Old Army, so far as his teeth were concerned.

Not only are our teeth feeble and liable to early decay, but our jaws are getting too small to take their full complement of teeth. The reason is that nature invariably dispenses with the unnecessary. With soft foods, perfectly cooked and easily digested, our teeth are no longer an absolute necessity to our livelihood, and so they are gradually tending to vanish.

The lyre bird of Australia is a mimic, in the early morning hours it is at its best, duplicating the whistle of a locomotive, the barking of a dog, the call of a magpie, and the buzz of a circular saw in varying tones.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Mr. A. O. Norton, the millionaire Jack Manufacturer, of Boston, who recently died, was a great "booster" for Zutoo Tablets.

He suffered from headaches from childhood and when he found Zutoo Tablets stopped these headaches in a few minutes and left no bad effects, he commenced recommending them to his family and friends. In an unsolicited letter Mr. Norton says in closing:

"My family use them when ever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give perfect relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

Hay Bay Trappers Win.

For some years Joseph Kent and his son, John, have claimed ownership of about 800 acres of marsh land opposite their farm and have kept others off it, or attempted to do so. The matter was brought to the attention of the Department Game and Fisheries and instructions were given by the Department to their Warden at Ottawa, Mr. J. W. Coffee, whose jurisdiction extends over this district to prosecute Mr. John Kent for trapping on these marsh lands without a license. He was brought before Police Magistrate Ruttan on the 10th of May last, and fined $40.00 and costs. Kent appealed to County Judge and the case was tried at Napanee Division Court, on the 29th ult., before Judge Madden, who reserved judgment. Judgment has now been given, dismissing the appeal and confirming conviction. W. S. Herrington, K.C., for Appellant; W. G. Wilson, for Department of Game and Fisheries.

ADOLPHUSTOWN HAD CELEBRATION.

Descendants of United Empire Loyalists There in Large Numbers.—Church 131 Years Old.—Mr. J. B. Allison Suggests Plan for Next Year's Celebration.

Adolphustown, a spot made historic by the United Empire Loyalists, was the mecca of Labor Day for many of their descendants, when a demonstration was held there glorifying the patriotic stand taken by their forefathers, and renewing their faith and pride in the British connection.

The early part of the day was devoted to games, and after the picnickers had partaken of a repast provided by the ladies of Adolphustown in a large tent, addresses on the service, sacrifices and loyalty of the U. E. Loyalists were delivered by J. S. Johnson, the Warden of Lennox and Addington; Hon. Nelson Parliament, C. J. Sexsmith, M.P.; W. S. Herrington, K.C.; A. M. Rankin, M.P.P.; W. C. Mikel, K.C., and Rev. R. A. Whattam.

One hundred and forty years ago the eighth of this month seven shiploads of Loyalists set sail from New York City for the Bay of Quinte district, arriving on June 16th, 1784, the ancestors of many present at the celebration being in that party.

The meeting was held in the building that was erected by the U. E. Loyalists as a Methodist Church in 1792, the first of its kind in the Dominion. It is not now used as a church, but the sturdy old beams still look as if they were good for another 131 years. The chairman, J. B. Allison, who has lived in that neighborhood for eighty years, made a strong appeal to the audience to help make the celebration at Belleville next June of the 140th anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada, a great success and suggested a pilgrimage to Adolphustown as one of the features of next year's celebration.

Address and Presentation.

On Tuesday evening, August 28th, the members of the Women's Auxiliary of Hawley, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Jackson, and presented Miss Pansy Jackson with a clock. The following address was read by Mrs. W. Hill:—

Dear Pansy,—We, the members of the Hawley Women's Auxiliary, regret very much to hear of your departure from among us. We have always found you to be a most willing and faithful worker and ready to help in any way for the benefit of the Society. As Secretary of our Branch for a number of years, we can truly say you have done your part. Feeling as we do we could not allow you to depart without asking you to accept this clock as a slight token of our appreciation for your faithful work.

Our feelings of pleasure exist in the fact that you are not going far away, and that we will be privileged to meet you often.

In conclusion, we wish you a life of health, prosperity, and that the choicest blessings both spiritual and temporal may attend you in your new home.

Signed on behalf of the Hawley W. A.

Once More the Orioles "Stepped Out".

On Saturday, September 1st, the Strathcona Orioles motored to Adolphustown and met the home team, at 3 p.m. This being the first game for these girls this year, the Orioles were in the lead at the end of the ninth innings, but they certainly show the making of a good team for next year. After the game we were invited to lunch on Smith's lawn, and very much regret that we could not accept the invitation given us by the team to stay for the evening. The Adolphustown girls showed themselves to be sports when they followed 1923 rules (under-hand pitching),—nothing out of date with those girls. Any team wanting to play a game with "good sports" challenge the "Adolphustown Invincibles".

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Fifty years ago two young people found that they could not live without each other and wisely concluded to join their lives together and meet the contingencies of life. These young people were George A. Blewett, of Napanee, then a rising merchant, and the happy bride was a daughter of Peter Minaker, of Greenbank, County of Prince Edward.

Mr. and Mrs. Blewett were surprised on Monday evening last when a noisy crowd of friends stormed their home, entered, and had an evening of congratulations.

Napanee Lodge No. 86, I. O. O. F. came like the storm of the East, bearing gifts, and read the following address :—

Napanee, Sept. 10th, 1923.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Blewett,
Napanee, Ont.

Dear Friends,—We are reminded to-day of the few Jubilee wedding anniversaries permitted to mortals,—evidently only a select few in the community have this wonderful experience and it is fitting on such occasions to note th event. Hence our surprise visit here to-night to bring congratulations; your golden good cheer and with many wishes that you may be spared many useful years full of wedded bliss and the enjoyment of the best that life can give.

We bring a slight token as a moment of our friendship and of the good wishes we here express, and ask you to accept it that it may often serve as a reminder of many pleasant memories which this day recalls.

Bro. Blewett's membership in Napanee Lodge No. 86, I. O. O. F., has been noteworthy for his regular attendance and faithful performance of his duties, and we recall with pleasure the many occasions on which Mrs. Blewett has assisted in making our social evenings in the lodge a success.

Yours very sincerely,

Signed on behalf of Napanee Lodge No. 86, I. O. O. F.

Long may George and his popular wife remain among us, brightening the lives of all who know them, and showing forth a living example of happy married life with which heaven has so far blessed them. Congratulations from everybody, is joined in by The Napanee Beaver newspaper staff.

If you love the beautiful, you will love to take a trip through our picturesque Bay of Quinte, and such a trip awaits you per Str. Brockville to Picton Fair on Wednesday, Sept. 19th. Picton Fair, always good, will this year be Better than Ever. Take a day unto yourself and enjoy this wonderful day's outing. 37a

Hartman.—Mr. Snare, of Renfrew, arrived Saturday evening to visit his friends. He was a resident of this village about forty years ago.—Miss Ellen Lucas and daughter, Ruby, spent last week end in Deseronto with her relatives.—Mr. and Mrs. L. Hartman motored to Odessa on Sunday last to visit their relatives.—Quite a number from this vicinity are taking in the Napanee Fair this week.

Mail Orders promptly filled at Wallace's Drug Store.

Rose's.—Mr. and Mrs. Merton Mallow and family have returned home, after attending the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.—Mrs. Harold Mc-Donald is visiting friends at Rochester, N.Y.—Nicholas Holt, of Toronto, is visiting at G. W. Pappe's.—Harold Northmore is attending the Collegiate Institute at Napanee. — Mrs. H. D. Wemp and Miss Gwen Wemp spent a few days recently with friends at Seeley's Bay.—Mr. Putnam, of Toronto, made a short visit at H. D. Wemp's, recently.—Miss Gwen Wemp left last week to enter a hospital in New York as nurse-in-training. Her mother accompanied her. — Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sitzer and Mrs. Chapman spent last Sunday with friends at Trenton.—School has re-opened, with Mr. Garvey and Miss Linda as teachers of the Continuation School, and Mr. Earle and Miss Halpenny of the Public School. — Miss Myrtle Brown is teaching school at Adolphustown. — Melville Hamilton has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Hoselton.—The Girls' Baseball Team played a game here on Saturday of last week with the Wilton team, the score being in favor of the visiting team.—Mr. and Mrs. Hall visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Hall, of Essex, Ont.

Mail Orders promptly filled at Wallace's Drug Store, Napanee.

BELL ROCK.

Threshing has been the order of the day, but the recent heavy rain storm has changed the programme.—A sad event occurred on Monday, the 3rd inst., when Winnie Ethel, wife of Ivan Reynolds, was accidentally drowned in a deep swimming pool. The deceased was a bright little fellow and a favorite at all who knew him.—Mrs. Earl Martin, formerly of Verona, has taken charge of the Bell Rock school.—Recent visitors, Gerald Timmins, Kingston, and Patrick Timmins, Wilkins; Mrs. A. Tuttill, Moscow, at J. Timmins'; Mrs. E. M. Yerke, Kingston, at J. Pomeroy's, "Oak Hill Farm".

NEWBURGH.

Changes have taken place during the past week, which will effect the life of the village considerably. Mr. McNeely, our Reeve, has sold his home to a Mr. Smith, of Toronto, and Mr. Anson McKeown has sold his corner block, which includes a dwelling house and hall, in which the Free Methodists meet, to Mr. Geo. Wartman. Mr. McKeown will move into the house he bought from the late Mrs. James Thomson estate.

Division Court was held here on Saturday afternoon, at which Judge Lavell, of Kingston, presided. There was one case, from Colebrook, Mc-Knight vs. Galbraith, in which the plaintiff, McKnight, claimed damages for an alleged break of agreement relative to the use of a sugar bush. Judgment reserved.

Mr. Hamilton, of Goderich, spent some days with his friend, Thos. Cameron. These two men shared together the hardships of the trail of '98 to the Klondyke, and both knew intimately Robert Service, author of the book, "The Trail of '98", and declare that the story is no exaggeration.

Mrs. Joyce, of Rochester, and her little daughter, Dorothy, are visiting Mrs. Joyce's mother, Mrs. Alice Madden.

Mr. Ross Dougan is putting up a building in which to house the postoffice, just one block north of its present location. The reason for the move is that Mr. Quail in whose building the postoffice is at present, needs the room to extend his store. The change will not inconvenience the public.

As an evidence of good times, Mr. Harry VanLuven, of Napanee, has sold three pianos in Newburgh within a short time. So we are not only poetical but musical.

There are a number of people inquiring when the S. S. County Convention is to be. Mr. MacGregor announced the time when he was here, but most people have forgotten, and are anxious to see a programme. As it is to be in Newburgh, housewives want to know when to put the pot on to boil, so that none may go hungry away. Unless the physical well being is looked after, the mental and spiritual does not thrive.

A goodly number from here attended the Napanee Fair on Tuesday to witness the baseball game between Lennox and Addington, and came home very well satisfied with the result.

Mr. James Milligan and wife, and Mrs. Rawley, of Fulton, N.Y., have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Z. Milligan in the village.

Miss Norma Ballard, of Napanee, has been the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Wartman.

Mr. and Mrs. Herd, Oshawa, have been on a motor trip through the county, and called on Mrs. M. Kellar, during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kellar and Mr. and Mrs. George Kellar were visitors at Mrs. Kellar's, during the week.

Mrs. Winters, with her sister, Mrs. Wiles, have been in attendance at the Toronto Fair, and visiting friends at Newcastle and Orono.

Mrs. Milligan has been enjoying a visit at her daughter's, at Martinsburg, N.Y., and attended Lowville Fair.

Mr. J. Switzer and family have the occupancy of the old Remo homestead now owned by Mr. W. Hogan. Mr. Switzer and son, Floyd, are employed with the C. N. R.

Miss Mildred Winter is in attendance of Kingston Business College.

Rev. Mr. Griffith, who has had charge of the Free Methodist Mission, bade farewell on Sunday last, after a very successful three-year term. His place will be taken by Mr. Bray, of Toronto. On Tuesday evening the members of the congregation and other friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Griffith to bid adieu to Mr. and Mrs. Griffith before leaving for their new home in Uxbridge.

KINGSFORD.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Walker and family, Sharp's Corners, and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Hewitt spent Sunday at J. N. Hewitt's.—Mr. and Mrs. J. McAlister spent a few days with friends at Millbrook.—Mr. and Mrs. H. Mc-Connell, Deseronto, spent a few days at James Hewitt's.—Several attended the kitchen shower at W. T. Winter's, for his daughter, Mrs. J. Sullivan, on Friday evening.—Mr. and Mrs. Kane at J. Jaynes', on Sunday.—Mrs. J. McAlister, Kingston, spent a few days at her home here. — Mr. Robt. McMurray is spending some time with his many relatives here and at his sister's, Mrs. D. Winter.—Miss Kate Sexsmith, of Watertown, is holidaying for a month with her parents and friends.—Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Brown, of Schenectady, N.Y., were recent visitors at T. Defoe's.—Albert Sampson and bride, of Toronto, were down on a visit to his parents and other friends. On Saturday evening a reception was given them, when about forty friends spent an enjoyable evening.—Messrs. Alex. and Jas. Hewitt spent a week in Picton, with relatives.

It is a beautiful drive to Picton. Why not take it and visit Picton Fair? It will surely mean a day well spent. You will see and hear much to delight you. Good Music; Races; Ball Games; Midway; Exhibits of Horses; Exhibits of Cattle; Exhibit of Poultry; Exhibit of Vegetables; Exhibit of School Work; Exhibit of Fine Arts, and Good Exhibits of all other lines that go towards the making of a First Class Fair. The Royal Canadian Horse Artillery Band of the Permanent Force of Canada will be in attendance all four days and nights, September 18th, 19th, 20th and 21st. 37a

LENNOX ANNUAL FAIR

Held at Napanee Sept. 11th, 12th, 13th, Was Most Successful

His Honor the Lieut.-Governor of the Province, Col. H. Cockshutt, Opened the Exhibition

After the unsettled and stormy weather which has prevailed for some time past, it was a relief and pleasure to all concerned to find that the weather on Tuesday morning, the opening day of the Fair, was all that could be desired—the sun was shining, the temperature just right and the streets and driving track free from dust and in excellent condition.

The number of entries of exhibits in all classes was greater this year than formerly and more attractively displayed.

Tuesday was Children's Day, and on that day Public School pupils of town and county were the guests of the President, Directors and other officers of the Lennox County Fair, and were admitted to the grounds free of charge, and they had just a lovely time, even if the Midway attractions failed to materialize. The kiddies met at the Armouries at one o'clock p.m., and headed by the Boy Scouts, with their Bugle Band, marched to the Driving Park.

At 1.30 p.m., Col. H. Cockshutt, the Lieut. Governor of Ontario, arrived to formally open the exhibition. He was received on the platform especially built for the occasion, and tastefully decorated with potted plants. W. S. Herrington, K.C., in a few well chosen words, introduced J. S. Johnston, President of Lennox County Fair Association, and Warden of the County, to His Honor the Lieut. Governor. Mr. Johnston then read the address of welcome and presented it to His Honor. Col. Cockshutt's address in reply was short, comprehensive and most suitable to the occasion and the sentiments expressed were endorsed by all who heard him. He accentuated the fact that Canada was an agricultural country and was dependent upon the farmers for its prosperity. But he said it must not be overlooked that the other classes of citizens and other industries were necessary to use and manufacture the products produced by the farmers. The community spirit must prevail to produce prosperity.

The entries in all classes of horses, cattle, sheep and pigs were greater than in previous years, and for quality it is doubtful if they could be surpassed anywhere in the province. The poultry house attracted very large crowds and the specimens exhibited were of a high order of merit. There was only one display of motor cars, under canvas, that of the McLaughlin Company. The lack of buildings for housing of cars and machinery no doubt accounts for this; but the management will probably overcome this difficulty in time. In the past year they spent over a thousand dollars on buildings.

The Palace looked very nice and bright with its lovely display of flowers which charmed the beholders, and the exhibitors deserve great credit for the skill and care expended to produce such a wonderful collection of exquisite bloom. There was also a good showing of fruit. The booths this year looked very attractive. Following is a list of the exhibitors : Ladies' Fancy Work; Haines' Shoe House, Napanee; Mason & Co., Pianos, etc., Toronto; Fine Art Exhibit, H. VanLuven, Pianos, etc., Napanee; The Rabinos, Co. Ltd., Napanee; Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Health Dept., representative Allan Simpson, Napanee; Bowman's Bread, Buns, Cake, Butter and Preserved Fruit; Spencer & Son, Mixing Machines, Napanee; Douglas & Co., Napanee, demonstrating Du-Ko; Percy Vine, Electric Fixtures, Napanee; Arthur A. Sills, Seaman-Kent Hardwood Flooring, Belleville; Hydro Electric Commission, Napanee; The Graham Company, Men's Clothes and Furnishings, Napanee.

The Napanee Citizens' Band provided excellent music each day during the fair, and the R. R. A. of Kingston, gave good exhibitions of horsemanship, daily.

A baseball match, County of Lennox and Addington versus Napanee. Napanee went down to defeat. Score 10 to 4.

BABY SHOW.

The event of the evening was the Baby Show, and as always in the past there was a large attendance—only this year the crowd was a little bit bigger. E. J. Sexsmith, M.P., acted as Chairman and did it well. The judges were Brig.-Gen., Hon. A. E. Kemp, M.P., and Nurse Leeder, head of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Kingston. There were about fifteen babies entered for the contest—only one pair of twins. Following is the pronouncement of the judges :—

An enjoyable evening was brought to a close by a fine concert given by Lieut. Betts and company.

WEDNESDAY.

The morning started out wet and gloomy and it looked as if the anticipated success of the second day of the Fair would be turned into a failure. Not so, however, for later on the clouds disappeared, the sun came out, and over twelve thousand people were on the grounds to enjoy the good things provided for their instruction, amusement and entertainment.

Many were surprised at the improvement in the number and quality of dairy cattle exhibited, and at the bright and cheerful appearance of the Palace. The fine exhibits in all classes and particularly the fine showing of horses attracted to or better than any in the province.

Unfortunately the High School Cadet Drill Competition billed to take place this afternoon did not come off as the Kingston Cadets defaulted. The trophy was a handsome and valuable silver cup donated by U. M. Wilson, C.C.A., which had to be won twice to become the property of the winner. The cup was won in 1921 by Kingston and in 1922 by Napanee. It is now the property of the Napanee Cadets.

An excellent concert was given in the Palace to-night and there was a large and appreciative audience present. The programme included the following well known artists, Miss Agnes Adie, soprano; Miss Winnifred Hargrax, elocutionist; Joe Williams, Comedian; Miss Brown, accompanist. The piano used was a Gerhard-Heintzman from the exhibit of H. L. VanLuven, Napanee.

BASEBALL.

A good game between the Davies Ball Team and the Athletics, both of Kingston, was played. Score 8 to 7, in favor of the Davies team.

THURSDAY.

The Fair was brought to a successful conclusion to-day, but again the kiddies were disappointed at the absence of the Midway. The Management of the Fair was not responsible for this shortcoming, as the contract with the show people was duly signed, and they were telephoned the Secretary on Sunday last that they would be here. With the foregoing exception everything went well during the three days of the exhibition, and there are no accidents to report.

The judging of single and double carriage horses and roadsters, both lady and gentlemen driven, took place in front of the Grand Stand this afternoon. Very highly creditable exhibits were in competition. The R. M. R. A. of Kingston, as usual, delighted the crowd with their clever performances. The horses shown were exceptionally good, as was the ball game.

Mr. Wilmot, of Wilmot & Chapman, Napanee, flew over the grounds during the afternoon, and attracted appreciative attention.

The prize list, of course, is not yet available for publication, but will appear in a later issue of The Beaver.

THE EXHIBITS.

The following special reports of some of the finest displays at the Fair will prove interesting reading and should repay readers for the time expended in their perusal :—

The Graham Company.

This enterprising firm have a most interesting exhibit of up-to-the-minute clothes and other necessities in the men's furnishing line. All the latest fashions are represented in overcoats, suits, shirts, collars, neckties, etc. You will always receive good value for your money at Graham's, and you will make no mistake in going to their handsome store, on Dundas Street, when you need anything in their line, either for work or dress occasions. No trouble to show goods and courteous and fair treatment to everyone. Always in stock 20th Century Brand Cambridge Clothes and other good makes. Forsythe Shirts, Arrow Collars, etc.

The J. J. Haines Shoe House.

As usual at the Napanee Fair one of the most attractive and interesting exhibits is that of The Haines Shoe Houses, who in addition to their commodious and up-to-date store in Napanee, have Shoe Houses in Picton, Falls and Belleville. Their booth is artistically arranged and shown to advantage in a fine array of travelling goods such as trunks of all kinds and sizes, travelling bags, etc. Then in footwear, all the latest shapes and sizes are shown, as well as rubbers, overshoes, and all that the most fastidious could desire in style and quality. No difficulty in finding the store—just look for the best looking boot and shoe store in town.

Percy Vine — Electric Display.

A very fine exhibit of National Electric Stoves and appliances is shown in the very attractive booth occupied by our newest and most energetic electrician. Included in the display are a number of handsome table lamps, electric irons, electric heaters, toasters, etc., and the prices of some are very reasonable. Mr. Vine installs private lighting systems for residences, factories, and farm houses and buildings. In town he is prepared to install electric systems and will make alterations and repairs. Prompt attention given to all orders and all work guaranteed. Send or leave orders at his shop, Market Square. Phone 367.

H. L. VanLuven.

The Gerhard-Heintzman Pianos and Phonographs exhibited in VanLuven's booth were much admired for their artistic appearance and for the exquisite tone of the music rendered during the fair. The Gerhard-Heintzman Piano used at the entertainments given in the Palace gave great satisfaction to the artists who performed on it and also to the audiences which contained many lovers of good music who were capable of judging. A fine stock of these splendid pianos will be open for inspection at the warerooms on the Market Square, at any time. You are invited to call.

The showers of late have made the fields look green again. — The sympathy of the neighborhood goes out to Mrs. Dempsey in the loss of young Percy, who died on Saturday while visiting at the home of Mr. John Clark, Napanee. While Mrs. Clark had not been in good health for some time she was able to be around and visit some, so the news of her death came as a shock to all. Besides Mrs. Dempsey two other children are left to mourn a departed mother, Mr. Arthur Clark and Mrs. Orval Hanley, Picton.—Mrs. Ed. Conger is spending a few days with her mother at Gananoque. — Mr. and Mrs. H. Martin entertained a number of friends on Sunday last. —Mrs. Jos. Hicks spent a few days in Toronto last week. Redgwell and Miss Neva Hambly were quietly married at the parsonage on Wednesday of last week, and went to Toronto Fair, returning home on Saturday evening, where a goodly number of friends were gathered to welcome them, and many handsome and useful presents were presented along with good wishes. Then, on Monday evening, the boys gave them a good chivari. After many good wishes for the young couple, and a lunch, the boys returned to their homes. — Messrs. Mr. and Mrs. Blewett were surprised on Monday evening last when a noisy crowd of friends stormed their home, and had an evening of congratulations.

Napanee Lodge No. 86, I. O. O. F., came like the wise men of the East, bearing gifts, and read the following address :—

Napanee, Sept. 10th, 1923.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Blewett,
Napanee, Ont.

Dear Friends,—We are reminded to-day of the few Jubilee wedding anniversaries permitted to mortals,—evidently only a select few in the community have this wonderful experience and it is fitting on such occasions to note th event. Hence our surprise visit here to-night to bring congratulations; we hope good health and with many wishes that you may be spared many useful years full of wedded bliss and the enjoyment of the best that life can give.

We bring a slight token as a memento of our friendship and of the good wishes we here express, and ask you to accept it that it may also serve as a reminder of many pleasant memories which this day recalls.

Signed on behalf of Napanee Lodge No. 86, I. O. O. F., has been noteworthy for his regular attendance and faithful performance of his duties, and we recall with pleasure the many occasions on which Mrs. Blewett has assisted in making our social evenings in the lodge a success.

BELL ROCK.

Threshing has been the order of the day, but the recent heavy rain storm has changed the programme.—A sad event occurred on Monday, the 3rd inst., when Winston, only son of Zara Reynolds, was accidentally drowned in an old mine pit. The deceased was a bright little fellow and a favorite.—Also to know him.—Mrs. Emil Martin, formerly of Verona, has taken charge of the Bell Rock school.—Recent visitors, Gerald Timmins, Kingston, and Patrick Timmins, Wilkison; Mrs. A. Till, Moscow, at J. Timmins'; Mrs. E. Yeske, Kingston, at J. Pomeroy's, "Oak Hill Farm".

NEWBURGH.

Changes have taken place during the past week, which will effect the life of the village considerably. Mr. McNeely, our Reeve, has sold his home to a Mr. Smith, of Toronto, and Mr. George A. Blewett has sold his corner block, which includes a dwelling house and hall, in which the Free Methodists meet, to Mr. Geo. Wartman. Mr. McKeown will move into the house he bought from the late Mrs. James Thomson estate.

Mr. Hamilton, of Goderich, spent some days with his friend, Thos. Cameron. These two men shared together the hardships of the trail of '98 to the Klondyke, and both knew intimately Robert Service, author of the book, "The Trail of '98", and declare that the story is no exaggeration.

Mrs. Joyce, of Rochester, and her little daughter, Dorothy, are visiting Mrs. Joyce's mother, Mrs. Alice Madden.

Mr. Ross Dougan is putting up a building in which to house the postoffice, just one block north of its present location. The reason for the move is that Mr. Quail in whose building the postoffice is at present, needs the room to extend his store. The change will not inconvenience the public.

As an evidence of good times, Mr. Harry VanLuven, of Napanee, has sold three pianos in Newburgh within a short time. So we are not only poetical but musical.

There are a number of people inquiring when the S. S. County Convention is to be. Mr. MacGregor announced the time when he was here, but most people have forgotten, and are anxious to see a programme. As it is to be in Newburgh, housewives are already busy with the mental and spiritual does not thrive.

A goodly number from here attended the Napanee Fair on Tuesday to witness the baseball game between Lennox and Addington, and came home very well satisfied with the result.

LENNOX ANNUAL FAIR

Held at Napanee Sept. 11th, 12th, 13th, Was Most Successful

His Honor the Lieut.-Governor of the Province, Col. H. Cockshutt, Opened the Exhibition

After the unsettled and stormy weather which has prevailed for some time past, it was a relief and pleasure to all concerned to find that the weather on Tuesday morning, the opening day of the Fair, was all that could be desired—the sun was shining, the temperature just right and the streets and driving track free from dust and in excellent condition.

The number of entries of exhibits in all classes was greater this year than formerly and more attractively displayed.

Tuesday was Children's Day, and on that day Public School pupils of town and county were the guests of the President, Directors and other officers of the Lennox County Fair, and were admitted to the grounds free of charge, and they had just a lovely time, even if the Midway attractions failed to materialize. The kiddies met at the Armouries at one o'clock p.m., and headed by the Boy Scouts, with their Bugle Band, marched to the Driving Park.

At 1.30 p.m., Col. H. Cockshutt, the Lieut. Governor of Ontario, arrived to formally open the exhibition. He was received on the platform especially built for the occasion, and tastefully decorated with potted plants. W. S. Herrington, K.C., in a few well chosen words, introduced J. S. Johnston, President of Lennox County Fair Association, and Warden of the County, to His Honor the Lieut. Governor. Mr. Johnston then read the address of welcome and presented it to His Honor. Col. Cockshutt's address in reply was short, comprehensive and most suitable to the occasion and the sentiments expressed were endorsed by all who heard him. He accentuated the fact that Canada was an agricultural country and was dependent upon it for the basis for its prosperity. But he said it must not be overlooked that the other classes of citizens and other industries were necessary to use and manufacture the products produced by the farmers. The community spirit must prevail to produce prosperity.

The entries in all classes of horses, cattle, sheep and pigs were greater than in previous years, and for quality it is doubtful if they could be surpassed anywhere in the province. The poultry house attracted very large crowds and the specimens exhibited were of a high order of merit. There was only one display of motor cars, under canvas, that of the McLaughlin Company. The lack of buildings for housing of cars and machinery no doubt accounts for this; but the management will probably overcome this difficulty in time. In the past year they spent over a thousand dollars on buildings.

The Palace looked very nice and bright with its lovely display of flowers which charmed the beholders, and the exhibitors deserve great credit for the skill and care expended to produce such a wonderful collection of exquisite bloom. There was also a good showing of fruit. The booths this year looked particularly well. Following is a list of the exhibitors : Ladies' Fancy Work; Haines' Shoe House, Napanee; Mason & Risch, Pianos, etc., Toronto; Fine Art Exhibit; H. VanLuven, Pianos, etc., Napanee; The Robinson Co., Ltd., Napanee; Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Health Exhibit; Napanee Planing Mills, Napanee; Douglas & Co., Napanee, demonstrating Du-Ko; Percy Vine, Electric Fixtures, Napanee; Arthur A. Sills, Seaman-Kent Hardwood Flooring, Belleville; Hydro Electric Commission, Napanee; Graham Company, Men's Clothes and Furnishings, Napanee.

The Napanee Citizens' Band provided excellent music each day during the fair, and the R. M. R. A. of Kingston, gave good exhibitions of horsemanship, daily.

A baseball match, County of Lennox and Addington versus Napanee. Napanee went down to defeat. Score 10 to 4.

The event of the evening was the Baby Show, and as always in the past there was a large attendance—only this year the crowd was a little bit larger. E. J. Sexsmith, M.P., acted as Chairman and did it well. The judges were Brig.-Gen., Hon. A. E. Ross, M.P., and Nurse Leeder, head of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Kingston. There were about fifteen babies entered for the contest—only one pair of twins. Following is the prolonouncement of the judges :—

An enjoyable evening was brought to a close by a fine concert given by Lieut. Betts and company.

WEDNESDAY.

The morning started out wet and gloomy and it looked as if the anticipated success of the second day of the Fair would be turned into a failure. Not so, however, for later on the clouds disappeared, the sun came out, and over twelve thousand people were on the grounds to enjoy the good things provided for their instruction, amusement and entertainment.

Many were surprised at the improvement in the number and quality of dairy cattle exhibited, and at the bright and cheerful appearance of the Palace. The fine exhibits in all classes and particularly the fine showing of horses were equal to or better than any in the province.

Unfortunately the High School Cadet Drill Competition billed to take place this afternoon did not come off as the Kingston Cadets defaulted. The trophy was a handsome and valuable silver cup donated by U. M. Wilson, C.C.A., which had to be won twice to become the property of the winner. The cup was won in 1921 by Kingston in 1922 by Napanee. It is now the property of the Napanee Cadets.

An excellent concert was given in the Palace in the afternoon and there was a large and appreciative audience present. The programme included the following well known artists, Miss Agnes Adie, soprano; Miss Winnifred Hargrave, elocutionist; Joe Williams, Comedian; Miss Brown, accompanist. The piano used was a Gerhard-Heintzman from the exhibit of H. L. VanLuven, Napanee.

BASEBALL.

A good game between the Davies Ball Team and the Athletics, both of Kingston, was played. Score 8 to 7, in favor of the Davies team.

THURSDAY.

The Fair was brought to a successful conclusion to-day, but again the kiddies were disappointed at the absence of the Midway. The management of the Fair was not responsible for this shortcoming, as the contract with the show people was duly signed, and they even telephoned the Secretary on Sunday last that they would be on hand. The attendance and attention everything went well during the three days of the exhibition, and there can be no doubt but that the fair is a success.

The judging of single and double carriage horses and roadsters, both lady and gentlemen drivers, took place in front of the Grand Stand this afternoon, very highly creditable turnouts were in competition. The R. M. R. A. of Kingston, as usual, delighted the crowd with their clever performances. Horse races to-day were exceptionally good, as was the baseball game.

Mr. Wilmot, of Wilmot & Chapman, Napanee, flew over the grounds during the afternoon, and attracted appreciative attention.

THE EXHIBITS.

The following special reports of some of the finest displays at the Fair will prove interesting reading and should repay readers for the time expended in their perusal :—

The Graham Company.

This enterprising firm have a most interesting exhibit of up-to-the-minute clothes and other necessities in the men's furnishing line. All the latest fashions are represented in overcoats, suits, shirts, collars, neckties, etc. You will always receive good value for your money at Graham's, and you will make no mistake in going to their handsome store, on Dundas Street, when you need anything in their line, either for work or dress occasions. No trouble to show goods and courteous and fair treatment to everyone. Always in stock 20th Century Brand. Cambridge Clothes and other good makes. Forsythe Shirts, Arrow Collars, etc.

The J. J. Haines Shoe House.

As usual at the Napanee Fair one of the most attractive and interesting exhibits is that of The J. J. Haines Shoe Houses, who in addition to their commodious and up-to-date store in Napanee, have Shoe Houses at Smiths Falls and Belleville. Their booth is artistically arranged and shows to advantage is a fine array of travelling goods such as trunks of all kinds and sizes, travelling bags, etc. Then in footwear, all the latest shapes and sizes are shown, as well as rubbers, overshoes, and all that the most fastidious could desire in style and quality. No difficulty in finding the store—just look for the best looking boot and shoe store in town.

Percy Vine — Electric Display.

A very fine exhibit of National Electric Stoves and appliances is shown in the very attractive booth occupied by our newest and most energetic electrician. Included in the display are a number of handsome table lamps, electric irons, electric heaters, toasters, etc., and the prices of some are very reasonable. Mr. Vine installs private lighting systems for residences, factories, and farm houses and buildings. In town he is prepared to install electric signs and will make alterations and repairs. Prompt attention given to all orders and all work guaranteed. Send or leave orders to his shop, Market Square. Phone 367.

H. L. VanLuven.

The Gerhard-Heintzman Pianos and Phonographs exhibited in VanLuven's booth were the much admired for their artistic appearance and for the exquisite tone of the music rendered during the fair. The Gerhard-Heintzman Piano used at the entertainments given in the Palace gave great satisfaction to the artists who performed on it and also to the audiences which contained many lovers of good music who were capable of judging. A fine stock of these splendid pianos will be found for inspection at the warerooms on the Market Square, at any time. You are invited to call.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Fifty years ago two young people found that they could not live without each other and wisely concluded to join their lives together and meet the contingencies of life. These young people were George A. Blewett, of Napanee, then a rising merchant, and the happy bride was a daughter of Peter Minaker, of Greenbush, County of Prince Edward.

Mr. and Mrs. Blewett were surprised on Monday evening last when a noisy crowd of friends descended their dove-nest, and had an evening of congratulations.

Napanee Lodge No. 86, I. O. O. F., came like the wise men of the East, bearing gifts, and read the following address :

Napanee, Sept. 10th, 1923.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Blewett,
Napanee, Ont.

Dear Friends,—We are reminded to-day of your Golden Jubilee wedding anniversaries permitted few mortals,—evidently only a select few in the community have had the privilege of experience and it is fitting on such occasions to note the event. Hence our surprise visit here to-night to bring congratulations; we hope good cheer and much many wishes that you may be spared many us years full of wedded bliss and the enjoyment of the best that life can give.

We bring a slight token as a memento of our friendship and of the good wishes we here express, and ask you to accept it that it may often serve as a reminder of many pleasant memories which this day recalls.

Bro. Blewett's membership in Napanee Lodge No. 86, I. O. O. F., has been noteworthy for his regular attendance and faithful performance of his duties, and we recall with pleasure the many occasions on which Mrs. Blewett has assisted in making our social evenings in the lodge a success.

Yours very sincerely,

Signed on behalf of Naanee Lodge No. 86, I. O. F.

W. T. BAIRD,
Noble Grand.
H. SEYMOUR,
V. G.

Long may George and his popular wife remain among us, brightening the lives of all who know them, and showing forth a living example of happy married life with which heaven has so far blessed them. Congratulations from everybody, is joined in by The Napanee Beaver newspaper staff.

If you love the beautiful, you will love to take a trip through our picturesque Bay of Quinte, and such a trip awaits you per Str. Brockville to Picton Fair on Wednesday. The good Picton Fair, always good, will this year be Better than Ever. Take a day unto yourself and enjoy this wonderful day's outing. 37a

CAMDEN EAST.

We had a heavy rain on Sunday last, which did a lot of good to the land.—Dr. Stewart and wife, of Chicago, visited his cousin, Mr. Wellington Stewart, and family, on Thursday of last week.—Mr. Schuyler Lake, his daughter, Nellie, and his nephew's wife, Mrs. Henry Lake, all of Gananoque; Mrs. Daily Boyce, Odessa; her two daughters, Mrs. Midmore and Mrs. Vrooman, of Quobin, motored out Saturday last to visit their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hartman.—Mr. Shane, of Renfrew, arrived Saturday evening to visit his friends. He was a resident of this village about forty years ago.—Mrs. Ellen Lucas and daughter, Ruby, spent last week end in Deseronto with her relatives. —Mr. and Mrs. L. Hartman motored to Odessa on Sunday last to visit their relatives.—Quite a number from this vicinity are taking in the Napanee Fair this week.

Wemp's, recently.—Miss Wemp left last week to enter a hospital in New York as nurse-in-training. Her mother accompanied her.—Mr. and Mrs. Norman Rikley and Mrs. Chapman spent last Sunday with friends at Trenton.—School has re-opened with Mr. Garvey and Miss Linch as teachers of the Continuation School, and Mr. Earle and Miss Halpenny of the Public School. — Miss Myrtle Brown is teaching school at Adolphustown. — Melville Hoselton has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Hoselton.—The Girls' Baseball Team played a game here on Saturday of last week with the Wilton team, the result being 7-6 in favor of the visiting team.—W. BELL ROCK.

Threshing has been the order of the day, but the recent heavy rain storm has changed our programme. A sad event occurred on Monday, the 3rd inst., when Winston, only son of Zera Reynolds, was drowned in a cistern in an old mine pit. The deceased was a bright little fellow and a favorite of all who knew him. Earl Madden, formerly of Verona, has taken charge of the Bell Rock school. Recent visitors, Gerald Timmins, Kingston, and Patrick Timmins, Wilkinson; Mrs. A. Pill, Moscow; A. J. Timmins; Mrs. E. M. Yenke, Kingston, at J. Pennyroy's, "Oak Hill Farm".

NEWBURGH.

Changes have taken place during the past week, which will effect the life of the village considerably. Mr. McNeely, our Reeve, has sold his home to a Mr. Smith, of Toronto, and Mr. Anson McKeown has sold his corner block, which includes a dwelling house and hall, in which the Free Methodists meet, to Mr. Geo. Wartman. Mr. McKeown will move into the house he bought from the late Mrs. James Thomson estate.

Division Court was held here on Saturday afternoon, at which Judge Lavell, of Kingston, presided. There was one case, from Colebrook, McKnight vs. Galbraith, in which the plaintiff, McKnight, claimed damages for an alleged break of agreement relative to the use of a sugar bush. Judgment reserved.

Mr. Hamilton, of Goderich, spent some days with his friend, Thos. Cameron. These two men shared together the hardships of the trail of '98 to the Klondyke, and both knew intimately Robert Service, author of the book, "The Trail of '98", and declare that the story is no exaggeration.

Mrs. Joyce, of Rochester, and her little daughter, Dorothy, are visiting Mrs. Joyce's mother, Mrs. Alice Madden.

Mr. Ross Dougan is putting up a building in which to house the postoffice, just one block north of its present location. The reason for the move is that Mr. Quail in whose building the postoffice is at present, needs the room to extend his store. The change will not inconvenience the public.

As an evidence of good times, Mr. Harry VanLaven, of Napanee, has sold three pianos in Newburgh within a short time. So we are not only poetical but musical.

There are a number of people inquiring when the S. S. County Convention is to be. Mr. MacGregor announced the time when he was here, but most people have forgotten, and are anxious to see a programme. As it is to be in Newburgh, housewives want to know when to put the pot on to boil, so that none may go hungry away. Unless the physical well being is looked after, the mental and spiritual does not thrive.

A goodly number from here attended the Napanee Fair on Tuesday to witness the baseball game between Lennox and Addington, and came home very well satisfied with the result.

Mr. James Milligan and wife, and Mrs. Rawley, of Fulton, N.Y., are been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Z. Milligan in the village.

Miss Norma Ballard, of Napanee, has been the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Wartman.

Mr. and Mrs. Herd, Oshawa, have been on a motor trip through the county, and called on Mrs. M. Kellar, during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kellar and Mr. and Mrs. George Kellar were visitors at Mrs. Kellar's, during the week.

Mrs. Winters, with her sister, Mrs. Wiles, have been in attendance at the Toronto Fair, and visiting friends at Newcastle and Orono.

Mrs. Milligan has been enjoying a visit at her daughter's, at Martinsburg, N.Y., and attended Lowville Fair.

Mr. J. Switzer and family have the occupancy of the old Remo homestead now owned by Mr. W. Hogan. Mr. Switzer and son, Floyd, are employed with the C. N. R.

Miss Mildred Winter is in attendance at Kingston Business College.

Rev. Mr. Griffith, who has had charge of the Free Methodist Mission, bade farewell on Sunday last, after a very successful three-year term. His place will be taken by Mr. Bray, of Toronto. On Tuesday evening the members of the congregation and other friends met at the home of Mr. Frank Wales to bid adieu to Mr. and Mrs. Griffith before leaving for their new home in Uxbridge.

KINGSFORD.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Walker and family, Sharp's Corners, and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Hewitt spent Sunday at J. N. Hewitt's.—Mr. and Mrs. J. McAlister spent a few days with friends at Millbrook.—Mr. and Mrs. H. McConnell, Deseronto, spent a few days at James Hewitt's.—Several attended the kitchen shower at W. T. Winter's, for his daughter, Mrs. J. Sullivan, on Friday evening.—Mr. and Mrs. Kane at J. Jaynes', on Sunday.—Mrs. J. McAlister, Kingston, spent a few days at her home here.—Mrs. Robt. McMurray is spending some time with her many relatives here and at his sister's, Mrs. D. Winter.—Miss Kate Secksmith, of Watertown, is holidaying for a month with her parents and friends.—Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Powell, of Schenectady, N.Y., were recent visitors at T. Dafoe's.—Albert Sampson and bride, of Toronto, were down on a visit to his parents and other friends. On Saturday evening a reception was given them, when about forty friends spent an enjoyable evening.—Messrs. Alex. and Jas. Hewitt spent a week in Picton, with relatives.

It is a beautiful drive to Picton. Why not take it and visit Picton Fair? It will surely mean a day well spent. You will see and hear much to delight you. Good Music, Races, Ball Games; Midway; Exhibits of Horses; Exhibits of Cattle; Exhibit of Poultry; Exhibit of Vegetables; Exhibit of School Work; Exhibit of Fine Arts and Good Exhibits of all other lines that go towards the making of a First Class Fair. The Royal Canadian Horse Artillery Band of the Permanent Force of Canada will be in attendance all four days and nights, September 18th, 19th, 20th and 21st. 37a

Held at Napanee Sept. 11th, 12th, 13th, Was Most Successful

His Honor the Lieut-Governor of the Province, Col. H. Cockshutt, Opened the Exhibition

After the unsettled and stormy weather which has prevailed for some time past, it was a relief and pleasure to all concerned to find that the weather on Tuesday morning, the opening day of the Fair, was all that could be desired—the sun was shining, the temperature just right and the streets and driving track free from dust and in excellent condition.

The number of entries of exhibits in all classes was greater this year than formerly and more attractively displayed.

Tuesday was Children's Day, and on that day Public School pupils of town and county were the guests of the President, Directors and other officers of the Lennox County Fair, and were admitted to the grounds free of charge, and they had just a lovely time, even if the Midway attractions failed to materialize. The kiddies met at the Armouries at one o'clock p.m., and headed by the Boy Scouts, with their Bugle Band, marched to the Driving Park.

At 1.30 p.m., Col. H. Cockshutt, the Lieut. Governor of Ontario, arrived to formally open the exhibition. He was received on the platform especially built for the occasion, and tastefully decorated with potted plants. W. S. Herrington, K.C., in a few well chosen words, introduced J. S. Johnston, President of the Lennox County Fair Association, and Warden of the County, to His Honor the Lieut. Governor. Mr. Johnston then read the address of welcome and presented it to His Honor. Col. Cockshutt's address in reply was short, comprehensive and most suitable to the occasion and the sentiments expressed were endorsed by all who heard him. He accentuated the fact that Canada was an agricultural country and was dependent upon the farmers for its prosperity. But he said it must not be overlooked that the other classes of citizens and other industries were necessary to use and manufacture the products produced by the farmers. The community spirit must prevail to produce prosperity.

The entries in all classes of horses, cattle, sheep and pigs were greater than in previous years, and for quality it is doubtful if they could be surpassed anywhere in the province. The poultry house attracted very large crowds and the specimens exhibited were of a high order of merit. There was only one display of motor cars, under canvas, that of the McLaughlin Company. The lack of buildings for housing of cars and machinery no doubt accounts for this; but the management will probably overcome this difficulty in time. In the past year they spent over a thousand dollars on buildings.

The Palace looked very nice and bright with its lovely display of flowers which charmed the beholder, and the exhibitors deserve great credit for the skill and care expended to produce such a wonderful collection of exquisite bloom. There was also a good showing of fruit. The booths this year looked particularly well. Following is a list of the exhibitors : Ladies' Fancy Work; Haines' Shoe House, Napanee; Mason & Risch Pianos, etc., Toronto; Fine Art Exhibit; H. VanLaven, Piano, etc., Napanee; The Robinson Co., Ltd., Napanee; Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Health Dept., representative Allan Simpson, Napanee; Home-made Bread, Buns, Cake, Butter and Preserved Fruit; Spencer & Son, Milking Machines, Napanee; Douglas & Co., Napanee, demonstrating Du-Ko; Percy Vine, Electric Fixtures, Napanee; Arthur A. Sills, Seaman-Kent Hardwood Flooring, Belleville; Hydro Electric Commission, Napanee; The Graham Company, Men's Clothes and Furnishings, Napanee.

The Napanee Citizens' Band provided excellent music each day during the fair, and the R. M. A. of Kingston, gave good exhibitions of horsemanship, daily.

TUESDAY.

A baseball match, County of Lennox and Addington versus Napanee. Napanee went down to defeat. Score 10 to 4.

BABY SHOW.

The event of the evening was the Baby Show, and as always in the past there was a large attendance—only this year the crowd was a little bit bigger. E. J. Sexsmith, M.P., acted as Chairman and did it well. The judges were Brig.-Gen. Hon. A. E. Ross, M.P., and Nurse Leeder, head of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Kingston. There were about fifteen babies entered for the contest—only one pair of twins. Following is the pronouncement of the judges :—

An enjoyable evening was brought to a close by a fine concert given by Lieut. Betts and company.

WEDNESDAY.

The morning started out wet and gloomy and it looked as if the anticipated success of the second day of the Fair would be turned into a failure. Not so, however, for later on the clouds disappeared, the sun came out, and over twelve thousand people were on the grounds to enjoy the good things provided for their instruction, amusement and entertainment.

Many were surprised at the improvement in the number and quality of dairy cattle exhibited, and at the bright and cheerful appearance of the Palace. The fine exhibits in all classes and particularly the fine showing of horses were equal to or better than any in the province.

Unfortunately the High School Cadet Drill Competition billed to take place this afternoon did not come off as the Kingston Cadets defaulted. The trophy was a handsome and valuable silver cup donated by U. M. Wilson, C.C.A., which had to be won twice to become the property of the winner. The cup was won in 1921 by Kingston in 1922 by Napanee, and now the property of the Napanee Cadets.

An excellent concert was given in the Palace to-night and there was a large and appreciative audience present. The programme included the following well known artists, Miss Agnes Adie, soprano; Miss Winnifred Rogers, elocutionist; Joe Williams, Comedian; Miss Brown, accompanist. The piano used was a Gerhard-Heintzman from the exhibit of H. L. VanLuven, Napanee.

A good game between the Davies Ball Team and the Athletics, both of Toronto, was played. Score 8 to 7, in favor of the Davies team.

THURSDAY.

The Fair was brought to a successful conclusion to-day, but again the kiddies were disappointed at the absence of the Midway. The Management of the Fair was not responsible for this shortcoming, as the contract with the show people was duly signed, and they even telephoned the Secretary on Sunday last that they would be here. With the foregoing exception everything went well during the three days of the exhibition, and there are no accidents to report.

The judging of single and double carriage horses and roadsters, both lady and gentlemen drivers, took place in front of the Grand Stand this afternoon. Very highly creditable turnouts were in competition. The R. M. R. A. of Kingston, as usual, delighted the crowd with their clever performances. How many times they were exceptionally good, as was the case

Mr. Wilmot, of Wilmot & Chapman, Napanee, flew over the grounds during the afternoon, and attracted appreciative attention.

The Grand Community Ball in the Armouries last evening was a great success. Everybody seemed to have a good time.

The prize list, of course, is not yet available for publication, but will appear in a later issue of The Beaver.

THE EXHIBITS.

The following special reports of some of the finest displays at the Fair will prove interesting reading and should repay readers for the time expended in their perusal :—

The Graham Company.

This enterprising firm have a most interesting exhibit of up-to-the-minute clothes and other necessities in the men's furnishing line. All the latest fashions are represented in overcoats, suits, shirts, collars, neckties, etc. You will always receive good value for your money at Graham's, and you will make no mistake in going to their handsome store, on Dundas Street, when you need anything in their line, either for work or dress occasions. No trouble to show goods and courteous and fair treatment to everyone. Always in stock 20th Century Brand Clothes and other good makes. Forsythe Shirts, Arrow Collars, etc.

Be convinced that the other classes of citizens and other industries were necessary to use and manufacture the products produced by the farmers. The community spirit must prevail to produce prosperity.

The entries in all classes of horses, cattle, sheep and pigs were greater than in previous years, and for quality it is doubtful if they could be surpassed anywhere in the province. BABY SHOW.

The event of the evening was the Baby Show, and as always in the past there was a large attendance—only this year the crowd was a little bit bigger. E. J. Sexsmith, M.P., acted as Chairman and did it well. The judges were Brig.-Gen. Hon. A. E. Ross, M.P., and Nurse Leeder, head of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Kingston. There were about fifteen babies entered for the contest—only one pair of twins. Following is the pronouncement of the judges :—

Best Baby Boy—3 months to 1 year —1st, Marshall A. Rombough; 2nd, Schuyler Smith.

Class A.—Special for Twins—John Orchard and James Robert Grange.

Best Baby Boy—12 to 18 months—Cameron Ezra Clark.

Best Baby Girls—3 months to 1 year—1st, Annie Marie Smith; 2nd, Thelma Whitesmith.

Best Baby Girl—12 to 18 months—1st, Margaret Young; 2nd, Geneva Walsh.

An enjoyable evening was brought to a close by a fine concert given by Lieut. Betts and company.

WEDNESDAY.

The morning started out wet and gloomy and it looked as if the anticipated success of the second day of the Fair would be turned into a failure. Not so, however, for later on the clouds disappeared, the sun came out, and over twelve thousand people were on the grounds to enjoy the good things provided for their instruction, amusement and entertainment.

Many were surprised at the improvement in the number and quality of dairy cattle exhibited, and at the bright and cheerful appearance of the Palace. The fine exhibits in all classes and particularly the fine showing of horses were equal to or better than any in the province.

Unfortunately the High School Cadet Drill Competition billed to take place this afternoon did not come off as the Kingston Cadets defaulted. The trophy was a handsome and valuable silver cup donated by U. M. Wilson, C.C.A., which had to be won twice to become the property of the winner. The cup was won in 1921 by Kingston in 1922 by Napanee, and now the property of the Napanee Cadets.

An excellent concert was given in the Palace to-night and there was a large and appreciative audience present. The programme included the following well known artists, Miss Agnes Adie, soprano; Miss Winnifred Rogers, elocutionist; Joe Williams, Comedian; Miss Brown, accompanist. The piano used was a Gerhard-Heintzman from the exhibit of H. L. VanLuven, Napanee.

AUTOMOBILE HITS BOY BREAKS BOTH HIS LEGS

Unfortunate Accident Occurs to Harry Milne Four Miles West of Odessa.

Harry Milne, aged twenty years, had both legs broken on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock when he was struck by a high powered automobile on the Kingston road about four miles west of Odessa. The lad was rushed to the Kingston General Hospital in James Reid's motor ambulance. When examined by X-ray it was found that the bones in both legs had been broken above the knee and close to the hip. It is thought that unless complications set in, the lad will recover.

The injured lad lived with Fred Smith, a farmer who resides on the Provincial Highway West of Odessa. He is a home boy and had only been with Mr. Smith for a short time. The lad had gone over to the Smith home for the purpose of getting Mr. Smith a drink of water and was in the act of crossing the highway when the motor car struck him and knocked him to the ground. The car was only a few feet from the boy when the driver caught sight of him crossing the road and applied his emergency brake, and by so doing he certainly saved the life of the lad. When the car was brought to a stand-still, the driver picked up the boy and did everything in his power until help arrived. Dr. Munroe, Odessa, was called and he ordered the lad removed to the Kingston General Hospital.

People who were near-by at the time state that the car driver was in no way responsible for the accident, as the auto was not travelling at a very fast rate of speed.

When Dr. Munroe reached the scene he found that there was considerable broken glass in the boy's head and neck. It is thought that the fender struck the boy and the glass which cut him was out of the head light.

JAPAN MISSION OF THE CANADIAN METHODISTS.

Founded in 1873, when Rev. Davidson MacDonald, M.D., and Rev. George Cochran, pastor of the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, were set apart for Japan and first began to teach the English Bible in the former Hermit Empire, the Japan Mission of the Canadian Methodists is to-day in a critical condition, following the disaster.

Whatever be the fate of missionaries and mission buildings, it is certain that the congregations which have been built up through the half century have been struck down and scattered by the succession of earthquake, fire, flood and typhoon.

One hundred preaching places, 2 young men's clubs, a Bible store, 3 day nurseries, 8 dormitories, 2 orphanages and 7 night schools were operated directly by the field force of Canadian men and women. Their college, Kwansei Gakuin at Kobe, with 6 Canadian professors and a Canadian, Dr. C. J. L. Bates, as president, has 1,000 students and this year had to refuse admission to 1,200 more, owing to lack of accommodation. The social service work in East Tokyo, begun only four years ago, had already been honored by a gift from the Imperial Household. Eleven missionaries engaged in evangelistic work were directing 60 native helpers and 15 Bible women and kindergarten teachers.

More important still, the Japan Methodist Church, which was created by the union of the stronger congregations built up by Canadian and American Methodists, had 2 conferences, 235 native pastors and evangelists, 19,276 members, 33 self-supporting churches, 587 Sunday Schools with 42,800 scholars.

How much of this great achievement has been wiped out will only be known when letters from leaders on the ground are at hand to supplement the press dispatches. The native church had almost reached the stage of complete self-support. The mission has been maintained by funds from Canada. A number of the Japanese laymen had given large sums to church support and missionary extension in recent years, and as they were men in business, the extent of their losses will largely determine their ability to reconstruct unaided the fabric of the national Church.

The Methodist Church in Canada had proposed to celebrate this fall the departure of its first two missionaries to a foreign land. It begins to look as if the jubilee will have to consist to some degree in a fresh beginning, certainly in an attempt to relieve the present emergency."

OBITUARY.

Norman J. Stormes.

On Wednesday morning, Sept. 5th, Norman J. Stormes passed to his last rest, at his home at the Arlington Hotel, Deseronto. He was 75 years of age, and had been ailing for the last seven months, until Saturday last, when he took worse. His death was very peaceful, as he appeared to fall into a sleep without pain or struggle. Deceased was a native of Violet for nearly 61 years, then moved to Tyendinaga Reserve, and resided there as a farmer for eleven years, then moved his family to Deseronto where he has resided with his son-at the Arlington Hotel. Mr. Stormes was greatly respected by all who knew him. He was a gentle devoted husband and loving father.

Mr. Stormes was twice married, his first wife being Catherine Richardson, of Bicknell's Corners, to whom three children were born, but only two now survive, one son, William, of Burt, N.Y., and one daughter, Anna, now Mrs. W. P. Sherman, Watertown, N.Y. His second wife was Flora Thompson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, of Camden, to whom three children were born, but only one now survives, Alex. E., the manager of the Arlington Hotel. Besides there are four grandchildren and one great-grandchild. His brothers are Nelson Stormes, of San Francisco, Cal.; William H. Stormes, of Enterprise; Manuel Stormes, of Odessa, and two sisters, Mrs. Geo. Pringle, Belleville, and Mrs. Joseph Ward, Black Rock, N.Y. These brothers and sisters are the survivors of a family of fourteen who reached maturity.

The funeral took place on Friday, Sept. 7th, the service being conducted in the Methodist Church at 1 p.m. A very impressive sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Harrison, Pastor of the Methodist Church; Rev. A. H. Creegan, Priest of the English Church of Tyendinaga Reserve, and Rev. W. C. Richardson, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church. The pall bearers were Mayor McCullough, H. Howard, M. Hunt, R. Geddess, A. Provins, H. McConnell. Flowers received from relatives and friends were, wreath from the family; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Foster; flowers,—Mrs. John Stormes and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. Adams and family, Messrs. McHardy, Miss Keitha Purvis. The body was placed in Violet cemetery in the family plot. The family have the sympathy of the whole community in their great loss of a kind husband and loving father.

FOURTEEN MILLIONS LOST IN YEAR'S FOREST FIRES.

Canada's bill for damages sustained by reason of forest fires during the past five years averages $14,500,000 annually. The number of forest fires averaged 5779 a year and the causes of this shocking display of vandalism were nine times in ten human recklessness. Campers accounted for 21 per cent of all these fires; settlers burning slash started 22 per cent; lightning 10 per cent, and railways 9 per cent. The figure charged to railways is, however, an unfair index of responsibility. In the first place, practically all fires started, or said to be started, from railway lines are instantly reported. This is not true of campers and settlers and lightning fires. Again, the majority of railway fires, being quickly detected, are quickly put out so that as timber destroyers the railway fires have fallen to a minor position.

The problem of land clearing fires started by settlers and running into the green timber is one of the most aggravated and complex. Settlers in newly developed districts must use fire to clean up the debris and naturally wish to choose hot and dangerous weather when burning conditions are best. This inevitably means that for the clearing of farms Canada has paid a tremendous forfeit in destroyed timber. Much has been done, however, to make the process of land clearing safe by issuing permits for burning and supervising the operation through officers of the Forest Services.

The Canadian Forestry Association has repeatedly pointed out that the wood-using industry of Canada accounts for a national income of 500 million dollars a year and cannot continue indefinitely unless every safeguard is thrown about the limited possessions of the Dominion.

SUPERSTITION AN OLD ONE.

Believe Groundhog Day Came From Early German Folklore.

We owe our superstition of groundhog day to the Germans, who hold the idea in regard to the badger. They have a saying, "The shepherd would rather see the wolf enter his stable on Candlemas Day than the sun." As the badger is little known east of the Mississippi river, the German belief as to the little creature's abilities as a weather prophet was transferred to the groundhog.

Pope Sabastian, in the fifth century, instituted Candlemas Day as a church festival. Pope Innocent XII., in a sermon, said, "Why do we in this feast carry candles? Because at the beginning of the pagan feast of Februalia the people walked about the city with lighted candles in memory of Ceres' search for her daughter Proserpine, stolen by Pluto. The holy fathers could not extirpate this custom, so they ordained that what was formerly done in honor of Ceres should be done now in honor of the Virgin."

As this was the last month of the pagan year and its name comes from the Latin "februare," to expiate, probably the people of those days were afraid Ceres, the goddess of the grain, might punish them for their sins by light crops.

Enthusiasm to Be Guided.

There are women who let all of their enthusiasm bubble to the top of their conversation, frothy women. Then there are women who let their enthusiasm settle at the bottom of their personality, like the dregs of lost youth. Absorbed in the routine of their own little lives they lose touch with the lives of others. As their circle of interests narrows, their enthusiasm dies. Finally, inevitably, they join that sad sisterhood of drab, colorless women—women who don't count.

But there are women whose enthusiasm neither bubbles to the top nor subsides to the bottom. Women who really let "themselves go." They are interested in other people and events outside of their own little lives, and this interest sparkles into enthusiasm. These are the women whom we call "vivid" and these are the women who make happy friendships and happy marriages, even when they are handicapped by lack of beauty, or lack of cleverness, or lack of style.—Exchange.

Monument to Birds.

Man's erratic gratitude towards birds is pointed out in the organ of the R.S.P.B. The first monument to a bird was put up in Utah, in gratitude to the gulls who stayed a locust plague, it states. The second, apparently, has to be credited to Germany. A memorial to commemorate the services of the carrier pigeons in the war has been erected in Merseburg, Prussia. But the gratitude of man cannot be reckoned on by the creatures to whom he is indebted. Airmen have constantly studied the flight of birds, in the hope of learning more of the secrets of flight, and are still advised to do so. "But," adds the writer, "one of the illustrated papers tells how the 'sportsmen' of a Spanish aerodrome amuse themselves by pursuing and shooting the great bustard from aeroplanes."

The Jaws of a Serpent.

Because the jaws of a snake are not consolidated, but united by elastic ligaments, so that they are capable of great expansion, the snake is able to swallow an animal bigger than itself. But the bones of the head are very hard, and it is a mistake for a man caught in the coils of an anaconda or a boa to try to smash the reptile's skull. Doctor Stepney, an expert, says that the thing for him to do under such circumstances, if he can possibly manage it, is to strike at the serpent's tail, which is the sensitive part of its anatomy. If sharply hit in that quarter it will relinquish its grip. But, in truth, a man has little chance in combat with one of those big snakes, unless he has a hunting knife.

The Wise in Council.

The men who have method, and is it were, a judicial intellect, are most valuable councillors. Without such men in a council, a great deal of cleverness goes for nothing; as there is nobody to see what has been stated and answered to what their deliberations tend, and what progress has been made. Such persons gather the sense of a mixed assembly, and suggest a line of action which may honestly meet the different views of the various members. They will bring back the subject matter when it has all but floated away, while the others have been looking for seaweed, or throwing stones at one another on the shore.—Sir Arthur Helps.

Microscope Inventor Unknown.

Although the early history of the microscope is obscure, the first microscope is generally believed to have been made by Zacharias Jansen, a Dutchman, in 1590. The invention is also attributed to Galileo about 1610. Microscopes with double glasses appeared soon after the discovery of the law of the refraction of light, about 1621; but it was not until the invention of the achromatic lens and its application to the microscope by Lister and others that the instrument became of positive value in the cause of science. The binocular microscope was invented by Prof. Riddell in 1851.

Nature's Wonderful Mechanism.

It has been estimated that the power developed by 1,000,000 Niagaras in 1,000,000 years would not equal the energy developed by the earth in a single second as it circles around the sun. And yet, so perfect is the mechanism that, flying around its axis at an equatorial speed of more than 1,000,000 miles an hour and around its orbit at more than 1,100 miles a minute, all the mundane influences of which astronomers know could not change the length of its day as much as a second in 100,000 years.

Mr. Stormes was twice married, his first wife being Catherine Richardson, of Bicknell's Corners, to whom three children were born, but only two now survive, one son, William, of Burt, N.Y., and one daughter, Anna, now Mrs. W. P. Sherman, Watertown, N.Y. His second wife was Flora Thompson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, of Camden, to whom three children were born, but only one now survives, Alex E., the manager of the Arlington Hotel. Besides there are four grandchildren and one great-grandchild. His brothers are Nelson Stormes, of San Francisco, Cal.; William H. Stormes, of Enterprise; Manuel Stormes, of Odessa, and two sisters, Mrs. Geo. Pringle, Belleville, and Mrs. Joseph Ward, Black Rock, N.Y. These brothers and sisters are the survivors of family of fourteen who reached maturity.

The funeral took place on Friday, Sept. 7th, the service being conducted in the Methodist Church at 1 p.m. A very impressive sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Harrison, Pastor of the Methodist Church; Rev. A. H. Creegan, Priest of the English Church of Tyendinaga Reserve, and Rev. W. C. Richardson, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church. The pall bearers were Mayor McCullough, H. Howard, M. Hunt, R. Geddes, A. Provins, H. McConnell. Flowers received from relatives and friends were, wreath from the family; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Foster; flowers, Mrs. John Stormes and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. Adams and family, Messrs. McHardy, Miss Keitha Purvis. The body was placed in Violet cemetery in the family plot. The family have the sympathy of the whole community in their great loss of a kind husband and loving father.

FOURTEEN MILLIONS LOST IN YEAR'S FOREST FIRES.

Canada's bill for damages sustained by reason of forest fires during the past five years averages $14,500,000 annually. The number of forest fires averaged 5779 a year and the causes of this shocking display of vandalism were nine times in ten human recklessness. Campers account for 24 per cent of all these fires; settlers burning slash started 22 per cent; lightning 20 per cent, and railways 26 per cent. The figure charged to railways is, however, an unfair index of responsibility. In the first place, practically all fires started, or said to be started, from railway lines are instantly reported. This is not true of campers and settlers and lightning fires. Again, the majority of railway fires, being quickly detected, are quickly put out so that as timber destroyers the railway lines have fallen to a minor position.

The problem of land clearing fires started by settlers and running into the green timber is one of the most aggravated and complex. Settlers in newly developed districts must use fire to clean up the debris and naturally wish to choose hot and dangerous weather when burning conditions are best. This inevitably means that for the clearing of farms Canada has paid a tremendous forfeit in destroyed timber. Much has been done, however, to make the process of land clearing safe by issuing permits for burning and supervising the operation through officers of the Forest Services.

The Canadian Forestry Association has repeatedly pointed out that the wood-using industry of Canada accounts for a national income of 500 million dollars a year and cannot continue indefinitely unless every safeguard is thrown about the limited possessions of the Dominion.

SUPERSTITION AN OLD ONE.

Believe Groundhog Day Came From Early German Folklore.

We owe our superstition of groundhog to the Germans, who hold the idea in regard to the badger. They have a saying, "The shepherd would rather see the wolf enter the stable on Candlemas Day than the sun." As the badger is little known east of the Mississippi river, the German belief as to the little creature's abilities as a weather prophet was transferred to the groundhog.

Pope Gelasius, in the fifth century, instituted Candlemas Day as a church festival. Pope Innocent XII., in a sermon, said, "Why do we in this feast carry candles? Because at the beginning of the pagan feast of Februalia the people walked about the city with lighted candles in memory of Ceres' search for her daughter Proserpine, stolen by Pluto. The holy fathers could not extirpate this custom, so they ordained that what was formerly done in honor of Ceres should be done now in honor of the Virgin."

As this was the last month of the pagan year and its name comes from the Latin "februare," to expiate, probably the people of those days were afraid Ceres, the goddess of the grain, might punish them for their sins by light crops.

Enthusiasm to Be Guided.

There are women who let all of their enthusiasm bubble to the top of their conversation, frothy women. Then there are women who let their enthusiasm settle at the bottom of their personality, like the dregs of last year's tea. Around in the routine of their own little lives they lose touch with the lives of others. As their circle of interests narrows, their enthusiasm dies. Finally, inevitably, they join that sad sisterhood of drab, colorless women—women who don't count.

But there are women whose enthusiasm neither bubbles to the top nor subsides to the bottom. Women who really let themselves go." They are interested in other people and events outside of their own little lives, and this interest sparkles into enthusiasm. These are the women whom we call "vivid" and these are the women who make happy friendships and happy marriages, even when they are handicapped by lack of beauty, or lack of cleverness, or lack of style.—Exchange.

Monument to Birds.

Man's erratic gratitude towards birds is pointed out in the organ of the R.S.P.B. The first monument to a bird was put up in Utah, in gratitude to the gulls who stayed a locust plague, it states. The second, apparently, has to be credited to Germany. A memorial to commemorate the services of the carrier pigeons in the war has been erected in Merseburg, Prussia. But the gratitude of man cannot be reckoned on by the creatures to whom he is indebted. Airmen have constantly studied the flight of birds, in the hope of learning more of the secrets of flight, and are still advised to do so. "But," adds the writer, "one of the illustrated papers tells how the 'sports-men' of a Spanish aerodrome amuse themselves by pursuing and shooting the great bustard from aeroplanes."

The Jaws of a Serpent.

Because the jaws of a snake are not consolidated, but united by elastic ligaments, so that they are capable of great expansion, the snake is able to swallow an animal bigger than itself. But the bones of the head are very hard, and it is a mistake for a man caught in the coils of an anaconda or a boa to try to smash the reptile's skull. Doctor Stephen, an expert, says that the thing for him to do under such circumstances, if he can possibly manage it, is to strike at the serpent's tail, which is the sensitive part of its anatomy. If sharply hit in that quarter it will relinquish its grip. But, in truth, a man has little chance in combat with one of those big snakes, unless he has a hunting knife.

The Wise in Council.

The men who have method, and as it were, a judicial intellect, are most valuable councillors. Without such men in a council, a great deal of cleverness goes for nothing; as there is nobody to see what has been stated and answered, to what their deliberations tend, and what progress has been made. Such persons gather the sense of a mixed assembly, and suggest a line of action which may honestly meet the different views of the various members. They will bring back the subject matter when it has all but floated away, while the others have been looking for seaweed, or throwing stones at one another on the shore.—Sir Arthur Helps.

Microscope Inventor Unknown.

Although the early history of the microscope is obscure, the first microscope is generally believed to have been made by Zacharias Jansen, a Dutchman, in 1590. The invention is also attributed to Galileo about 1610. Microscopes with double glasses, appeared soon after the discovery of the law of the refraction of light, about 1624; but it was not until the invention of the achromatic lens and its application to the microscope by Lister and others that the instrument became of positive value in the cause of science. The binocular microscope was invented by Prof. Riddell in 1851.

Nature's Wonderful Mechanism.

It has been estimated that the power developed by 1,000,000 Niagaras in 1,000,000 years would not equal the energy expended by the earth in a single second as it circles around the sun. And yet, so perfect is the mechanism that, flying around its axis at an equatorial speed of more than 1,000,000 miles an hour and around its orbit at more than 1,100 miles a minute, all the mundane influences of which astronomers know could not change the length of its day as much as a second in 100,000 years.

IN THREE WEEKS FROM BED TO WORK

Dreco Helps Put Wm. Walker on His Feet and Enables Him to Return to Work.

"For the past year my husband has been a sufferer from ulcers on the stomach," says Mrs. William Walker, of 158 Eileen Ave., Toronto, Ont. "His food lay in his stomach and would not digest and he frequently had severe vomiting spells. He was on a diet most of the time. This resulted in his entire system becoming run down. He had chronic constipation and was very restless and nervous.

"About three and a half weeks ago I brought him home a bottle of Dreco. He tried it and said that the first dose seemed to give him relief and eased his stomach of the terrible pains that gripped him. His bowels became more regular.

"We are both greatly pleased with the benefits Dreco has already produced. My husband's system is improving rapidly and after the severe trouble he has just passed through, he was able to return to work in three weeks' time.

"Mr. Walker is feeling very much stronger and I want him to continue this good medicine, as it is the first medicine we have found that goes right to the root of his trouble."

Dreco's beneficial action on the organs of digestion is remarkably quick and thorough. No matter how severe the case or how long standing, Dreco will help. This remedy contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs. It is made solely from herbs, roots, bark and leaves and has established an enviable reputation, earned only by genuine merit.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Napanee by Wallace & Co., and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

MRS. DAVIS NERVOUS WRECK

Tells Women How She Was Restored to Perfect Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Man.—"I cannot speak too highly of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a nervous wreck and just had to force myself to do my work. Even the sound of my own children playing made me feel as if I must scream. If they did not get away from me, I could not even speak right to my husband. The doctor said he could do nothing for me. My husband's mother advised me to take the Vegetable Compound and I started it at once. I was able to do my work once more, and it was a pleasure, not a burden. Now I have the bouncing baby and am able to nurse her and enjoy doing my work. I cannot say enough in recommending such a medicine, and any one seeing me before I took it, and seeing me now, can see what it does for me. I am only too pleased for you to use my testimonial."—Mrs. EMILY DAVIS, 721 McGee Street, Winnipeg, Man.

JONAH AS MOSLEM PROPHET.

Followers of Mohammed Regard His Tomb as Holy.

Close to the mound in Mesopotamia that once was Nineveh, is another, known to the Arabs as Nebi-Yunus, atop of which is the tomb of Jonah. How the followers of Mohammed came to adopt this perfectly good Hebrew as one of their own prophets is not clear, but the fact remains that his tomb has been a modern shrine for upward of a thousand years, observes E. Alexander Powell in Harper's Magazine.

The sarcophagus itself, covered with priceless Persian shawls, the offerings of pilgrims, stands in the centre of a square, vaulted chamber, the floor of which is considerably below the level of the ground, thereby giving the interior, which is lined with porcelain tiles of the "lost" shade of Persian blue, a most refreshing coolness after the sun glare outside.

Depending from the dome by a silver chain, so that they swing directly over the resting place of the intrepid Jewish seafarer, are several "swords" of the swordfish. When I asked the aged mullah who was in charge of the shrine what they were, he explained, in a tone which betrayed pity for my ignorance, that they were the teeth of the whale that swallowed Jonah!

Moorish Women's Dull Lives.

The Moorish woman's life is never very exciting or varied, and her many domestic duties tie her to the house. It is only on very special occasions that she is permitted to go out; many never go out at all. The lower-class women are sometimes forced to attend the markets, and are not so particular about covering their faces as the rules of their religion ordain. No strictly religious woman, however, will allow any man but her husband to see her face.

Some of the women are accomplished musicians and dancers, and sing to the accompaniment of their weird native instruments. This is in most cases their only form of amusement. Some of them are also experts at weaving and making tapestry.

Moorish women are seen at their best in the country districts, where one sees them going to a well for water with their earthenware pitchers gracefully poised on their heads or shoulders.

Lost Treasure of Montezuma.

According to legend, Montezuma, at the time of his overthrow in 1520 by Cortez and his Spanish followers, had, in addition to the colossal loot which the victors secured in gold and silver, fabulous wealth in gold stored away beneath his secret palace hidden in the plateau region of what is now the state of Nayarit, Mexico.

The loot, which the invaders secured, was stupendous, to be sure. But they missed the greatest single cache of gold in Mexico by disillusioning Montezuma in time for him to recall his messengers sent out to bring in the gold from the chief treasure house of his gods.

Cortez tortured and then murdered hundreds of the leading Aztecs in an effort to get from them the secret of the location of the great treasure place and palace. Failing to gain his information in that way, he spent several years scouring the western part of Mexico, but in vain.

Goodness Increases Wisdom.

Sir Henry Taylor three generations ago wrote "The Statesman." It remains a classic of English literature. This paragraph is a fair example:

"The correspondence of wisdom and goodness are manifold; and that they will accompany each other is to be inferred, not only because men's wisdom makes them good, but also because their goodness makes them wise. Questions of right and wrong are a perpetual exercise of the faculties of those who are solicitous as to the right and the wrong of what they do and see; and a deep interest of the heart in these questions carries with it a deeper civilization of the understanding than can be easily affected by any incitement to intellectual activity.

Settlers Introduced Honey Bees.

In reality all honey bees are wild, for they have been but little changed by man, both in structure and in habits.

It does not seem to be generally known that there were no honey bees in America before they were introduced by the early French, English and Spanish settlers.

The old histories contain, however, very few dates on the spread of the bees. The Indians called the swarms, which escaped and settled in hollow trees, English flies. They hated them as precursors of the whites, but they quickly learned to eat the honey.—Exchange.

Later, He Knew Better.

Loren was nine and Edmund five. One evening mother put them to bed rather early. About nine o'clock she heard a crash, and knew that one of them had fallen out of bed. As she ran upstairs she decided it was probably the younger, but upon entering his room she found him sleeping soundly. When she reached Loren's room, he was just clipping over the edge of the bed.

"Why, Loren!" she exclaimed, "I thought it was Edmund!"

A sleepy voice answered her. "So'd I, at first!"

Coloring Cotton Goods.

There are many different systems of producing high-grade colored cotton goods. Each system has its special advantage over other systems for the production of a certain line of goods. Each class of goods has a certain line of buyers which creates an increasing demand for this particular class. The various systems under which cotton colored goods are produced may be covered under the following list: Bleached goods, dyed goods, painted goods, stained goods, embossed goods, enameled goods, printed goods.—Dyestuffs.

"A wise man sometimes has to change his mind."

"True," replied Senator Sorghum. "But what call for his greatest wisdom is recognizing the psychological moment for making the change."

The Real Reason for A Pretty Skin

Why is it that one girl has a fresh smooth complexion and another a skin which is lifeless, dull and sallow? Is it a gift of nature or some guarded beauty secret?

It is a secret, but an open one in which every woman may share. It consists in knowledge of the care which keeps the skin free from clogging, poisonous accumulations. In the removal every day of all dirt, oil secretions, excess cold cream, powder and rouge.

To do this, use mild soap, massage it thoroughly into your skin and remove with many rinsings. The mildest soap you can choose for this purpose is Palmolive. It contains Palm and Olive oils. These rare oils are the mildest cleansers nature ever produced. They are the oils used by Cleopatra thousands of years ago.

Their combination in Palmolive produces a profuse, creamy lather which penetrates every tiny pore, removes every trace of dirt, oil, rouge and powder and leaves the skin smooth and fresh as a rose.

You can buy Palmolive Soap at all first-class dealers.

Palm and olive oils—nothing else—give nature's green color to Palmolive Soap.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Alexander Howe, who died September 14th, 1920.

Just when our days were brightest,
Just when our hopes were best;
God called him home to Heaven,
To his Eternal Rest.

He has gone across the river,
To the land of fadeless light,
Where the darkness never deepens,
Neither falls the shades of night.

Lovingly remembered by his Wife.

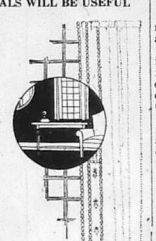
WHEN IT COMES TO DRESSING THE WINDOW FOR FALL AND WINTER, THESE MATERIALS WILL BE USEFUL

All our Fall purchases of Curtain Material are now being placed in stock. The great variety of designs and weaves is almost confusing, embracing as it does the leading manufacturers of Curtain Material of England, Scotland and America. The Scotch excel in Fillet Nets and Madras Muslins. The English makers of Coin Spot Muslins and Nottingham Curtain Nets have no competitors; while the American manufacturers of Voile, Scrim and Marquisette Curtain material are all supreme.



Scrims are priced at 15c., 20c. and 25c. per yard. 36 inches wide, in White, Cream and Ecru. Voilbs at 40c. and 45c. per yard. Plain Marquisette, 36 inches wide, at 39c., 40c., 45c., and 60c. per yard for 36 and 38 inches wide. See the new weave at 45c. and 60c. per yard. Dark Cream color only. These ought to interest the home makers of crochet lace or insertion.

English Nottingham Net is the old standby, always reliable, but the patterns are new and up-to-date. The prices are 30c., 35c., 45c., 50c., 60c., 75c. and $1.00 per yard, in White and Cream., 36, 40 and 45 inches wide.

Scotch Madras, the most satisfactory Curtain Material we have ever handled. To be sure of the best make ask for John Brown & Son's. We are sole agents for Napanee and vicinity. The prices for these newer colors are 35c., 45c., 50c., 60c., 75c., and 95c. per yard. 36 and 42 inches wide.

Combination colors of Cream ground with Rose Buds of Blue, Rose and Gold, at 95c. and $1.00. These have the Colvert finished edges. The Darker colors for over-drapes come in Blue, Green, Rose and Gold. 50 inches wide at $1.36, $1.50, $1.75 and $2.00 per yard. 36 inches wide at 85c., 90c. and $1.25, in Green, Grey and combination colors of Rose and Green, Brown and Rose, and the Madras over-drapes are very popular.

EMBROIDERY ON FELT MARKS THE SMARTEST FALL MILLINERY

Embroidery in Chenille, embroidery in Narrow Braid, embroidery in Silk and embroidery in shades that contrast or is nothing more than give another tone of the hat's own color. This is the trimming that some of the smartest of the new hats are using. These are in Soft Felts, very smooth in finish, and in small and medium size shapes that droop or roll as the mood takes them. Come in all the soft sport shades of Sand, Oakwood, Brown and Heather shades. Moderately priced at $7.00, $7.50 and $8.00.

SMALL POKE SHAPES ARE STILL THE VOGUE. VARIETY IS THE KEYNOTE.

Feathers used in divers ways, combined with "Poke" shapes. Hats of various trends, constitute a goodly share of what's what in Fall Millinery. At present we are showing a very extensive range of these better models which are exceptionally attractive when worn with fur-collar coats. The color range is an exceedingly attractive one, featuring all the varied shades of Sands and Browns, with Navy and Black for variation. See our range from $5.00 to $10.00.

CAMP VARTY.

Another season over at Camp Varty! This popular resort is situated on the southern shore of a lake named after an Indian Chief, whose tribe made this region their early home. Every summer people from far and near make this their summer home, enjoying real rest and relaxation.

"Saints' Rest" was again occupied by Rev. Farnsworth and family, Canifton, this being their nineteenth season here. Other pioneers are Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Connolly, Yarker, at "Dew Drop Inn", and the whole community of camps "do drop in", because the rocking chairs are inviting and the welcome is real.

Mr. and Mrs. George Finlay and family were at home at "Uneeda Rest", and Rev. Mr. Anderson and family, Selby, occupied "Parson's Paradise" for a couple of weeks.

This year there was a fine attraction at Mr. Breeze's cottage, where, every evening, the cottagers were delighted by concerts received by Radio Station C.F.B., and were greatly impressed by the memorial service for the late President Harding, when the hymns, prayers and address were clearly heard.

There is always something doing at Camp Varty during the week. From early morning hours till dusk the tennis court is occupied, while some are swimming, canoeing or fishing. Much interest is taken by all in soft ball, and an event of the camp life was the game won by the girls of Cedar Crest and Camp Varty from the club of Yarker and Colebrook.

On Sunday divine worship was held, the services being conducted by Revs. Farnsworth and Anderson. All the people of Camp Varty and some from Cedar Crest attended, and appreciated the services.

Among the visitors were: Mrs. Burr, New York; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Boyes, Mr. Smith and party, Kingston; Mrs. Oldham, Miss McFarlane, Yarker; Mrs. and Miss Welbanks, Newburgh; Mrs. Blakeley, Picton; Mrs. Lee and children, Yarker; Percy Huffman, Roy Judge, Carmen Patterson, Moscow; Hilly Nugent, Mr. and Mrs. Reg. LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor of The Beaver:

As another election is inevitable, owing to the death of Dr. J. P. Vrooman, member-elect, the duty of every voter, male and female, is to consider seriously the obligation of a good citizen and their eternal responsibility to their day and generation, and for all generations. If it be true that a government, a leader, a representative truly reflects the character and quality of the people whom they represent and by whom they were elected, let us take high ground and select only such as have the ability to lead combined with the qualities of statesmanship, a leader for whom we shall have no cause to blush, as he may be called to sit in the councils with the great minds of the day.

When H. G. Wells named the six greatest men in history he arrived at his conclusions by naming those who contributed most to humanity. Only the names of such live. Those who for selfish purposes and unrighteous ambitions, exploited their fellow men and appropriated to themselves everything that could be appropriated, are either forgotten or their memory held in contempt through all time. So I would appeal to those who are ambitious for the honors and emoluments of office to remember this great truth, "He that would be greatest among you let him be least of all and servant of all".

WEDDING BELLS.

Sullivan—Winter.

At high noon, on Wednesday, Aug. 29th, 1923, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. T. Winter, Selby, was the scene of a very pleasant event, when their eldest daughter, Hazel Margaret, was given in marriage to Mr. Jas. W. Sullivan, third son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sullivan, Corbyville. The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Mrs. Heck Mawdsley, St. Catharines, cousin of the bride, and took her place under an arch of evergreens, in the centre of which was suspended a large white wedding bell, where the groom awaited her. The wedding ceremony was then conducted by Rev. T. H. P. Anderson, Selby. The bride was beautifully gowned in white crepe de chene, while Miss Mary Kinnear looked very charming in pink organdy, carrying a basket of pink and white roses. Miss Jean Russell, prettily dressed in mauve crepe, assisted the bride, and Mr. Harold Henderson, cousin of the groom, acted as best man. The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond bar pin, to the flower girl a pearl ring, to the bridesmaid a string of pearls, and to the groomsman a pair of gold cuff links. The decorations of the house were carried out in pink and white, and was very appropriate for this charming event. A very dainty luncheon was served and partaken of by the large number of guests present. Beautiful and numerous were the wedding gifts, testifying to the good will and best wishes of a large number of friends and relatives. The young couple motored to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a navy blue suit with hat to match. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The Napanee Board of Education met in the Council Chamber on Monday evening, Chairman Alpine Woods presiding.

Members present—Messrs. P. Gleeson, H. Daly, C. A. Wiseman, G. W. Gibbard, J. M. Thompson, J. W. Robinson, Jas. Craig, Geo. Thompson, Dr. Willoughby, Dr. Milsap.

The minutes of the previous session were read and approved.

Applications for increases in salary were read from Miss Etta Harrison and Miss Jessie Mair. On motion the applications were referred to the Management Committee to bring in a recommendation at next meeting.

Acknowledgement from the Clerk of the Town of Napanee of the Secretary Treasurer's guarantee bond, was read and filed.

A notice of the receipt of the Government grant to the Collegiate Institute was read. The grant amounts to $16004.86 less contribution to superannuation fund, $438.25. Ordered filed.

A deputation from the Home and School Club and Public School Board of Deseronto, appeared before the Board in reference to Medical Inspection in the Public Schools.

The deputation were present to ask why the matter had not been gone on with. Dr. Willoughby answered. The deputation that the Deseronto members of the committee having resigned from the Committee, the number of schools left were not enough to warrant going on with the scheme and the matter remains in abeyance until the required number of schools are secured. It seems the Deseronto members objected over the appointment of a nurse. The former Secretary of the Committee addressed the Board, placing Deseronto's side of the case before the Board.

On motion the Board recommended the Committee of the unit to meet again and apply to the Department of Education for a nurse, at a salary which the unit can afford to pay.

Accounts of G. W. Morden, telephoning, $7.75; Advertising in Torch, $12.00; United Typewriter Co., $1.50; E. J. Pollard, $92.20; The Robinson Co., $3.82; J. L. Hooper, $7.20; F. L. Hooper, $6.30; R. J. Wales, $14.20; R. J. Wales, $5.10; Card's Garage, $3.75; H. W. Kelly, $17.45, were ordered paid.

Accounts of D. B. Wilson, $13.75; Boyle & Son, $77.45, were referred to the Finance Committee, with power to act.

On motion Mr. Thompson was authorized to make a sand playground at the West Ward School.

Dr. Morden reported that the Collegiate Institute was filled to capacity with some more to come, and that the staff appeared to be an excellent one and should do splendid work.

Board adjourned.

"How did you happen to quit sparking Miss Tootie Bender?" asked an acquaintance.

"Don't like music, that's why!" disgustedly replied an Oaark swain. "Every night I was over there, just as soon as I got seated old man Bender would come in, take down his infernal fiddle and begin to play. The longer he'd play the tireder I'd get, and then finally when only 'bout 'leven o'clock he'd begin to saw off 'Home, Sweet Home.' I couldn't stand any more of it and lit out. And I hain't going back there, neither!"

ONION'S VALUE AS MEDICINE.

For Many Ailments Nothing Gets as Good Results in Short Time.

The sweet Italian or the Bermuda onions are the ones to be eaten au naturel, their flavor being much more delicate than that of the common varieties. But onions are really sweet-eaters of the breath after the local effects have passed away, as they correct stomach disorders and carry off the accumulated poisons of the system. They provide a blood purifier that all may freely use, and do perfect work in constipation troubles. As a vermifuge the onion cannot be surpassed, and, eaten raw, will often check a violent cold in the head. One small onion eaten every night before retiring is a well-known doctor's prescription for numerous affections of the head, and is highly recommended for sleeplessness; it acts on the nerves in a soothing way, without the injurious effects of the drugs so often applied. The heart of an onion, heated and placed in the ear, will often relieve the agony of earache, while the syrup procured from sprinkling a sliced onion with sugar and baking in the oven will work wonders in a "croupy" child.

The White Rhinoceros.

The great white rhinoceros of the upper valley of the Nile has several remarkable characteristics which mark the difference between it and its smaller cousins, the ordinary rhinoceroses of Africa, Asia, and Malaysia. According to Dr. Herbert Lang, of the American Museum of Natural History, who recently returned after studying it in its native haunts, its lower lip is armed with a plate of horn as a protection against the sharp swordgrass upon which it feeds. Another strange thing is that the great horns which it carries on its nose—the front one of which is about twice as long as the rear one—do not grow from the bone but from the skin. This is continuous under the base of the horn. Dr. Lang says, in a bulletin of the Zoological Society, that the horns are attached to the skin by slender fibres and two days after the animal is dead they can be plucked off with ease. Therefore, these huge horns are not weapons of defence, but simply tools which the huge brute uses for pushing its way through the dense jungle. Dr. Lang also says the white rhinoceros is a sociable and inoffensive beast. It never attacks men and never quarrels with its own kind. It has the habit of taking a daily mud bath. There are only about 2,000 of them left, the others having been slaughtered, as were the American buffaloes.

Stanboulishi.

The late ex-Premier Stanboulishi, of Bulgaria, is the fifth statesman among those who participated in the Genoa conference of April, 1922, to meet a violent death. Three of the participants have been assassinated.

These were: Premier Narutowicz, of Poland; Foreign Minister Walter Rathenau, of Germany; Vaslav Vorovsky, Russian Soviet diplomatic agent (assassinated at Lausanne last month).

The fourth victim was ex-Premier Gounaris, of Greece, executed last fall by the Greek revolutionists.

It is noted further that the delegates to Genoa of most of the western powers have since been dropped from office by the respective Governments.

Life Rafts for Wharves and Docks.

Although ships have carried life rafts for many years, the only provision ordinarily made on docks and wharves for accidents is the common, round life preserver. These are inadequate at times, especially in the event of a gang-plank breaking and precipitating several persons into deep water at once. A California seaport, realizing this danger, has installed life rafts mounted on trucks for instant moving and launching. They are almost the size used by ships, but with a double deck body and a central cockpit for passengers, the whole being rigidly mounted on pontoons. The buoyancy of these rafts is sufficient to support a large number of persons.

Really Simple Recipe.

An old colored mammy was asked by a white neighbor just how she made such a wonderful gingerbread, and gave the following recipe:

"Oh, I jest puts a few handfuls o' flour in a bowl, then add a pinch o' salt, plenty o' aigs, little bit o' bakin' powder, some sugar, a lot o' ginger an' spices, fair-sized pitcher o' rich cream, lump o' butter and four plugs o' molasses."

"Glups!" was the surprised retort. "What in the world is a glup?"

"Why, you know, when you pours molassus outen a jug it goes 'glup, glup.' Well in makin' this gingerbread you lets it glup four times."

Harriet May Mills.

Recently appointed by Governor Smith as one of the hospital commission of the state's institutions, has done what but few ever do, she has resigned all positions in connection with political organizations that she may devote her entire time to the position she has accepted. Miss Mills is one of the New York's state's foremost women, and her recent act of clearing the boards so that she can devote her entire time to the trust assigned her, is certainly commendable and is a reflect of her noble character.

Americans at the Telephone.

One way to measure the extent of the relative use of the telephone in several countries is to determine the average amount of time per year actually spent by each inhabitant in telephone conversations. Statistics indicate that in the United States the average per capita time consumed in holding telephone conversations is 16 hours; in the Scandinavian countries, Denmark, Sweden and Norway, 12 hours; in Germany, five hours; in Great Britain, two hours; in France, one hour, and in Italy considerably less than one hour.

DENBIGH.

Mr. H. W. Edward, Principal of the Denbigh Continuation School during the last school term, left for Mallorytown, where he has been engaged to teach. He is succeeded here by Miss F. Danford, of Bonarlaw, who taught the same school last year. Miss Meadow has resumed teaching our Public School again.—Miss Margaret Adam left again for Renfrew to resume her studies in the Collegiate Institute.—Mr. J. Adams, of Peterboro', enjoyed a visit with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. Adams here.—Mr. J. Ryan, Masters Richard and John Mackay and Miss Mary Ann Mackay, of Read, were welcome guests of the latter's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Marquardt, last week.—Mr. John Perry, of North Bay, a former Denbigh citizen, also paid a short visit to former neighbors and old friends here.—One of the best properties in our village has changed owners; Mrs. E. Sallans has sold her estate to Mr. Wm. Slater, of Slate Falls, who has already taken possession, and has also been appointed to be our new Postmaster, Mrs. Ready having tendered her resignation as Postmistress.—Crops here are mostly considerably below the average this year, and nine farmers and farmer's sons left with the Farmers' excursions for Saskatchewan.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

"How did the accident occur?"

"Each expected the other man to be the careful driver."

No surgical operation is necessary in removing corns if Holloway's Corn Remover is used.

O'Brien (after a few puffs)—Are ye sure this do be a union-made cigar?

Clerk—I'll guarantee it.

O'Brien—Thin, begorra, it wor intinded for th' non-union throats.

Worms cause fretfulness and rob the infant of sleep, the great nourisher. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator will clear the stomach and intestines and restore healthfulness.

Mrs. Henpeck (sarcastically) — I suppose you've been to see a sick friend—holding his hand all evening.

Mr. Henpeck (sadly)—If I'd been holding his hand, I'd have made some money!

Praises This Asthma Remedy. A grateful user of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy finds it the only remedy that will give relief, though for thirteen years he had sought other help. Years of needless suffering may be prevented by using this wonderful remedy at the first warning of trouble. Its use is simple, its cost is slight, and it can be purchased almost anywhere.

Professor (with newspaper)—Isn't it wonderful, my dear? They've actually found in the tomb couches and chairs thirty centuries old and in good condition.

His Wife—I have always said, John, that it pays in the long run to get the best.

Miller's Worm Powders can do no injury to the most delicate child. Any child, or infant in the state of adolescence, who is infested with worms can take this preparation without a qualm of the stomach, and will find in it a sure relief and a full protection from those destructive pests, which are responsible for much sickness and great suffering to legions of little ones.

Myrtle—Did you return Jack's presents when you broke the engagement?

Madge—Of course not. Did you send Jack the silver cup you won when you resigned from the Golf Club?

Requisite on the Farm. — Every farmer and stock-raiser should keep a supply of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil on hand, not only as a ready remedy for ills in the family, but because it is a horse and cattle medicine of great potency. As a substitute for sweet oil for horses and cattle affected by colic it far surpasses anything that can be administered.

Mrs. Hannigan rushed into her husband's office.

"Oh, Timothy," she cried as she panted for breath, "I dropped my diamond ring off my finger and I can't find it anywhere!"

"It's all right, Florence," said Mr. Hannigan; "I came across it in my trousers pocket."

An Oil That Is Famous. — Though Canada was not the birthplace of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, it is the home of that famous compound. From here its good name was spread to Central and South America, the West Indies, Australia and New Zealand. That is far afield enough to attest its excellence, for in all these countries it is on sale and in demand.

There was a calf-made man whose plenteous pile was not altogether free from taint.

He employed an expensive architect to build him a lordly pleasure house.

"I think," remarked the man of plans, "that you had better have a southern exposure."

The man of money grew red and shuffled his feet.

"Not so much of the 'exposure'," he growled, "if you want to retain your contract."

An English sailor just home from a long cruise entered a bank in Hull and greeted the cashier with: "What cheer, matey! How's your business doing, hey?"

"Not very brisk at present," answered the clerk, "but I hope to see it improve shortly."

"That's 'ard!" said the tar sympathetically. He fished out a check for £100.

"How'll you have it?" asked the clerk.

The sailor hesitated a moment, then leaned over the counter and said in a hoarse whisper, "Well, matey, I don't want to be 'ard on yer. Gimme ten pun' now and I'll take the rest a pun' a week."

"HUNCH" WON FOR GAMBLERS.

Fly's Alighting on Number Unfortunate for Monte Carlo Casino.

Sailors have always been considered superstitious, and miners come close second, but neither of them are more sensitive to trifling omens than the deep-dyed-in-the-wool gambler.

A Monte Carlo paper tells that a fly alighted on No. 12 on the roulette table recently at a time when the players had suffered a persistent run of bad luck. The superstitious gamblers exchanged covert glances and searched their pockets for money with which to stake.

In a few moments the "middle dozen," that is to say, the numbers 13 to 24, was liberally covered with stakes. Then an elderly gambler arose and piled napoleons round the square on which the fly had alighted, thus backing the numbers from 10 to 17.

Less confident players staked small amounts on the "transversales." The ivory marble was sent spinning round the roulette wheel, there was a moment of suspense, and then the croupier announced the winning number, 13. But, what is far more extraordinary, the same number came up three times in succession. That fly cost the Casino $25,000.

A Giant Egg.

Marco Polo, in his travels in the east, tells of the roc, a bird so huge—so the legend runs—that it frequently carried off elephants with which to feed its young. It is probably the giant egg of the Aepyornis, an extinct bird, that may have inspired the legend of the roc. An Aepyornis's egg was recently found on the island of Madagascar, where it had probably lain for many centuries. "At the time of my departure from the island in 1916," writes a naturalist, "I was told that so far all searching had resulted in bringing to light only twelve eggs, all of which are resting in glass cases in museums throughout the world." Some of the first eggs that the natives discovered measure from two and a half feet to three feet in circumference, and hold as much as two gallons, or as much as from twelve to sixteen dozen ordinary hens' eggs would hold! The natives used the shells for containing drinks. The Aepyornis resembled an ostrich, though it must have been considerably taller; it had no wings suitable for flying. A leg of the bird in the British Museum measures about six feet. A perfect specimen of the Aepyornis's egg was recently sold for £200.

Flanders.

The Flemish form of the name Flanders is Vlaenderen, and the word means the country of the Flemish. The Flanders of the Middle Ages was a self-governing countship, that is, a country whose ruler was a count, but at times it was under the suzerainty of France, and sometimes under that of the empire which then included the Germanic states. The Flanders of the Middle Ages is to-day divided between France and Belgium, and two provinces in the western part of the latter country are known as East and West Flanders, the latter fronting on the North Sea. Practically all the country that formed the Flanders of the Middle Ages is low and level; hence it was commonly called the Low country.

The Round Robin.

The practice of the round robin is supposed to have originated among the officers of the French army. They adopted this system of protesting themselves in making known their grievances to the king and parliament. It was a case of preferring to "hang together rather than separately." The name "round robin" itself is generally considered of French origin. Some authorities derive it from the French "rond" round, and "ruban," meaning a ribbon. The word "ruban" probably had reference to the material on which the military protests were written. The round robin has become a common political practice in nearly every country in the world.

Proverbs of Primitive Peoples.

Proverbs of savage people are usually shrewd and pithy, as the following examples show. The Bantus say, "The thief catches himself"; the Wolofs, "Before healing others heal yourself." In Accra they say, "Nobody is twice a fool"; among the Ojibways, "The moon does not grow full in a day"; "The poor man has no friends." A Pashto proverb says, "A feather does not stick without gum." Others say: "A crab does not bring forth a bird," "Cross the river before you abuse the crocodile," "Truth is only spoken by a strong man or a fool."

WILSON'S CROSSING.

Threshing is completed in this vicinity for this year, and the farmers are all following the plough.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dowling, Mr. Anthony Kenny and family, Mr. Harold Dunn and family, Mr. Eugene Dillon and family and Mr. T. Donoghue and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Breen on Sunday.—Miss Sarah Wilson spent Saturday and Sunday at her home here.—Mr. and Mrs. E. Loucks', on Sunday. — Mrs. Thos. Scanlon spent Monday with Mrs. Wm. Dowling.—Miss Eileen Dillon at Mr. Thos. Breen's, the past week.—Mrs. R. Potter called on Mrs. M. H. Switzer, on Wednesday last.—Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Wagar spent Sunday at Mr. Leslie Wagar's, Fifth Lake.—The recent fires must have driven the deer out of the back country, as one passed by Mr. R. Potter's house one day recently, but as a matter of fact a hound was following close by.—Hurrah for the big Fair at Centreville, on Saturday next.

WHO FIRST FELT "LIKE A FIGHTING COCK"?

COCK-FIGHTING was born with the cocks.

But it is only 80 years ago that the first man felt "like a fighting cock!"

Now, he has brothers, sisters, neighbors, nieces, all over the world—all feeling "like a fighting cock!"

It happens this way: A person half sick with bad stomach, dull and heavy headache, takes Beecham's Pills just before going to bed. Immediately the Pills begin to harmonize the digestive and eliminative organs.

Consequently this person has a good night's sleep and arises in the morning with clear brain, bright eye, keen appetite, and full of energy for work and play.

It is now just 80 years since Beecham's Pills first began correcting disordered stomachs and stirring sluggish livers and bowels to natural activity — and feeling "like a fighting cock" is associated inseparably with Beecham's Pills, as the pills are with good health.

In Holy Wedlock.

A quiet marriage was solemnized on Tuesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, in St. Thomas' Church, Morven, when Miss Pansy Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson, Morven, was united in holy matrimony with Mr. Claude Herbert Knight, of Napanee, by the Rev. W. G. Swayne, Rector of Hallowell. The bride was very becomingly attired in a navy blue travelling suit, with a pretty grey hat. The young couple left on the afternoon train for New York and Atlantic City.

Y. P. U., Trinity Church.

The Young People's Union of Trinity Methodist Church re-opened for the fall season on Monday evening last. A large number of members, new members and visitors attended and enjoyed an excellent programme. After the opening exercises, the following officers were elected: Honorary President, Rev. W. R. Tanton; President, Mr. Limbert Graham; Vice-President, Mr. Frank Bell; Secretary, Miss Nina McKim; Treasurer, Mr. Edwin Baughan; Pianist, Miss Beatrice Baughan. A short programme was given: Piano solo, Beverley Thompson; vocal solo, Mr. LaSalle; recitation, Miss Leah Aylesworth; vocal solo, Mr. LaSalle. Addresses were given by the newly-elected officers, after which refreshments and games were enjoyed by all.

Wilton Imps Soft Ball.

Wilton Imps and Strathcona Orioles met on the Newburgh grounds for their play off, as this was their third game between the teams. The umpires were one from Bath and one from Newburgh, who certainly knew the game and played their positions well. The score was 24-29, in favor of the Imps, and they did not play their last innings as it was not needed. This game leaves the Orioles out of the league. Bath girls and Imps played a friendly game on Sept. 1st, at Bath. At the ninth innings they were tie, and after the tie was played off, left the score 19-20 for the Imps. The Imp's pitcher and 1st base girl at that time were attending Toronto fair, so they substituted those two places. On Sept. 8th the Sydenham girls and Imps played their first League game together on the Wilton grounds. The score was 11-13 for Sydenham. The Imps still played without their 1st base girl. The second game will be played at Sydenham at 3.30 p.m., on Sept. 15th. The Imps will play a friendly game with the Orioles at Centreville Fair, on Sept. 15th. A liberal prize is given both for the winners and losers.

Enterprise Methodist Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Sept. 12th, 1923, at 7 a.m., when Rosena Jean Davey, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Wager, of Enterprise, was married to Ray C. Covert, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Covert, of Enterprise, Rev. R. J. Merriam officiating. The bride was given away by her father. She was dressed in a beautiful suit of brown velour, with hat to match and looked very pretty. She wore a corsage bouquet of Premier roses, and was accompanied by Miss Helen Covert, dressed in a handsome suit of fawn tricotine.

The bride has always resided in Enterprise, and has been a most faithful worker and efficient helper in the Sunday School, Church and Choir.

The bridegroom was accompanied by Dr. Keith Davey, of Toronto.

After the ceremony the happy couple left by automobile for Toronto, Buffalo, and Rochester, to spend their honeymoon. When they return they will reside in Enterprise.

The value of the perfectly new clothing in these bales was $1009.15. Besides this, there was a quantity of second-hand clothing in first-class condition.

OBITUARY.

James Savage.

On Wednesday morning, August 29th, 1923, there passed away at his home, Piety Hill, one who was dearly beloved by all who knew him, in the person of James Savage, who was born on Amherst Island, February 16th, 1856. When about eight years of age he came with his family to Napanee, where he lived until 1884, when he went to the West, locating near Melita, Man. In the fall of 1910 he returned to Napanee to reside.

In September, 1919, he married Miss Lillian Carscallen, daughter of the late J. C. Carscallen. The following winter they spent in California, returning by the Rockies and the Canadian West.

For the last two years he had been a patient sufferer, consulting doctors in Toronto and elsewhere, but to no avail, and on Wednesday morning he went to be with his Maker.

The funeral, which was private, was held from his late residence, on Friday afternoon. Rev. W. R. Tanton, of Trinity Methodist Church, spoke thoughtfully and sympathetically to the sorrowing friends. Interment took place in Riverside cemetery.

There are left to mourn, besides his sorrowing wife, one sister, Mrs. J. A. Ketcheson, Melita, Man., and five brothers, Alex., of Detroit; David, of Buffalo; Lank, of Napanee; Henry, of Toronto, and William, of Los Angeles, California.

Ernest A. Fox.

The death occurred at the Kingston General Hospital, on Monday evening last, of Mr. Ernest A. Fox, a young and respected citizen of the town. Mr. Fox was ill for only a few days, appendicitis being the cause of his death.

The funeral took place from the residence of his father, Mr. Albert F. Fox, on Wednesday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, and was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. The services were conducted by Rev. A. H. H. Coleman, Vicar of St. Mary Magdalene Church, who spoke in a very fitting manner. The remains were taken to the Riverview cemetery for burial. The bearers were his six brothers, Messrs. George, Edgar, Percival, Clayton, Bertram and Stanley.

Besides his brothers, he leaves to mourn his loss, a sorrowing widow and three small children, Edwin, Lillias and Raymond; also his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Fox, and six sisters, Mrs. Sidney Hearnes, Burk's Falls; Mrs. Solomon York, Long Lake; Mrs. H. A. Storms, Napanee, and Bertha, Stella and Ethel, at home.

The floral tributes were beautiful, each one showing the respect in which Mr. Fox was held. Mr. Fox was well known in the vicinity, and the relatives are extended much sympathy in their sad bereavement by the people of the surrounding district.

A letter to The Nation throws more light on the minds of these legislators:

It became known several weeks ago that Paderewski intended to visit Austria. Soon after the news arrived, Rep. R. This resolution was adopted without challenge and by a unanimous vote of the House of Representatives.

The first latter charges are in sparsely settled territory and cover large areas. On Arden mission there are one hundred and fifteen Methodist families, and on Plevna, Denbigh and Mountain Grove about sixty each. Of the eighteen ministers on the District, seventeen were present with their laymen.

The Mission Board of the Church annually contributes between three and four thousand dollars to assist in the financing of these four charges. On the District there are more than 5000 members and their total contributions last year amounted to over $70,000.

SHIFT TIRES FROM ONE RIM TO OTHER.

While it is true that most automobile tires are worn out on the rim in service, a great many are abused and misused in the garage and on spare rims. Failure to shift them from one wheel to another also leads to premature death. The four tires on a car do not wear evenly. The strain on the rear tires is greater than on the front ones. The right rear bears the heaviest load of the four. In addition to being one of the drive wheels, the right rear catches the brunt of the burden because of the natural slope of all roads and streets slightly to the right.

It is good policy and conducive to greater service to change the tires from wheel to wheel occasionally. In that way they are caused to wear out thoroughly before being sent to the discard.

Probably the worst enemies of tire life are water and grease and light. The spare suffers from these more than the tires on the car in most cases. After washing the car it is advisable to go over the rims with graphite or stove polish to prevent rust.

Cold water and soap or gasoline should be used to scour a casing which has become covered with oil or grease. Small cracks and cuts in the casing permit the grease and oil to seep into the strands of cord if not removed immediately.

Spare tires should always be protected from the sun and rain through the use of a tire cover. Moreover, the spare should be put into service at frequent intervals to keep the rubber from hardening. If it is left too long its life is slowly sapped. Put a rubber band in your desk and allow it to remain six months. What happens? You can tear it in two with the least effort. That is exactly the same thing that goes on in the tire when not put to use.

ALBERTA COAL.

Representatives from the Anglo-Canadian Collieries & Refineries, Ltd., were in town to-day taking orders from our dealers for Alberta coal. The price they quote is based on a $9.00 freight rate from the West, the public price being about $14.00 delivered in the cellars. This is a high grade domestic coal, free from dirt and soot, giving no more smoke than anthracite, but which burns more freely and therefore requires very little bottom draft. Plenty of air is allowed to enter above the fire, thereby mixing with the gases produced by the volatiles contained in the coal and allowing them to combust. If directions are followed thus, the Company guarantees the coal to give every satisfaction, and it will burn with as many heat units, ton for ton, as good anthracite. Alberta miners have work for only five months of the year, but with a good Ontario trade opened up this season, they will be given work the year round, and our miners will flow from East to West as it should.

A copy of the petition which was started at the Toronto Exhibition, demanding a lower freight rate on Alberta coal, will be left at the post office for your signatures. All adults, male and female, are asked to sign, thereby helping themselves as well as the country and showing by your attitude that you are determined to use Canadian goods.

WEDDING BELLS.

Tompkins—Faulk.

A ceremony of much interest was witnessed at the Methodist Church, Denbigh, on the evening of Sept. 12th, when Miss Erma Laurie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Faulk, of that place, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Mr. Charles Allan Tompkins, of Newburgh.

Precisely at 7 o'clock, to the strains of Mendelsshon's Wedding March, rendered by Mrs. Marshall Bebee, Vennachar, the bridal party entered the church. The groom, who was supported by his brother, Kenneth, awaited his bride at the altar, who was given in marriage by her father. She was preceded up the aisle by her winsome little sister, Ruth, who daintily attired in white, admirably performed the duties of flower girl, and the bridesmaids, who were two of her sisters, Mrs. Chealus Ball and Miss Minnie, and Miss Sara Wilson.

The bride was a picture of girlish loveliness in her handsome gown of ivory duchesse satin, and wore pearl bertha and over drapes. The bridal veil, arranged over the fair hair and held in place by the customary wreath of orange blossoms, hung in misty folds over the bridal form.

Mrs. Chealus Ball looked charming in a gown of pink taffeta, and Miss Minnie Wilson was also attired in taffeta with panels of silk radium and berths of silver lace. Miss Wilson wore orchid silk Canton.

After the impressive ceremony which was performed by Rev. P. A. Scott, the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous buffet luncheon was served to over a hundred guests, after which they tripped the light fantastic until the early hours.

The wedding presents were numerous and costly, including a substantial sum of money, which testify to the esteem in which the young couple are held.

Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins left by motor for Oswego, N.Y., accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Chealus Ball and little Marjorie Jean, who reside in that city.

WEDDING BELLS.

Finn—Perrault

In the Church of the Annunciation, Enterprise, at ten o'clock, on Tuesday, Sept. 11th, one of the prettiest of the early fall weddings took place, when Miss Nellie, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Perrault, was married to Leo Vincent, third son of the late Mr. and Mrs. P. Finn. In the absence of the Pastor, on a visit to his old home in Ireland, Rev. Father Coyle, of St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, officiated.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, and looked very sweet and winsome in a tailored suit of blue velour trimmed with grey Kolinsky fur, her blouse was midnight blue Radium lace and with this she wore a chic hat of silver metallic and her corsage bouquet was American Beauty roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Her bridesmaid, Miss Evelyn Finn, sister of the groom, in a brown suit heavily braided, and trimmed with Hudson seal with hat of cocoa brown and sand velvet and carrying carnations and sweetheart roses, preceded her to the altar rails where the groom and bride's brother, Thomas Perrault, awaited them.

The organist, Miss Eileen Dillon, played Lutegrin's wedding march and during the signing of the register, Miss Lillian Murphy sang very effectively "O Perfect Love".

After the nuptial mass the guests, accompanied by Rev. Father Coyle, motored to the home of the bride's parents, where over fifty relatives partook of the generous hospitality for which Mr. and Mrs. Perrault have always been noted. The dining room was very tastefully decorated for the occasion with festoons of pink and white and boats of autumn blossoms perfumed the air.

The groom's gift to the bride was a substantial cheque, to the bridesmaid, a necklace of "La Reine" pearls, to the groomsman, a pearl tie pin, and to the organist an engraved bar pin. Testimony of the popularity of the young couple was evidenced by the many valuable gifts including many cheques. The groom who is a graduate of the Ottawa school of telegraphy, and an operator on the C.P.R., was tendered a pass as a gift from the company and he and his bride, who travelled in a beautifully beaded blue Canton crepe dress with coat, shoes and hat of field mouse grey, left on the International Flyer at 4 p.m. on a trip to Vancouver, B.C., bearing with them the good wishes of the entire community.

HOW DEMPSEY RETAINED HIS BOXING TITLE.

Polo Grounds, New York, Sept. 15th—In one of the most sensational fights ever staged, Jack Dempsey retained his title as world's heavyweight champion by knocking out Luis Angel Firpo, the South American challenger, in the second round here last night.

Starting with a terrific rush, Dempsey and Firpo fought through the first round like two maniacs.

Knock-downs were so frequent in the first round that it was practically impossible to keep track of them. Firpo was floored six or seven times for short counts by snappy left and right hooks that shot over from the champion at a range of only a few inches.

Disproving all theories that he lacked gameness, the South American nearly grasped victory from the very brink of defeat in the very first round. Dempsey dropped his guard after Firpo had been down for the fourth time and the South American jumped to his feet and knocked Dempsey down with a terrible right swing to the jaw.

Dempsey came up cool-headed and charged back into him. Firpo went down before a left and right that landed on his jaw almost simultaneously. Again the South American staggered to his feat and landed a long right swing to the champion's jaw. Dempsey was lifted from his feet and knocked clear through the ropes out onto the shoulders of Kid McFarland, one of the judges.

While Jack Kearns and the seconds in the champion's corner were horror-stricken and speechless, the champion pulled himself back into the ring and charged furiously back into the battle.

The fight then turned into a free-handed slugging battle, in which they battered each other around the ring until they were both wobbly and almost out on their feet.

Firpo had Dempsey on the ropes pounding him at will when the gong ended the first round.

Seconds of both fighters worked frantically between rounds in their corners. The crowd rose to its feet and made a Bedlam of noise. Encouragement was shouted to both fighters when they came out for the second round. The same furious battle was resumed, with both landing almost every lead. Firpo shook Dempsey all over with another terrible right swing, and Dempsey went into a clinch. Steping back a little, Dempsey smashed a short right to the heart and Firpo dropped on his face.

Few ring-siders had seen the blow and many thought Firpo had gone down for a count. The South American rose again to his feet. He was bleeding from the nose and mouth, his knees sagged and there was a wild, groggy look in his eyes. Dempsey measured him and then shot over a left and a right that landed almost at the same time on his jaw. Firpo fell on his back and remained there motionless while the count of ten was tolled over him.

The official time of the knockout was 57 seconds of the second round.

Tremendous excitement prevailed when the fight ended, and Firpo was dragged to his corner. As he did in his fight with Carpentier, Dempsey picked up his vanquished opponent and held him until his seconds made a delayed entrance to the rescue of their charge.

Fans swarmed over the press pit into the ring. They surrounded Dempsey and tried to lift him to their shoulders. Police rushed into the ring and had to draw clubs to drive them out.

Jack Kearns and the champion's seconds seemed to be in a daze. They stood in the corner while Dempsey walked across the ring to Firpo's corner and patted him on the shoulder with his two hands.

"You're a great fighter, Luie," Dempsey said.

The champion then asked one of the English-speaking seconds in the South American's corner to tell Firpo that he hoped he hadn't been hurt.

Firpo was out for more than a minute in his corner. He leaped to his feet when he began to revive and apparently thought the fight was not over when he saw Dempsey in front of him. He smiled wanly when Dempsey shook hands and walked out of his corner.

The two fighters left the ring in opposite directions and they were both given a great tribute by the crowd.

Veteran fight fans and fighters at the ringside said they never could recall when such a short and sensational fight had been staged in the ring. Some accounts had it that Firpo was down twelve times in less than three and one-third minutes of fighting.

It was the first time that Dempsey had been knocked off his feet since he won the title.

Dempsey showed unexpected and previously unproved ability to withstand punishment. His best plans of defense failed when he found the South American carrying a wild attack to him. Dempsey had planned to out-speed Firpo, and had not counted on being forced to out-slug him.

The fight developed into a free-swinging battle. Firpo landed epoch blows to knock out any ordinary fighter, but Dempsey was too game and too rugged to be beaten down by the blows.

The fight was witnessed by a crowd estimated to be between 85,000 and 100,000.

WEEKLY PROFITS OF $3,500,000

INCOME OF FORD AND FAMILY EVERY SEVEN DAYS, STATISTICIANS FIGURE.

New York, Sept. 13.—Toying with the recently announced figures of the Ford Motor Company's income and expenditures for the four months between February 28th and June 30th, 1923, Wall Street statisticians to-day discovered the company's net earnings to be $56,616 hourly, or nearly $1,000 a minute.

Announcement that the Ford firm had purchased 400,000 acres of standing timber, 5,000,000 of 6,000,000 feet of logs and 20,000,000 feet of lumber in four counties of Upper Michigan for many millions of dollars impelled those with a statistical turn of mind to figure out whether Ford was not spending his money faster than he was making it.

They found Ford might spend a great deal more money than he is now before spending or investing all his income. Profits are rolling in faster than they can roll out in the form of new enterprises. Although the net profit per car has dropped from $90 to $43 in the last year, the output of cars has been so vastly increased that this reduction in per car profit has been more than compensated for by the increased volume of sales.

In the four months ending June 30th, 1923, the Ford Motor Company earned $34,351,560 net after expenses, etc., and possibly after dividends, inasmuch as the figures made public merely show that growth in surplus between the two dates. All of it belongs to Ford and his family.

The sum is equivalent to $15,587,890 monthly, nearly $3,500,000 weekly and about $492,000 daily, counting Sundays, but allowing eight hours per day.

PROGRESS MADE IN TANNING

Process Known to Be at Least Three Thousand Years Old.

At first skins were cured by simply cleaning and drying. Then it was found the texture of the leather improved by the use of smoke, sour milk, various oils and the brains of the animals themselves. Later it was discovered that certain astringent barks and vegetable effected permanent changes in the texture of skins and stopped decay. The ancient Egyptians possessed this knowledge, for engravings on their tombs depict the process of tanning. In China specimens of leather have been discovered in company with other relics that prove them to be over three thousand years old. The Romans used leather which they tanned with oil, alum and bark. Early explorers in America found the Indians wearing skins prepared with buffalo dung, oil and clay.

No improvement in the general methods of preparing leather took place from the most primitive times until about 1790, when the use of lime to loosen the hair was introduced. By 1825 English tanners were attempting to introduce new methods by which the tanning process could be shortened. One of the pioneers in these experiments was John Burridge, the inventor of the barkometer, an instrument for determining the strength of tanning liquors.

Genuine Feathered Plane.

The man-o'-war bird is a genuine feathered airplane. Without moving its wings seemingly for hours at a time, it calmly floats high in the air, ascending in spirals, or drifting lazily along, directing its easy flight by changes of the angle of its "planes" so slight that any effort is not apparent. It is a distinctly tropical bird, seldom being seen further north than along the coasts of Florida, the Gulf states and Southern California.

The bird is very impressive by reason of its size and the enormous stretch of its long, narrow wings, measuring some seven and a half feet across. When a great flock of thousands soar on motionless pinions, they appear like an aerial army of invasion. At close range their great hooked bills give them a rather fierce appearance, though they have but little to boast of in the way of talons, their feet being weak and clumsy, fit only for perching

Men of Remarkable Memories.

It is impossible not to wonder what overpowering floods of memories arose from return smells in the minds of men celebrated for their memory, Cyrus, founder of the Persian empire, knew the name of every officer (Pliny said every soldier) who served under him. Themistocles, the Athenian general and political leader, could call by name each one of the 20,000 citizens of Athens. Hortensius, the Roman orator, who spoke in the Forum at nineteen, could sit all day at an auction sale, and in the evening give an account from memory of everything sold, the purchaser and the price.

A young Corsican who was said to have lived at Paris could repeat without hesitation 30,000 names in the order in which he heard them, and then reverse the order and proceed backward to the first.

Friend—So your son is in college? What is he preparing for?

Father—Can't know much from the way he works me, I kind of think he's going to be a diplomat.

Buddy was up before the disability board. The pompous alienist was asking him a long string of questions to determine his mental condition and Buddy was rapidly getting disgusted.

"Quick," shouted the celebrated doc, "tell me this: How many legs has a lobster?"

Buddy looked at him crushingly before replying.

"For the lovva Mike," he said, "is that all you got to worry about?"

At a transfer station a man was waiting patiently for a street car, when a woman, highly excited, rushed up to him and cried: "Are you the man here?"

"I don't understand," he said.

"Are you the man here?" she repeated.

"No, madam," he said, concealing a smile. "The man here is that man over there."

WHY SHE LOOKED SAD

The village photographer was losing patience with his lady patron.

"Just a little smile, please," he said, dwelling somewhat on the last word. "A smile adds so much to the artistic effect." The lady shook her head.

"Of course, if you'd rather," began the artist.

"I would that," came from the direction of the headrest. "Our one layin' hen died this mornin', bacon's gone up 4 cents a pound, mother's had a couple o' fits, my George has just broke a plateglass window, and my husband is in hospital with a broken leg. If you think I'm goin' to look like a Cheshy cat when I'm up against that shower o' blessin's you're scratchin' the wrong pig. You git on with it, natural, mister."

There is decidedly a vogue this season for Feathers, and "Ostrich" is the medium which many a milliner uses to execute that individual touch. It is used in so many ways, sometimes wrapping the crown completely; other times it droops coquettishly from one side and hangs over the shoulder; often-times the feather is split and worked up into mounts which are placed in divers ways about the crown.

Our present assortments is the last word in Fall Millinery—it is well spoken, too. You will find we have assembled bits comprising and exploiting all the charms of the season, and at prices which you want to pay.

PROGRESS MADE IN TANNING

Process Known to Be at Least Three Thousand Years Old.

At first skins were cured by simply cleaning and drying. Then it was found the texture of the leather improved by the use of smoke, sour milk, various oils and the brains of the animals themselves. Later it was discovered that certain astringent barks and vegetables effected permanent changes in the texture of skins and stopped decay. The ancient Egyptians possessed this knowledge, for engravings on their tombs depict the process of tanning. In China specimens of leather have been discovered in company with other relics that prove them to be over three thousand years old. The Romans used leather which they tanned with oil, alum and bark. Early explorers in America found the Indians wearing skins prepared with buffalo dung, oil and clay.

No improvement in the general methods of preparing leather took place from the most primitive times until about 1790, when the use of lime to loosen the hair was introduced. By 1823 English tanners were attempting to introduce new methods by which the tanning process could be shortened. One of the pioneers in these experiments was John Burridge, the inventor of the barkometer, an instrument for determining the strength of tanning liquors.

Genuine Feathered Plane.

The man-o'-war bird is a genuine feathered airplane. Without moving its wings seemingly for hours at a time, it calmly floats high in the air, ascending in spirals, or drifting lazily along, directing its easy flight by changes of the angle of its "planes" so slight that any effort is not apparent. It is a distinctly tropical bird, seldom being seen further north than along the coasts of Florida, the Gulf states and Southern California.

The bird is very impressive by reason of its size and the enormous stretch of its long, narrow wings, measuring some seven and a half feet across. When a great flock of thousands soar on motionless pinions, they appear like an aerial army of invasion. At close range their great hooked bills give them a rather fierce appearance, though they are but little to boast of in the way of talons, their feet being weak and clumsy, fit only for perching

Men of Remarkable Memories.

It is impossible not to wonder what overpowering floods of memories arose from certain smells in the minds of men celebrated for their memory. Cyrus, founder of the Persian empire, knew the name of every officer (Pliny said every soldier) who served under him. Themistocles, the Athenian general and politician had, or could call by name each one of the 20,000 citizens of Athens. Hortensius, the Roman orator, who spoke in the Forum at nineteen, could sit all day as an auction sale, and at evening give an account from memory of everything sold, the purchaser and the price.

A young Corsican who was said to have lived at Padua could repeat without hesitation 40,000 names in the order in which he heard them, and then reverse the order and proceed backward to the first.

Friend—So your son is in college? What is he preparing for?

Father—Don't know; but from the way he works me, I kind of think he's going to be a diplomat.

Buddy was up before the disability board. The pompous alienist was asking him a long string of questions to determine his mental condition and Buddy was rapidly getting disgusted.

"Quick," shouted the celebrated doc, "tell me this: How many legs has a lobster?"

Buddy looked at him crushingly before replying.

"For the lovva Mike," he said, "is that all you got to worry about?"

At a transfer station a man was waiting patiently for a street car, when a woman, highly excited, rushed up to him and cried: "Are you the man here?"

"I don't understand," he said.

"Are you the man here?" she repeated.

"No, madam," he said, concealing a smile, "the man here is that man over there."

WHY SHE LOOKED SAD

The village photographer was losing patience with his lady patron.

"Just a little smile, please," he said, dwelling somewhat on the last word. "A smile adds so much to the artistic effect." The lady shook her head.

"Of course, if you'd rather," began the artist.

"I would that," came from the direction of the head-rest. "Our one layin' hen died this mornin', bacon's gone up 4 cents a pound, mother's had a couple o' fits, my George has just broke a plateglass window, and my husband is in hospital with a broken leg. If you think I'm goin' to look like a Cheshy cat when I'm up against that shower o' blessin's you're scratchin' the wrong pig. You git on with it, natural, mister."

Velvet, Hatter's Plush, Felt, and Suedine Are Favored Millinery Fabrics. The "Cloche" Shapes Are Fashionably Popular

There is decidedly a vogue this season for Feathers, and "Ostrich" is the medium which many a milliner uses to execute that individual touch. It is used in so many ways, sometimes wrapping the crown completely; other times it droops coquettishly from one side and hangs over the shoulder; often-times the feather is split and worked up into mounts which are placed in divers ways about the crown.

Our present assortments is the last word in Fall Millinery—it is well spoken, too. You will find we have assembled hats comprising and exploiting all the charms of the season, and at prices which you want to pay.

Eating.

He that feasts his body with banquets and delicate fare, and starves his soul for want of spiritual food, is like him that feasts his slave and starves his wife.

When I behold a fashionable table set out in all it magnificence, I fancy that I see gouts and dropsies, fevers, and lethargies, with other innumerable distempers, lying in ambuscade among the dishes. Nature delights in the most plain and simple diet. Every animal, but man, keeps to one dish. Herbs are the food of five species, fish of that, and flesh of a third. Man falls upon everything that comes in his way; not the smallest fruit or excrescence of the earth, scarce a berry or a mushroom can escape him.—Addison.

Trinitrotoluene.

"T N T" is an abbreviation for trinitro-toluene, a very powerful explosive used in shells, mines, hand grenades and torpedoes. It is formed from toluene by treatment of this hydrocarbon with strong nitric acid in the presence of concentrated sulphuric acid. Toluene is one of the products of the distillation of coal tar. T N T crystallizes in almost white needles, and at ordinary temperatures it is quite stable; it burns with a smoky flame when ignited. In its chemical composition the molecule of trinitrotoluene consists of seven carbon atoms, five hydrogen atoms, three nitrogen atoms and six oxygen atoms.

Yes, Trees Must Eat.

Do you know how trees grow by forming new layers of wood directly under the bark? The roots are the suport of the tree, says the School Book of Forestry. They also supply the tree with food. Through delicate hairs on the roots they absorb soil moisture and plant food from the earth and pass them along to the tree. The body of the tree acts as a passageway through which the food and drink are conveyed to the top or crown. The crown is the place where the food is digested, and the regeneration of trees effected.

Self-Steering Steamship.

A gyroscopic compass has been used successfully on the Danish steamship Koing Frederik VIII. The reading of the master compass—a gyroscopic compass of great energy—is transmitted electrically to a compass rpeciver that on the least yaw of the ship closes the circuit of an electric motor in direct connection with the steering wheel. As soon as the steering gauge of the mechanism marks "amidships" a clutch is thrown in that causes the ship automatically to keep the course for which the apparatus is adjusted.

Student—See here, where are those oysters on the half-shell I ordered some time ago?

Waiter—Don't get impatient, young man; we're a trifle short of shells, but you're next, sir.

"I read that book you wrote about ancient history," said Lowbrow, "and I can't say much for it; there are too many mistakes in it."

"How so?" inquired the surprised author.

"Well, one thing made me laugh. You said a guy named Epicurus was born in 340 B.C., and then a little further on you said he died in 270 B.C. That kills him off before he was born."

WORLD'S RICHEST MEN

FORD'S WEALTH COMES IN AT $225 PER MINUTE.

He Is Probably the Wealthiest Man In the History of the World—Some Families Have Also Amassed Enormous Fortunes In Course of Time.

Who are the ten richest men in the world? Henry Ford is easily the richest, while Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the United States Treasury, was said recently to be the fourth wealthiest. Who are the other eight?

They must possess private fortunes of over $100,000,000 to secure a place on such a list, and fortunes of such proportions are almost impossible to estimate with accuracy. Authoritative estimates, however, supply the following list of men credited with the possession of more individual wealth than any other group on earth:

Henry Ford	$500,000,000
John D. Rockefeller	490,000,000
Duke of Westminster	150,000,000
Andrew W. Mellon	150,000,000
Sir Basil Zaharoff	100,000,000
Hugo Stinnes	100,000,000
Percy Rockefeller	100,000,000
Baron H. Mitsui	100,000,000
Baron H. Iwasaki	100,000,000
Gaekwar of Baroda	100,000,000

J. B. Duke, the tobacco king; G. F. Baker, of the First National Bank of New York; and T. B. Walker, the Minneapolis timber landowner, might be added to the list, since they all have fortunes estimated at $100,000,000, while there are at least three other Indian rulers whose fortunes probably exceed this amount.

The Rothschilds, Guggenheims, Vanderbilts, Weyerhausers, and the Astors do not appear because their are family fortunes. The Rothschild wealth has been estimated at from $250,000,000 to $500,000,000, and that of the Astors at from $100,000,000 to $500,000,000.

Henry Ford is possibly the richest man in all history. He has a net business income of $120,000,000 a year, which, capitalized at 5 per cent., represents $2,200,000,000. He earns $225 per minute. Croesus may have been richer, since his famous gift to Delphi cost $10,000,000, and that, reduced to to-day's terms, might mean $200,000,000.

John D. Rockefeller gave away $500,000,000 to charity and to foundations before 1921. He is the head, however, of the biggest group of wealthy men ever produced by a single industry, and his private fortune must still rank him second.

The Duke of Westminster's wealth is in land. He owns 600 acres in Mayfair, Belgravia, and Pimlico. When the leases of Belgravia fall in he will be easily the richest man in England.

Sir Basil Zaharoff is Europe's mystery man, but it is no mystery that he is one of Europe's wealthiest men. He owns more than half of Monte Carlo, and his holdings in the armament firms are even larger. He is in oil, finance, shipping; in fact, it is difficult to say what he is not interested in.

The Mitsuis and the Iwasakis are financiers, traders, and shippers. The Gaekwar of Baroda's wealth is almost impossible to estimate, but his diamonds alone are valued at $1,250,000,000, and he has a jewelled tapestry worth $1,500,000. Guns of gold weighing 400 pounds stand at his palace gate.

Affidavit Should Go With This.

Bird lovers are finding the good Samaritan acts of a certain pair of eagles near Beech park almost too human for the monarchs of the air, generally known to be fond of eating, with a predilection for rabbits in particular, says a despatch from London, Ontario.

This particular pair of eagles, finding some bunnies scrambling aimlessly about in a field, took them up gently by the ears and carried them to a neighboring farm, depositing them carefully near the barn.

The next remarkable act of one of the eagles was to break a window in the barn. Through the hole the birds carried the rabbits, depositing them gently in the haymow, where the bunnies have made themselves quite contented.

Queen Establishes Rest Cure.

Queen Victoria of Sweden has begun the establishment of a rest cure for women as her investment of the $45,000 which she received on her sixtieth birthday last year, as a gift subscribed by the women of her country, and her popularity has been enhanced more than ever by this act.

The site of the new rest cure is the picturesque island of Oland, in the Baltic, just off the southwest coast of Sweden, where the queen's favorite summer villa, "Solliden," is situated. She has purchased three houses, which will be reconstructed for the new institution.

Modern Syria.

Syria has an area of 60,000 square miles, about the size of the state of Georgia, with a population of 2,000,000. It was made independent of Turkey, and placed under a French mandate by the allied powers in 1920. For convenience of administration, France divided the country into four provinces: Aleppo, Alexandria, Damascus, and Great Lebanon. The eastern part of the country is dry. Great Lebanon, however, is very fertile. The population is largely Mohammedan.

Fixing the Blame.

"This paper says that, roughly speaking, one marriage in three results in divorce."

"Yes, and it's the roughly speaking part that causes most of the trouble."

$1,000 Autos In Spain.

There are 25,000 motorcars and 5 000 trucks in Spain.

The popular Jontesl Talcum is now only 25c. a tin, at Wallace's.

The lowest priced tea is not the cheapest. A pound of "SALADA" yields more cups to the pound, and so much more satisfaction than ordinary tea, that it is really the most economical to use.

"Ever notice the French word 'etats'?"

"No, what about it?"

"Take it backward and you have its meaning in English."

"Well, if you've got to have a foreign language, that's the way to have it. Why can't all French words be like that?"

Chlorine, the negro cook, approached the cashier's desk with an air of determination on her features.

"I wants yo' to take care of dis heah cash fo' a while," she remarked, plunking down her savings of several years.

"Why, Chlorine?" asked the cashier, who knew her of old, "I thought you always said you'd never trust the bank?"

"Dat's all right, dat's all right, but de circumfrances surroundin' de matter makes me change mah mind, you see. The gwine get married, an' Ah don't want dat much money round de house with a strange coloud man on de premises."

How to make your skin fresh and clear

Palm and olive oils —nothing else—give nature's green color to Palmolive Soap

Made in Canada

Every woman passes as pretty if only her skin is fresh, smooth and young. It is within the power of every woman to possess this attraction to make her complexion as beautiful as she longs for it to be.

The secret? Cleopatra knew and practiced it in the days of ancient Egypt. She observed a daily ceremonious cleansing. The cleansers she used were the same you may have today, Palm and Olive oils.

These beautifying oils are scientifically blended in famous Palmolive Soap. They give mildness, wonderful soothing qualities, profuse, creamy and refreshing lather.

Cleansing with Palmolive is a beauty treatment in itself. No woman should say her skin is too sensitive to use soap until she has tried Palmolive.

The attractive green cake, the natural color of the oils, is within the reach of every one who appreciates that cleanliness is the greatest beautifier.

You can buy Palmolive Soap at all first class dealers.

Presentation and Address.

To Mrs. John Kellar.

Dear Mrs. Kellar,—It is with sincere regret in our hearts that we, your friends and neighbours, have gathered here this evening to bid you farewell on the eve of your departure from our midst.

Your good influence has been felt throughout this community and shall be greatly missed by one and all. In appeals of charity your hand has always been foremost in lending kindness and helpful aid to all in need. You shall always be remembered as a true Christian, ever ready when duty calls, whether it be giving advice to the erring, administering to the sick, or a solace in time of grief and trouble.

In appreciation of our deep regards for you we wish you to accept this clock as a small remembrance of our devotion towards you.

Signed on behalf of those present.

MRS. NETTIE HART.
MRS. E. J. HANNAH.
MRS. L. CAMPBELL.

Croydon, Ontario, Sept. 14th, 1923.

To Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Kellar and Gordon.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Kellar and Gordon,—We, your friends and neighbours, have assembled here this evening to bid you also farewell prior to your departure to your new home in Toronto.

Although our sorrow in losing you is inexpressible, nevertheless we are indeed glad that you will not be so far removed but that we may sometime have the pleasure of visiting your home, and you may always feel assured that a warm welcome awaits you in our homes. We feel that although your removal from this your old home is a loss to us, it will be a gain to those in and near your new home. We hope and trust that prosperity and happiness awaits you and that as the years go by you may look back with pleasant remembrances of the days spent in this vicinity. We would ask you to accept these dishes as a reminder of our love and esteem.

Signed on behalf of the friends and neighbours,

MRS. NETTIE HART.
MRS. E. J. HANNAH.
MRS. L. CAMPBELL.

STRATHCONA.

(For last week).

A heavy electric storm was experienced in this locality on Sunday last. The barn of Mr. Michael Brady, a few miles west of this village, was struck by lighting and burned to the ground. It seems that Mr. Brady was not home at the time, and the fire had made considerable headway before being discovered.—School has opened again, with Miss M. Toner as teacher, and once more the patter of little feet and the echo of merry voices can be heard.—The paper mill is running again, after being shut down a few days for repair work.—Mr. Henry MacLean, of Toronto, an old Strathcona boy, has been renewing acquaintances in this vicinity recently.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bell, of Desmond, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. B. Finlay.—Master Tom Sutton, who has been away for some time, has been home on a visit.—Mr. W. J. Finlay took a business trip to Toronto this week. — Mission Circle was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Scott last Friday evening. A helpful evening was spent, and those who were absent have reason for regret.—Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Finlay returned on Saturday from Toronto, where they attended the Exhibition. —Mrs. Will Lasher has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Pybus this week.—A goodly number from this village attended the Napanee Fair.—The following lines seem to "fit" at this particular time of year:

Strathcona is a busy place,
By night as well as day.
Mischievous boys then prowl about
When they should "hit the hay".

The water melon patches seem
To be a favourite place,
For thieves to come by night, unseen,
And feed a hungry face.

A water melon is quite large;
You know its shape, I wist.
And when a few of these are swiped
They can't help but be missed.

If everybody was as bold
By daytime as by night,
'Twould take a lawyer and a cop
To set this village right.

But let us now forget the past;
All people who are sane
Know melons that have once been swiped,
Can ne'er be swiped again.

If you forget what has been said,
Remember, if you will,
Strathcona "Birds" and Wilton "Imps"
Play ball at Centreville.

Worms are encouraged by morbid conditions of the stomach and bowels, and so subsist. Miller's Worm Powders will alter these conditions almost immediately and will sweep the worms away. No destructive parasite can live in contact with this medicine, which is not only a worm destroyer, but a health-giving medicine most beneficial to the young constitution.

Mrs. Johnsing:—Ah thought you-all said you was gwine to name your new baby "Victrola", but Ah hears you-all done make a change.

Mrs. Moses—Yes. Ah expected it would be a girl an Ah had decided to name her "Victrola", but she turned out to be a boy, so Ah done name him "Radio".

When You Try "SALADA" TEA H478

you will realize the difference between "Salada" and "just tea."

NO one starting out in life ever expects to fail. Youth is always hopeful, but hope alone cannot bring success.

If your hope is to see your boy a success in the world, securing independence and comfort—the vision of so many, yet the attainment of so few—adopt a regular savings plan for him now, and teach him in his tender years the value of saving something out of every dollar.

WHAT VALUE DO WE PLACE UPON OUR GIRLS?

What Happened to the 60,000 Girls Who Disappeared in the U. S. Last Year?

(Estimate of N. Y. Police Department).

"Some trusted 'friendly' strangers.

"Some let taxi drivers find lodgings.

"Some answered fraudulent advertisements for 'positions'.

"Some were lured into matrimonial agency traps.

"Some went in quest of adventure, unprepared.

"Others lost addresses, or failed to meet those expecting them.

"The Travellers' Aid worker is the Stranger's friend."

The foregoing is found in a leaflet recently issued by the United States National Association of Travellers' Aid Societies; it brings to our minds some important questions:

1.—How many of these 60,000 were Canadian girls?

2.—How many disappeared in our own country, last year?

3.—What are we doing to prevent such a fate for some of our girls?

One afternoon last autumn, a young woman went to one of our small Ontario cities. She expected to return in the early evening but missed her train, and was obliged to wait at the station for a later train. While sitting in the sitting-room, a well-dressed, nice-appearing young woman approached her and said, "You look lonely, would you like a place to stay?" and offered to share her rooms with her. The girl informed her would-be friend that she did not require lodging; that she had missed her train and was just waiting for the next train going her way. However, the stranger persisted in her solicitations, again offering to share her rooms and also to find a boy friend for her. In further conversation, she informed the girl that she did not need to work, giving her to understand she had an easier way to make a living.

ROD AND GUN IN CANADA

One of the treats in store for the sportsman in Rod and Gun in Canada in the October issue is a story by H. C. Duffus on "Bear Hunting up Bute Inlet, B.C." which is written in a particularly readable manner. Bonny-castle Dale has a good article on the "Virginian Deer of Nova Scotia," while an interesting account of a ten days' trip in a canoe is contributed by A. David Fraser. E. F. Ward has a story of a fishing trip in the Rockies while F. V. Williams and Martin Hunter have two good stories in this issue. Guns and Ammunition is particularly well filled with articles by men such as A. A. Haines, E. T. D. Francis, and R. Leckie-Ewing, all well known to Rod and Gun readers. Robert Page Lincoln, J. W. Winson, and F. H. Walker have good departments, while "Along the Trapline", edited by M. U. Bates opens again in the October issue. Particular attention has been paid to the several important trap shoots of the Dominion, and accounts of the B. C. R. A., the Bisley Team in England, a write up of which is given by Major Crowe, the Maritime Trap shoot, and the O. R. A. are all contained in the October issue.

Laura Secord Candy is made in the Toronto Studio on Thursday and delivered to us Friday morning. Then they are received while deliciously fresh. Sold at the same price as in Toronto, namely 60c. the pound. At Wallace's.

His friends could give no reason why he should have committed suicide. He was single.—From a news item in The Stamford (Conn.) Advocate.

"I appointed a lady lawyer a receiver to-day."

"How did she take to it, Judge?"

"Ask me if she could invite some other ladies to help her receive."

"The time will come," thundered the lecturer on women's rights, "when women will get men's wages".

"Yes," said a weak little man in the back seat, "next Saturday night!"

"Bridget, has Johnnie come home from school yet?"

"Yes, sir."

"Have you seen him?"

"No, sir."

"Then how do you know he's home?"

"'Cause the cat's hidden under the stove, sir."

Often imitated, but never equalled, the world famous Laura Secord Candy. Fresh each Friday, at Wallace's.

RECEPTION AT TRINITY PARSONAGE.

Never has Trinity Parsonage looked prettier than on Friday last, when the Rev. W. R. and Mrs. Tanton received for the first time since their coming to Napanee. The drawing-room was decorated with choice cut flowers, gladioli in shades of pink and rose, being used in profusion. The dining room was done in pink and white, with asters in great quantities forming a solid color note.

In the afternoon Mrs. Tanton, charmingly gowned in soft crepe of American Beauty, headed in silver, received with Mrs. A. W. Grange and Mrs. D. B. Wilson, both of whom wore gowns of black Canton crepe. Mrs. F. S. Boyes invited the guests to the tea room, where Mrs. Geo. Cliff was in charge, assisted by Miss Margaret Creighton, Miss Constance Grange Miss Carrie Cowan, Mrs. Harry Vanluven, Mrs. Charles Black and Mrs. Ralph Sills. Mrs. Garrett Neely, Mrs. F. S. Richardson, Mrs. Creighton and Mrs. Shannon poured tea at different periods during the afternoon. Little Miss Louise Vanluven was also an assistant.

In the evening Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Robinson received with Mr. and Mrs. Tanton, Mrs. Robinson wearing a beautiful gown of soft brocade, trimmed with ostrich. Mrs. Geo. Thompson and Mrs. J. L. Boyes were also on the reception committee, while Mrs. Alpine Woods and Mrs. D. B. Wilson poured tea in the dining room. Mrs. Stewart Daly was in charge of a bevy of pretty girls who served the guests. These young ladies were the Misses Mildred Baughan, Laura Rockwell, Mildred Perry, Evelyn Mcsim and Katherine Daly. Miss Leitha Woods also assisted.

At least a hundred and fifty friends called to welcome the new Pastor and his wife to Napanee and to the home circle of Trinity Church.

DENBIGH.

The Denbigh Methodist Church was the scene of a very interesting wedding on the evening of the 12th inst., when Miss Erma L. Faulk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Faulk, and Mr. Charles Allen Tompkins, of Newburgh, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. P. A. Scott. The Denbigh School Fair, held on the 19th inst., was also a very interesting and successful event, and was favored with very nice weather and a large attendance of visitors from distant localities.—A few persons from here attended the Napanee Fair.—Dr. and Mrs. J. An old bear with two cubs was seen at no great distance from the village, and a wolf in another direction.

Blake was talking with his friend, Scribbler, the well-known English journalist of Fleet Street.

"Do you believe in writing anonymously?" he asked the hero of the pen.

Scribbler looked to see that the door of his study was shut ere he replied in a confidential whisper:

"Well, I've often wished that one of my productions had been anonymous."

"What was that?" asked Blake.

"A letter proposing to Mrs. Scribbler," groaned the famous writer.

WEDDING BELLS.

Vandewater—Diamond.

A very pretty Home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Diamond, at high noon, on Wednesday, 19th instant, when their only daughter, Ruth, was united in marriage to Mr. W. G. Vandewater, of Toronto, Rev. P. H. Neville, of Peterboro', officiating.

The ceremony was performed in the drawing room under an arch of golden hair fern with streamers of ribbon and tulle, dotted with white mums. About fifty guests, including relatives and close friends of the bride were present. The home was richly decorated throughout, the drawing room with a profusion of gladoli, 'mums and star of Bethlehem, the guest room with gladioli and roses, while the breakfast room presented a very pretty appearance with its magnificent display of pale pink 'mums and smilax.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was becomingly gowned in a French dress of white crepe, inset with panels of white valenciene lace with bridal veil and wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of ophelia roses and lily of the valley. The bridesmaid, Miss Evelyn Irwin, wore a beautiful gown of toast Canton crepe with black picture hat and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. Mr. George Kimmerly, of Toronto, a cousin of the groom, performed the duties of groomsman.

Mrs. Diamond, the bride's mother, wore a dress of sand Canton crepe with cortage bouquet of American Beauty roses. The groom's mother wore black Canton crepe with picture hat. Miss Helen D. Wood very capably presided at the piano, playing Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" and later she played softly during the signing of the register.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pretty white gold wrist watch, to the bridesmaid, a sterling silver wrist combination purse and vanity case, to the pianist a silver chain and vanity case, to the groomsman a silver match case. The bridal gifts consisted of a magnificent array of cut glass, silverware, fine china, also several cheques and gold coins. A few days previous to the wedding the bridesmaid, a sterling silver wrist combination purse and vanity case, to the pianist a silver chain and vanity case, to the groomsman a silver match case. The bridal gifts consisted of a magnificent array of cut glass, silverware, fine china, also several cheques and gold coins. A few days previous to the wedding the groom, who is employed in the head office of the Canadian General Electric Co., Toronto, was presented by the staff with an electric silver percolator, with silver tray and service.

After the ceremony and felicitations the company repaired to the tastily decorated breakfast room where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was partaken of, after which the happy couple left for a motor trip, amid a shower of confetti, old shoes, etc., for Kingston, Syracuse, Utica, and the Geneva Lake district. They will return via Buffalo and Niagara Falls. They will reside at Gloucester Apartments, 596 Church St., Toronto.

The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Vandewater, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Allison and the Misses Lloyd, Napanee; Rev. and Mrs. Neville, and Miss Payton, Peterboro'; Mr. and Mrs. George Leury, Stirling; Miss Nelle Davidson, and Mr. George Kimmerly, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Bullock, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Turner, Mr. and Mrs. George Irwin and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Thompson, Brighton.

The bride is one of Campbellford's popular young ladies.—Campbellford Weekly Herald, Campbellford, Ont., September 20th, 1923.

Caughey—Asselstine.

Augustine Church, Winnipeg, was the scene of the wedding, Saturday evening, Sept. 8th, 1923, of Alena Fern, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Asselstine, Oakville, Man., to S. Walker Caughey. Rev. Dr. E. Leslie Pidgeon officiated. Fred M. Gee presided at the organ and during the signing of the register Harold Lord sang "Until". The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a handsome gown of ivory satin brocade. Her veil was coronetted with orange blossoms and she carried a shower of bridal roses and lily of the valley. Her only ornament was a rope of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. She was attended by her sister, Miss Laura Asselstine, who wore a dress of Nile green georgette with accordeon pleated panels. Her hat was a picture model of black velvet and her bouquet was of ophelia roses.

Little Miss Christine Robertson, as flower girl, wore peach taffeta with a bandeau of French flowers in her hair, and carried a basket of pink and white sweet peas. The ushers were Cecil Holland and George P. Macleod. William Johnston was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Robertson, 558 Bathgat avenue, Winnipeg. Going away the bride wore a French model dress of flat crepe in cocoa brown with duvetyn hat and wrap coat in the same tones. Mr. and Mrs. Caughey left for the West and will later reside at Central Butte, Sask. Mrs. Asselstine, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black Canton crepe, trimmed with orchid and a corsage bouquet of orchid sweet peas.

Lasher—Sedore.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at Trinity Methodist Parsonage, Napanee, on Wednesday morning, Sept. 19th, at 10 o'clock, when Freda Geneva Sedore, of Redlib, was united in marriage to Mr. Joseph Lasher. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. R. Tanton. The bride looked very charming in a suit of white wrapper-cheviens, and was attended by Miss Jenny Denison, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. H. Lasher. Mr. and Mrs. Lasher left on the noon train for Gananoque and other points east.

GRETNA.

Great enthusiasm swept the inhabitants of Gretna last week, when, after some years of waiting, the church, which badly needed repairs and decorating, was all attended to, and on Sunday was re-opened for divine worship. The Rev. J. F. Mears, of Port Hope, was the preacher for the day at both services, and delighted his audiences by his strong presentation of gospel truth in a marked degree. On Monday evening Mr. Mears lectured on "Jean Valjean", and from start to finish held his audience spellbound. At both the Sunday evening service and Monday's lecture the Hay Bay choir supplied the appropriate of music, and this was immensely enjoyed by the Gretna people. The Ladies' Aid of Gretna congratulate on the expenses of repairs and decoration, and it must be due to their great credit that to accomplish this great thing speaks volumes for the ladies of Gretna, and they will not forget. Four splendid new gas lamps are to replace the old ones in the church, a new large door is to be put in, and once erected around the church, and when it is said that all the funds for the entire equipment are in hand it will at least indicate that the fervor of Methodism shows no waning at Gretna, but much to the contrary. There is some talk about erecting a community hall at Gretna, and there is no doubt that if the Gretna people say so it will be done.

STRATHCONA.

We have been experiencing very pleasant weather the past week. Finlay spent a few days in Toronto this week.—Mr. Carman Patterson, of Moscow, was visiting last week.—Miss Mayla's, on Sunday.—Miss Muriel Wilson and Miss Marguerite McGuire left on Monday for Toronto, where they will attend Normal School. Apparently these girls expect to be "school marms", and they will be greatly missed in our village. Miss Wilson was also a worker in both Church and Sunday School, and the places she has left vacant will be hard to fill.—Mrs. Wm. Switzer is ill.—Rev. Mr. Mason, of Shannonville, was in the village on Monday last.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robinson, on Sunday.—There will be no church service here next Sunday. All are invited to attend a special Rally Day service in Newburgh Methodist Church at 10.30 a.m.

CHAS. W. HAMBLY, Esq.
Conservative Nominee to Contest the Riding of Lennox at the By-Election for the Provincial Legislature.

Liberal-Conservative Convention

Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Highways, Delivers Interesting Address

Chas. W. Hambly Unanimously Chosen to Contest the Riding of Lennox in the By-Election for the Provincial Legislature.

At one of the most largely attended and enthusiastic meetings of the Liberal-Conservative party of Lennox, held in the Armouries on Saturday afternoon last, Mr. Chas. W. Hambly was unanimously chosen to contest the riding in the interests of the Conservative party at the by-election for the Provincial Legislature to be held on Monday, October 22nd, 1923.

The meeting was thoroughly representative of the County, between seven and eight hundred people from all parts being in attendance, and the enthusiasm and interest shown by all present augurs well for the election of their candidate at the coming election.

Mr. Albert F. Reid, President of the Association, occupied the chair, and in a few opening remarks, explained the reason for calling the convention, and asked Dr. Stratton, the Secretary, to read the minutes of the last meeting.

The President then asked the convention for nominations of candidates. After the allotted time had elapsed the following names had been placed in nomination, Ex-Mayor Graham, J. M. Simpson, Eugene Smith, Dr. W. H. Milsap, and C. W. Hambly.

Ex-Mayor Graham said he had decided to withdraw his name from nomination and would support the candidate selected.

Dr. Milsap had not in any way sought the honor, and felt quite any in a small riding to have such a large convention as was before him, and congratulated Mr. Hambly on his [illegible]

The speaker was sorry for the rift that had occurred in 1919, when the party was divided, but was pleased that all were working in unison again, the man in the workshop, the man in the office, the man behind the plow, and the mother in the home, all working for the good of the country at large.

Mr. Henry also referred briefly to the members of the Cabinet in the Ferguson administration, and believed that the Province of Ontario had a strong and progressive body of men in that important position. He thought that the manner in which the Highways department had been administered during the four years that he had, no doubt, been partly responsible for the change of government, and he was not surprised. During the past two months he had travelled over 1,800 miles of improved road in the province. He found in some instances where the road had been built too expensively for the amount of traffic that would pass over it. His department had discontinued the indiscriminate widening of the highways. He was not adverse to wide highways, but did not believe in them unless traffic and development demanded it. He intended dealing [illegible] than the A. P. O. party.

NEWBURGH.

We have now an established industry, branches of which, under different ownership, is located in all quarters of the village. It is one, however, that is hard to designate owing to the complex nature of its products. To call it an egg industry would not cover the ground, as the hen that lays the eggs, yields up her own life, after a time, to add to its revenue. To call it a hen industry would not meet the case, as the hen is only a part of the stock in trade. It might be called an egg business with the hens as partners, but not silent ones, neither are the roosters silent. We leave the reader to work out this question for himself and content ourselves with wishing the proprietors, the hens, and all concerned, success. We hope to hear of an egg laying contest to add to the interest of the enterprise."

Dr. T. Warner, graduate of the Ontario Dental College, will attend to all needing his services in Newburgh and vicinity on Wednesday and Thursday of each week. Dr. Warner will be remembered by Newburghers as a pupil in the High School here some years ago. He is a recent graduate and therefore equipped with a knowledge of all up-to-date methods of treating defective teeth. He will occupy a room in the Standard Bank building. Watch for his advt. in the Beaver.

The Rally service of the Sabbath Schools of the Circuit, will be held in the Newburgh Church next Sunday. A full attendance is expected.

The County S. S. Convention will be held here on Tuesday, October 2nd. There will be three sessions, morning, afternoon and evening. All Sabbath Schools in the County are urged to send delegates and visitors. This is an interdenominational convening, and all Sabbath School workers should seek the inspiration of an attendance at its sessions. [illegible] give. Delegates and other outside visitors will be entertained in the basement of the church at 25c. per meal. So none should feel backward.

Mrs. E. B. Bensen, of St. Thomas, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Courtney.

The new postoffice building is ready for occupation.

Mr. R. P. Andrews, Principal of the High School, was called away on Monday to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, in Peterboro'.

Friends and neighbors turned out and gave Allen Tompkins and his bride a kitchen shower on Tuesday evening. An enjoyable time was spent, and many valuable and useful presents went to help start the young couple housekeeping.

Mail Orders promptly filled at Wallace's Drug Store.

YARKER.

The anniversary services of the Methodist Church will be held next Sunday and were a decided success, the services being conducted by the Rev. W. D. P. Wilson, of Bridgewater, former pastor. Two services were held, morning and night, and the church was filled to capacity. The church is sure a credit to the committee who had the work in charge. A thankoffering was asked for and a large sum was received, which covered all the expenses.—Dr. Atcheson has arrived home with his bride and will reside in the Baxter house, where he has also opened up an office. Mr. Furrs and wife are spending the holidays in Western Ontario. — A. D. Leonard and wife are spending their holidays in Cobourg and Toronto. — Mr. Babcock's team of horses became frightened at the mill and ran away, seriously injuring one of the horses.—Several cars of grain have been unloaded here lately, on account of the shortage of the grain crop in this vicinity.

BETHANY

Some excitement was caused in our midst, when the news came over the phone that Mr. Martin's house was on fire. Quite a number responded quickly, but the fire was in a work shop, and not much damage was done.—Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Joyce and family visited at Mr. Jas. Keeche's, on Sunday last. — Mrs. Vandervoort, of Watertown, N.Y., is visiting at Mr. Conger's.—A number from here attended the fair at Picton.—Bethana held the re-opening of the church on Sunday last. Quite a number from Bethany attended each service on Sunday and Monday evenings, when Mr. Mears gave a lecture.—Mr. and Mrs. Moseley, of Selby, visited friends here on Tuesday last.—The Ladies' Aid will meet on Wednesday next at the home of Mrs. Joe Hicks. — Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Spencer visited at Mr. W. Spencer's, on Sunday.—Mr. and Mrs. Newton Thompson, Belleville, spent over Sunday at W. Miller's.

CANADA SELF SUFFICIENT AS TO COAL SUPPLY.

Transportation the Big Problem.

There is no fuel problem in Canada. There never will be, for the simple reason that within the boundaries of three of the provinces of the Dominion, in fact, within the boundaries of one of them, lies a sufficient reserve of fuel to meet all of Canada's needs for many generations.

The problem is, and always has been, one of transportation and distribution. Solve this problem, and there will be no excuse for empty coal bins in any home in Canada. Alberta and Nova Scotia coal brought to where it is most needed at a price within reach of the ordinary man's pocketbook, will make it unnecessary to send over to the United States something like a hundred million dollars every year for fuel.

The province of Alberta, it is generally acknowledged, holds the key to the fuel situation in Canada, because of the unique position it occupies in possessing more coal reserves than any other one country in the world, save the United States. Nature bestowed upon this far western province not only great stretches of wheatlands upon which to raise foodstuffs for less fortunate portions of the globe, but also stored away in the basement under those wheatlands, enough reserves of coal to feed the furnaces of the world for several centuries. Some of this coal is now being brought to the surface in instalments that total annually about 6,000,000 tons, but the dent made in Alberta's coal pile thus far is but as a shovelful of earth from the side of a mountain. Saskatchewan has been trundling its wheelbarrow to Alberta coal bin for its annual supply of fuel for many years, and just recently Manitoba has signed Alberta's order book for a large yearly supply, thus displacing nearly all of the coal formerly imported from the United States for domestic purposes.

According to the latest estimates available from authorities, Alberta has an actual reserve of coal totalling 360,360 million tons, and an estimated probable reserve of 688,679 million tons, or a grand total of 1,072,939 million tons.

These coal reserves comprise just 14 per cent of the entire world's reserves. They are many times larger than those of all the other provinces of Canada put together, being just 87 per cent. of Canada's coal reserves. Even in the British Empire Alberta holds the predominant place, for it has 72 per cent. of all the coal that is known to exist in all the countries coming under the Union Jack.

There are about 250 mines in operation in the province, employing about 12,000 men. These mines produce approximately 6,000,000 tons a year. At this rate of mining it would take more than 180,000 years to exhaust the supply. If the production were increased 100 times, there would still be enough for 18 centuries.

Coal reserves of the various provinces of Canada are placed as follows:—

	Million Tons
Nova Scotia	9,719
New Brunswick	151
Ontario	2
Manitoba	160
Saskatchewan	69,009
Alberta	1,073,627
British Columbia	76,635
Yukon	1,540
Northwest Territories	10,809

Alberta mines could meet the demands of Ontario for domestic fuel without any addition to the plants of the present mines, and such an increased production would give employment to twice the number of men now being employed.

With wide diversity in quality of coal, the type of mines in Alberta also varies widely, from the humble shaft in a farmer's coulee, to the most modern type of mine that can be found. In many places the coal is so near the surface that the soil is merely stripped off, the coal seam blasted, and the coal dug and loaded in cars by steam shovels. Where farmers are fortunate enough to live along the courses of the rivers or have handy coulees where coal outcrops, all they have to do for their winter's supply is to throw a pick and shovel into the wagon and go out and dig it out of the side of the bank. Many of the prairie mines have shafts of but 100 or 150 feet deep. These mines are generally free from gas, large, cool, easily worked, electrically lighted mines that furnish the bulk of Alberta's famous domestic fuel. Such mines are found in the Lethbridge and Drumheller and Edmonton districts. In the mountain districts where harder coal is taken out, the shafts penetrate far into the hillsides. Here, too, are found mines of a very modern type, with electric light and power systems, electric motors underground to handle coal, electric cutting machinery, and all the modern equipment that goes with such a mine.

In the mountain ranges and along the foothills are mines producing bituminous and anthracite coal, and here also are stored vast untouched anthracite fields, among them being the famous Hoppe lease, much discussed during the recent session of Parliament, and said to be worth millions.

The greater portion of the prairie lands of Alberta is underlaid with the high grade domestic fuel that supplies the markets of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Efforts are now being made to secure such a reduction in freight rates to central Canada and, with the added demand, to effect such economies in mining, as to enable Alberta coal to supply the markets of Ontario and Quebec.

SLAUGHTERING OUR PULPWOOD.

United States Pulp and Paper interests are being assisted in keeping up their profits and saving their own timber supplies at the cost of the Canadian voter and tax payer.

Canada's forests are either burning, being destroyed by insect pests or slaughtered by United States interests while the Government now in power endeavours to quiet the people with a Royal Pulpwood Commission to go out and discover facts long since established.

United States interests in order to avoid having to come to Canada to establish mills, employ Canadian labor and increase Canada's revenue, have met in New York and raised a huge fund for proaganda in this country to prevent giving effect to the embargo authorized by the Government of Canada.

The present party responsible for the protection of Canadian interests is forcing the tax payer to pay the cost of providing, in the Pulpwood Commission, an official excuse for delaying urgently needed action.

The Liberal Government are to-day earning the curses of unborn generations of Canadians whose birthright is being sold to make United States citizens rich.

The foundations are being laid to-day for Canadian newspapers in the future being left at the mercy of United States newsprint manufacturers for their daily needs. They will have to buy from the States in a very few years.

Every available man is being hired to cut down the maximum amount of pulpwood and get it out of the country while the Pulpwood Commission's deliberations and meditations hold open the artery through which Canada's life blood is pouring into the United States. We are being sold today by the very people we put in power to protect our interests. In war, traitors are shot. In politics, they are eventually consigned to the wilderness.

FAMILY RE-UNION.

A happy re-union took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Starr, Ebenezar, Richmond Township, when Mr. Starr's four sons, Robert, of Watertown; Arthur, of Mexico, N.Y.; Wilbert, of Kingsford, and Charles E., of Point Ann; and eleven grandchildren and relatives gathered at his home on Wednesday, August 29th. One regretable incident was the absence of the other two sons, Leslie, of Oswego, N.Y., and Gilbert, of Aldergrove, Wash. Mr. Robert Sampson, of Tyendinaga, aged 97 years, was also present. The afternoon was spent in games and music.

On Thursday they journeyed to Mud Lake for a picnic and spent a most enjoyable day. Mrs. English, being an old friend, went with the party. Mrs. English is 82 years old, and has lived in the 9th Concession for sixty-one years. The friends then took their departure after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Starr continued health and happiness, and a hearty appreciation of thanks for the good time that was given them. Mr. Starr, who is now eighty-one years of age, still looks hale and hearty, and was well pleased to have so many of his family and old friends with him again. This is the first time in many years that any considerable number of the family have been able to be present at one time, on account of their living so far away from the parental home.

Romance Gone From Gold Fields.

Gold stampedes have lost their romantic trappings. An honest-to-goodness stampede after real gold has just taken place in Batavia and Kaapsdoorn district, South Africa.

There were no sick-ones, such as distinguished the mushing for precious metal in the western States and Australia. Boos, spurs, liquor, gambling paraphernalia have gone by the boards.

None of those once necessary adjuncts to the proper staking of a claim remain essential. Stampeders of 1923 travelled in automobiles and motorcycles.

Within two hours of the time the first stake was planted the field had been entirely covered. The show was over and nobody was killed.

The new field is confidently expected to produce gold, but the least observing can see that it will never produce a Bret Harte.

"Yes?" she replied expectantly.

"Can you cook?" he asked earnestly.

"Why, no."

"Then how will we eat?"

"Oh, George, aren't you going to continue to bring me bonbons?"

Child's Hand Caught in A Corn Machine.

Cecil, son of John Frink, had the misfortune to get his hand caught in one of the machines while men were cutting corn on his father's farm at Odessa, Friday afternoon. On hearing the child's cries, the father instantly stopped the machine, and but for his promptness the whole right arm may have been lost. The child was rushed to Dr. Nunro's surgery, where the injured were attended to, and the little fellow is doing well. The parents report that the young lad has a perfect love of all forms of machinery, and while at the former residence at Collins Bay, he had some narrow escapes.

CANADA SELF SUFFICIENT AS TO COAL SUPPLY.

Transportation the Big Problem.

There is no fuel problem in Canada. There never will be, for the simple reason that within the boundaries of three of the provinces of the Dominion, in fact, within the boundaries of one of them, lies a sufficient reserve of fuel to meet all of Canada's needs for many generations.

The problem is, and always has been, one of transportation and distribution. Solve this problem, and there will be no excuse for empty coal bins in any home in Canada. Alberta and Nova Scotia coal brought to where it is most needed at a price within reach of the ordinary man's pocketbook, will make it unnecessary to send over to the United States something like a hundred million dollars every year for fuel.

The province of Alberta, it is generally acknowledged, holds the key to the fuel situation in Canada, because of the unique position it occupies in possessing more coal reserves than any other one country in the world, save the United States. Nature bestowed upon this far western province not only great stretches of wheatlands upon which to raise foodstuffs for less fortunate portions of the globe, but also stored away in the basement under those wheatlands enough reserves of coal to feed the furnaces of the world for several centuries. Some of this coal is now being brought to the surface in instalments that total annually about 6,000,000 tons, but the dent made in Alberta's coal pile thus far is but as a shovelful of earth from the side of a mountain. Saskatchewan has been trundling its wheelbarrows to the Alberta coal bin for its annual supply of fuel for many years, and just recently Manitoba has signed Alberta's order book for a large yearly supply, thus displacing nearly all of the coal formerly imported from the United States for domestic purposes.

According to the latest estimates available from authorities, Alberta has an actual reserve of coal totalling 3865,500 million tons, and an estimated probable reserve of 688,679 million tons, or a grand total of 1,072,039 million tons.

These coal reserves comprise just 14 per cent. of the entire world's reserves. They are many times larger than those of all the other provinces of Canada put together, being just 87 per cent. of Canada's coal reserves. Even in the British Empire Alberta holds the predominant place, for it has 72 per cent. of all the coal that is known to exist in all the countries coming under the Union Jack.

There are about 350 mines in operation in the province, employing about 12,000 men. These mines produce approximately 6,000,000 tons a year. At this rate of mining it would take more than 180,000 years to exhaust the supply. If the production were increased 100 times, there would still be enough for 18 centuries.

Coal reserves of the various provinces of Canada are placed as follows:

	Million Tons
Nova Scotia	9,719
New Brunswick	151
Ontario	2
Manitoba	150
Saskatchewan	60,000
Alberta	1,075,227
British Columbia	76,635
Yukon	4340
Northwest Territories	10,500

Alberta mines could meet the demands of Ontario for domestic fuel without any addition to the plants of the present mines, and such an increased production would give employment to twice the number of men now being employed.

With wide diversity in quality of coal, the type of mines in Alberta also varies widely, from the humble shaft in a farmer's coulee, to the most modern type of mine that can be found. In many places the coal is so near the surface that the soil is merely stripped off, the coal seams blasted, and the coal dug and loaded in one operation by great steam shovels. Where farmers are fortunate enough to live along the courses of the rivers or have handy coulees where coal outcrops, all they have to do for their winter's supply is to throw a pick and shovel into the wagon and go out and dig it out of the side of the bank. Many of the prairie mines have shafts of but 100 or 150 feet deep. These mines are generally free from gas, large, coal, easily worked, electrically lighted mines that furnish the bulk of Alberta's famous domestic fuel. Such mines are found in the Lethbridge and Drumheller and Edmonton districts. In the mountain districts where harder coal is taken out, the shafts penetrate far into the hillsides. Here, too, are found mines of a very modern type, with electric light and power systems, electric motors underground to handle coal, electric cutting machinery, and all the modern equipment that goes with such a mine.

In the mountain ranges and along the foothills are mines producer bituminous and anthracite coal, and here also are stored vast untouched anthracite fields, among them being the famous Hoppe leases much discussed during the recent session of Parliament, and said to be worth millions.

The greater portion of the prairie lands of Alberta is underlaid with the high grade domestic fuel that supplies the markets of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Efforts are now being made to secure such a reduction in freight rates to central Canada and, with the added demand, to effect such economies in mining, as to enable Alberta coal to supply the markets of Ontario and Quebec.

The popular Jonteel Talcum is now only 25c. a tin, at Wallace's.

SLAUGHTERING OUR PULPWOOD.

United States Pulp and Paper interests are being assisted in keeping up their profits and saving their own timber supplies at the cost of the Canadian voter and tax payer.

Canada's forests are either burning, being destroyed by insect pests or slaughtered by United States interests while the Government now in power endeavours to quiet the people with a Royal Pulpwood Commission to go out and discover facts long since established.

United States interests in order to avoid having to come to Canada to establish mills, employ Canadian labor and increase Canada's revenue, have met in New York and raised a huge fund for propaganda in this country to prevent giving effect to the embargo authorized by the Government of Canada.

The present party responsible for the protection of Canadian interests is forcing the tax payer to pay the cost of providing, in the Pulpwood Commission, an official excuse for delaying urgently needed action.

The Liberal Government are to-day earning the curses of unborn generations of Canadians whose birthright is being sold to make United States citizens rich.

The foundations are being laid today for Canadian newspapers in the future being left at the mercy of United States newsprint manufacturers for their daily needs. They will have to buy from the States in a very few years.

Every available man is being hired to cut down the maximum amount of pulpwood and get it out of the country while the Pulpwood Commission's deliberations and meditations hold open the artery through which Canada's life blood is pouring into the United States. We are being sold today by the very people we put in power to protect our interests. In war, traitors are shot. In politics, they are eventually consigned to the wilderness.

FAMILY RE-UNION.

A happy re-union took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Starr, Ebenezar, Richmond Township, when Mr. Storr's four sons, Robert, of Watertown; Arthur, of Mexico, N.Y.; Wilbert, of Kingsford, and Charles E. of Point Ann; and eleven grandchildren and relatives gathered at his home on Wednesday, August 29th. One regretable incident was the absence of the other two sons, Leslie, of Oswego, N.Y., and Gilbert, of Aldergrove, Wash. Mr. Robert Sampson, of Tyendinaga, aged 97 years, was also present. The afternoon was spent in games and music.

On Thursday they journeyed to Mud Lake for a picnic and spent a most enjoyable day. Mrs. English, being an old friend, went with the party. Mrs. English is 82 years old, and has lived in the 8th Concession for sixty-one years. The friends then took their departure after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Storr continued health and happiness, and a hearty appreciation of thanks for the good time that was given them. Mr. Storr, who is now eighty-one years of age, still looks hale and hearty, and was well pleased to have so many of his family and old friends with him again. This is the first time in many years that any considerable number of the family have been able to be present at one time, on account of their living so far away from the parental home.

Romance Gone From Gold Fields.

Gold stampedes have lost their romantic happiness. An honest-to-goodness stampede after real gold has just taken place in Bulawia and Kaneybaom district, South Africa.

There were no six-guns, such as distinguished the mushing for precious metal in the western States and Australia. Booze, spurs, liquor, gambling paraphernalia have gone by the boards.

None of those once necessary adjuncts to the proper staking of a claim remain essential. Stampeders of 1923 travelled in automobiles and motorcycles.

Within two hours of the time the first stake was planted the field had been entirely covered. The show was over, and nobody was killed.

The new field is confidently expected to produce gold, but the least observing can see that it will never produce a Bret Harte.

The Modern Girl.

He had duly proposed and been accepted and the engagement sealed with a kiss, a number of them, in fact. Then, as they sat on the sofa, he ventured to discuss more prosaic matters.

"One little question, dearest."

"Yes?" she replied expectantly.

"Can you cook?" he asked earnestly.

"Why, no."

"Then how will we eat?"

"Oh, George, aren't you going to continue to bring me bonbons?"

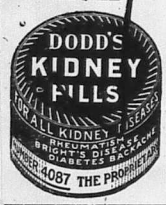
Child's Hand Caught in A Corn Machine.

Cecil, son of John Frink, had the misfortune to get his hand caught in one of the machines while men were cutting corn on his father's farm at Odessa, Friday afternoon. On hearing the child's cries, the father instantly stopped the machine, and but for his promptness the whole right arm may have been lost. The child was rushed to Dr. Nunro's surgery, where the injuries were attended to, and the little fellow is doing well. The parents report that the young lad has a perfect love of all forms of machinery, and while at the former residence at Collins Bay, he had some narrow escapes.



NEW LAMP BURNS 94 PER CENT AIR

BEATS ELECTRIC OR GAS

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light—even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities, and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent. air and 6 per cent. common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. N. Johnson, 246 Craig St. W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 30 DAYS' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month. 39-9t

Hercules—The doctor's fault, mum. He told me to take walks after meals, an' I've been walking after 'em ever since.

A real bargain in Wall Paper remnants at Hooper's Drug Store.

Angus—I hear yer freend Donald has marrit a third wife.

Sandy—Ay, Donald's an expensive freend; twa wreaths and three presents in 14 years.

"Daddy, is to-day to-morrow?" queried Archie.

"Why, no, of course, it isn't to-morrow."

"But you said it was."

"When did I say to-day was to-morrow?"

"Yesterday."

"Well, it was. To-day was to-morrow yesterday, but to-day is to-day to-day, just as yesterday was to-day yesterday, but is yesterday to-day, and to-morrow will be to-day to-morrow, which makes to-day yesterday and to-morrow at the same time."

The youngster looked dazed, and before he had recovered his speech father made good his escape.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Smith—So your son is in college? How is he making it?

Smithers—He isn't. I'm making it and he's spending it.

No matter how deep-rooted the corn may be, it must yield to Holloway's Corn Remover if used as directed.

No Asthma Remedy Like It. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is distinctly different from other so-called remedies. "How kind of you to call! I'm so sorry to have kept you waiting!"

"Oh, don't mention it—I've not been at all bored. I've been trying to imagine what I should do to make this room look tasteful if it were mine."

Simple and Sure. — Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is so simple in application that a child can understand the instructions. Used as a liniment the only direction is to rub, and when used as a dressing to apply. The directions are so plain and unmistakable that they are readily understood by young or old.

Mrs. Newlywed—Why did you tell the neighbors that you married me because I was such a good cook, when you knew I couldn't even boil a potato?

Mr. Newlywed—I had to make some excuse, my dear.

Cheapest of all Oils.—Considering the qualities of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil it is the cheapest of all preparations offered to the public. It is to be found in every drug store in Canada from coast to coast and all country merchants keep it for sale. So, being easily procurable and extremely moderate in price, no one should be without a bottle of it.

Mrs. A. W. sends up this story of her neighbor's boy: "Johnny told his mother when he returned home from church that the minister went up to the pulpit with a crown on his head and palms in his hands.

"Why, Johnny, what are you talking about?" she exclaimed. "Surely our minister would never do anything so unusual as that!"

"I guess, mother," said the boy, "it would be a good deal more unusual if he didn't have any crown on his head or palms in his hands."

Miller's Worm Powders not only make the infantile system untenable for worms, but by their action on the stomach, liver and bowels, they correct such troubles as lack of appetite, biliousness and other internal disorders that the worms create. Children thrive upon them, and no matter what condition their worm-infested stomachs may be in, they will show improvement as soon as the treatment begins.

In spite of repeated warnings from his father, little Bobby persisted in driving nails into blocks and boards. He had arrived at the play-at-carpenter stage.

One morning dad heard the familiar pounding, and looking out he saw Bobby busily banging away—his little sister, Mary, down beside him, apparently looking on.

"Haven't I told you, Bobby, that you will mash your fingers if you drive nails?" the father asked.

"Yes, I know, dad, but Mary's holding the nail."

"I used to go to the theatre just as a tired business man would."

"Why did you give it up?"

"I found it was the plays that were making me tired."

MRS. BUDGE SO WEAK COULD HARDLY STAND

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

River Desert, Que.—"I used to have a severe pain in my side. I would be unable to walk fast and could not stand for any length of time doing ironing or washing, but I would have to lie down to get relief from the pain. I had this for about two years, then a friend told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had had good results. I certainly got good results from it, for as the last time I had a sore side was last May and I have not had it since. I am also glad of having good nursing in baby, and I think it is your medicine that helped me in this way."—Mrs. L. V. BUDGE, River Desert, Quebec.

If you are suffering from the tortures of a displacement, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness, or pain in the side, you should lose no time in trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This issue presents a most attractive investment. The security is incomparable and the income return high. The bonds will occupy an investment position equal to that of Canada's Victory Bonds.

The bonds are offered for cash at the following prices:

20 YEAR BONDS
98.25 and interest yielding 5.14%

5 YEAR BONDS
99 and interest yielding 5.23%

This offer is made subject to prior sale and to advance in price.

To Holders of 1923 Victory Bonds

In addition to the bonds offered for cash it has been arranged that all owners of Victory Bonds due November 1st, 1923, may exchange their holdings for the same amount of the new bonds. They will receive in cash the difference between the face value of their maturing bonds and the purchase price of the new security, namely: at the rate of $1.75 per $100 for 20 year bonds and $1.00 for 5 year bonds.

Special Privilege

Interest coupons on bonds exchanged are to be retained by the owners and cashed on November 1st. As 15th October holds will be dated October 15th, holders who exchange will therefore receive an extra half month's interest. Thereby they receive the cost of 20 year bonds from 98.25 and 5 year bonds from 99, to the following:

20 YEAR BONDS
98.62 and interest yielding 5.16%

5 YEAR BONDS
99.77 and interest yielding 5.28%

Holders are urged to act promptly as this privilege is subject to withdrawal.

Dominion of Canada bonds are the most attractive investment obtainable in Canada.

Orders may be telegraphed or telephoned (collect) and exchanges made through any of the undersigned or through your usual dealer or bank.

The right is reserved to allot a less amount of bonds than applied for, and to sell for cash more than $50,000,000.

These bonds are offered for delivery in interim form on or about October 15th, 1923, when, as, and if issued and delivered to us.

Believe Spot Centre of Earth.

Near the town of Zuni, in New Mexico, there is a stone shrine, erected on the plain, which in the Zuni conception, marks the centre of the world. For the unreconstructed Zuni believes, naturally enough, that the earth is flat. Hither in the days of long ago a guardian divinity of the Zunis brought them as to the safest place in the world—the farthest from the edge—preceding them in the form of a water strider. The double-barred cross, which one sees sometimes on Zuni pottery, or fashioned in silver, is the symbol of that divine guide.

A Sore Topic.

The old farmer had been to market, had got good prices for his cattle, and feeling flush, bought several yards of cloth, intending to have the wife make him a suit of clothes. Unfortunately, on the way home he lost his purchase. Much annoyed at his expensive carelessness, his wife told the vicar. A week or so later the vicar met the good man and hailed him with the query, "By the way, Mr. Green, have you heard anything about your cloth?" "Morning, noon, and night," replied Farmer Green.

Old Tenth Brought Home.

"What did you realize from the sale of your stock?"

"I realized that there is one of us born every minute."—Judge.

Vandevillainish.

"What's worrying you, old man?"

"I was just wondering how many legs you gotta pull off a centipede to make him limp."—Judge.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear baby, Deleslyan Barrazar, aged 1 year and 17 days, who fell asleep in Jesus, the 27th day of September, 1922.

Just one year ago to-day,
Since our dear baby passed away;
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.
Her memory is as dear to-day,
As at the hour she passed away.
It is not the tears at the time that are shed,
That tell that the heart is torn,
But passionate tears in the after years,
And remembrance silently borne.

—Sadly missed by Mother and Grandparents. 39ap

SOLID WALNUT—SOLID MAHOGANY—SOLID OAK

DININGROOM SUITES

These suites can be had in the solid wood for very little more than the cost of the imitation and the veneered wood.

The suite shown above is in the Queen Anne design. The beds can also be had in the twin bed size.

See the Solid Mahogany Suite in our show window. It is in the Colonial design.
